The Student Aid Game: Meeting Need and Rewarding Talent in American Higher Education, Michael S. McPherson,

Morton Owen Schapiro , 1999, 0691005362, 9780691005362. Student aid in higher education has recently become a hot-button issue. Parents trying to pay for their children's education, college administrators competing for students, and even President Bill Clinton, whose recently proposed tax breaks for college would change sharply the federal government's financial commitment to higher education, have staked a claim in its resolution. In The Student Aid Game, Michael

McPherson and Morton Owen Schapiro explain how both colleges and governments are struggling to cope with a rapidly changing marketplace, and show how sound policies can help preserve the strengths and remedy some emerging weaknesses of American higher education. McPherson and Schapiro offer a detailed look at how undergraduate education is financed in the United States, highlighting differences across sectors and for students of differing family backgrounds.

They review the implications of recent financing trends for access to and choice of undergraduate college and gauge the implications of these national trends for the future of college opportunity. The authors examine how student aid fits into college budgets, how aid and pricing decisions are shaped by government higher education policies, and how competition has radically reshaped the way colleges think about the strategic role of student aid. Of particular interest is the issue of merit aid. McPherson and Schapiro consider the attractions and pitfalls of merit aid from the viewpoint of students, institutions, and society. The Student Aid Game concludes with an examination of policy options for both government and individual institutions. McPherson and Schapiro argue that the federal government needs to keep its attention focused on providing access to college for needy students, while colleges themselves need to constrain their search for strategic advantage by sticking to aid and admission policies they are willing to articulate and defend publicly.

The Winter Pony, Iain Lawrence , 2012, 0440239729, 9780440239727. In the forests of Siberia, in the first years of the twentieth century, a white pony runs free with his herd. But his life changes forever when he's captured by men. Years of hard work and cruelty wear him out. When he is chosen to be one of 20 ponies to accompany the Englishman Robert Falcon Scott on his quest to become the first to reach the South Pole, he doesn't know what to expect. But the men of Scott's expedition show him kindness, something he's never known before. They also give him a name James Pigg. As Scott's team hunkers down in Antarctica, James Pigg finds himself caught up in one of the greatest races of all time. The Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen has suddenly announced that he too means to be first to the Pole. But only one team can triumph, and not everyone can survive not even the animals.

This introduction assumes no prior knowledge on the part of the reader. At the center of the religion is the scripture, the Guru Granth Sahib, and it is the focus of Sikh theology and practice to the extent that no one is allowed to come between it and the believer. There is no priesthood. A particular aspect of Sikhism is its relationship with and attitude to other religions, something of particular significance in our multi-religious society. Why Jazz?: A Concise Guide, Kevin Whitehead , 2010, 0199753105, 9780199753109. What was the first jazz record? Are jazz solos really improvised? How did jazz lay the groundwork for rock and country music? In Why Jazz?, author and NPR jazz critic Kevin Whitehead provides lively, insightful answers to these and many other fascinating questions, offering an entertaining guide for both novice listeners and long-time fans. Organized chronologically in a convenient question and answer format, this terrific resource makes jazz accessible to a broad audience, and especially to readers who've found the music bewildering or best left to the experts. Yet Why Jazz? is much more than an informative Q&A; it concisely traces the century-old history of this American and global art form, from its beginnings in New Orleans up through the current postmodern period. Whitehead provides brief profiles of the archetypal figures of jazz--from Louis Armstrong and Duke Ellington to Wynton Marsalis and John Zorn--and illuminates their contributions as musicians, performers, and composers. Also highlighted are the building blocks of the jazz sound--call and response, rhythmic contrasts, personalized performance techniques and improvisation--and discussion of how visionary musicians have reinterpreted these elements to continually redefine jazz, ushering in the swing era, bebop, cool jazz, hard bop, and the avant-garde. Along the way, Why Jazz? provides helpful plain-English descriptions of musical terminology and techniques, from "blue notes" to "conducted improvising." And unlike other histories which haphazardly cover the stylistic branches of jazz that emerged after the 1960s, Why Jazz? groups latter-day musical trends by decade, the better to place them in historical context. Whether read in self-contained sections or as a continuous narrative, this compact reference presents a trove of essential information that belongs on the shelf of anyone who's ever been interested in jazz.

The Anatomy Lesson, Philip Roth , 2011, 1446401251, 9781446401255. At forty, the writer Nathan Zuckerman comes down with a mysterious affliction - pure pain, beginning in his neck and shoulders, invading his torso, and taking possession of his spirit. Zuckerman, whose work was his life, is unable to write a line. Now his work is trekking from one doctor to another, but none can find a cause for the pain and nobody can assuage it. Zuckerman himself wonders if the pain can have been caused by his own books. And while he is wondering, his dependence on painkillers extends to an addiction to vodka and marijuana. The third volume of the trilogy and epilogue Zuckerman Bound, The Anatomy Lesson is a great comedy of illness and provides some of the funniest scenes in all of Roth's fiction as well as some of the fiercest.

Battling Corruption: Has NREGA Reached India's Rural Poor?, Shylashri Shankar, Raghav Gaiha , 2013, 0198085001, 9780198085003. In an attempt to respond to the needs of the country's poor, the Indian government launched an ambitious workfare scheme, the National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (NREGA) in 2005, which guaranteed hundred days of employment in unskilled manual labour at a minimum wage to every rural household each year. The book assesses the effectiveness of formal and informal mechanisms-political representation, community social audits, access to information, membership in networks, political competition-in reducing corrupt practices and enabling NREGA to reach its intended beneficiaries in Andhra Pradesh, Tamil Nadu, Madhya Pradesh, and Rajasthan. The book tests several intuitions and finds that, among other things, political representation for scheduled castes and tribes, and women has produced dividends in the form of higher participation and higher earnings in the scheme by these groups. Low access to information, on the other hand, has hindered the effective functioning of these mechanisms. Written in non-technical language, it is one of the few studies of its kind that blends econometric and ethnographic analyses towards a better understanding of the effective implementation of the scheme.

