

ENDURANCE 101 CLINIC

Do you like to ride, really ride?

A clinic on the sport of distance riding, with an emphasis on American Endurance Ride Conference-style endurance.

We'll provide detailed guidance on how to prepare yourself and your horse, and what to expect at your first event. Leave your horses at home, listen to our lectures and learn from our demos. Meet like-minded people for conditioning and further connection.

Aimed at prospective, first and second year riders, we'll tailor the clinic to those who sign up.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1ST, 10 AM-4 PM

LISA Schneider is serving as AERC vice president, is the sanctioning director for our Pacific South region, has over 10,000 miles in endurance and has managed rides. She's mentored many riders and endurance is a family affair, with her husband and daughter both participating. Lisa has excelled at all levels of endurance riding from Limited Distance, 50-100 mile rides, and multi-day rides

JULIE Herrera is a long-time competitor who is currently riding a gaited horse in limited distance rides. She rode her mare to many top 10s and Best Conditions, and a career highlight was winning the War Mare competition based on yearly points. Julie has volunteered at many rides and is currently on the team producing educational videos for the AERC YouTube channel.

SUSAN Garlinghouse DVM serves as a director-at-large for AERC. She has over 3000 miles with lots of top ten and Best Condition awards at multi-day rides on her TWH John Henry. She is very active on the veterinary committee, is a popular speaker at endurance conventions and authored the new rider videos, along with producers Ken and Julie Herrera.

LYNNE Glazer is organizing this clinic. She began riding on borrowed horses in 1989. She managed popular rides for seven years, and did her own new rider briefings at each one. Endurance ride photography is a specialty for which she's well known. She is a certified ReactorPanel saddle fitter of 14 years duration including saddles for top competitors as well as pleasure riders.