Effective EPA Advocacy provides a practical perspective on conducting effective advocacy before the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in both the rulemaking process and the (equally if not more important) decision-making processes outside the rulemaking context, such as the issuance of interpretative memoranda, guidance documents, and letter rulings. Based on the author's observations and insights from eight years in EPA's Office of General Counsel and 27 years in the private sector representing clients in matters before EPA, Effective

EPA Advocacy explains what goes on behind-the-scenes in the making of important national laws (regulations are, after all, laws). This book also includes summary coverage of the fundamentals of major environmental statutes and a brief overview of the federal rulemaking and judicial review processes.

War Diary, Gary L. McIntosh , 2004, 1412032873, 9781412032872. The destroyers of World War II were the workhorses of the fleet, but their contributions have been largely forgotten in the passage of time. Even during the war, official reports listed the names of all battleships, cruisers, and aircraft carriers participating in an operation, but the destroyers that escorted the Task Group and drew the dangerous close in fire support tasks were seldom listed by name or hull number. They were grouped in classifications such as "fourteen Destroyers" or merely, "fourteen escorts." Drawing on official records and the memories of the men who fought in the Pacific War from its decks, Gary McIntosh has created a highly readable history of the USS Stevens, a Fletcher-class destroyer that participated in some of the better known invasions of the war and some that have been virtually forgotten. Spanning the years from the time the ship was launched in June 1942 until it was decommissioned in September 1946, few books have ever chronicled the life of a single ship the way this one does. Tin Can Sailors and landlubbers alike will enjoy this story of life aboard a destroyer during the greatest conflict the world has ever known.

In this book, leading JDBC expert Art Taylor illuminates every element of the new JDBC 3.0 standard, and every JDBC interface. Taylor brings together clear code examples, patterns, and programming techniques -- helping you master all of JDBC -- even its most complex and powerful features. JDBC: Database Programming with J2EE combines an expert JDBC tutorial with a definitive API description and reference. Art Taylor focuses on the major improvements that have been made to JDBC since its introduction. Taylor covers JDBC 3.0's support for scrollable cursors, batch updates, connection pooling, distributed transaction support, advanced data types, character streams, rowsets, JNDI resource lookup, connectors, and much more. Along the way, JDBC: Database Programming with J2EE introduces today's best design patterns for JDBC-based database integration, while reflecting significant enhancements made to the SQL standard since JDBC's original introduction. All sample code is provided on CD-ROM.

Process and Pattern in Evolution, Charlotte J. Avers, , 1989, 0195052757, 9780195052756. This textbook examines a broad range of topics covered in evolutionary biology courses. Part one sets the historical, physical, and chemical framework for the origin of life, and provides in-depth coverage of genome evolution, metabolic pathways, the genetic code, and cellular organization in primeval life. Part two concentrates on the genetic processes underlying the diversity of gene organization, function, and expression; adaptation and neutral evolution; gene frequency changes in populations; and tempos and modes of speciation. Part three emphasizes patterns and trends in evolution as deduced from morphological and molecular phylogenetic analyses and from geological and paleontological studies. The final two chapters describe major evolutionary concepts as seen in the emergence of the human family from its ancestral vertebrate beginnings to Homo sapiens. The text is enhanced by numerous tables and illustrations, many from the original research literature. Extensive references, reading lists, and summaries accompany each chapter, providing students with the opportunity to explore further the ongoing challenge of the evolutionary biology of past and present life on Earth.

Structures of nature: photographs, Andreas Feininger, University of Richmond Museums , 2002, 097137533X, 9780971375338. Born in Paris and raised in Germany, Andreas Feininger (1906-1999) was the son of American artist and Bauhaus teacher Lyonel Feininger. By the 1920s, the younger Feininger had already established several stylistic traits in his photographic work, such as monumentalized subject matter and emphasis on texture and line. His nature photographs tend to reveal patterns in animal and plant forms as found in the backbones of a snake or veins in a leaf. After immigrating to America in 1939, Feininger completed almost 350 photographic essays for Life magazine between 1943 and 1962. In addition he published numerous books on photographic theory and technique and his photographs were included in the Museum of Modern Art exhibition "The Family of Man." Structures of Nature represents a selection of Feininger's stunning nature photography. An essay by N. Elizabeth Schlatter considers his work in the context of German photography between the two world wars and in comparison with his American contemporaries. N. Elizabeth Schlatter is assistant director of the University of Richmond Museums Martha's Girls, Alrene Hughes , 2012, 1780881924, 9781780881928. Five women and one city in a heartwarming story of life, love and war. Belfast 1939: Martha Gouldings world is shattered by a sudden death and the outbreak of war that leaves her family facing an uncertain future. Her daughters are talented singers who join a troupe of entertainers led by Goldstein, a Polish Jew, who is determined to raise morale and money for the war effort. But Martha is torn between allowing her girls to perform and keeping them safe from men, both in and out of uniform, and their own headstrong personalities. Irene is drawn to Sean, but the relationship leads her into danger. Peggy is charmed by the enigmatic Harry. Pat doesn't realise she's fallen in love at all until it's too late. Sheila longs to sing with her older sisters. The rise in the girls' success as the renamed Golden Sisters is played out against a backdrop of Belfast life from elegant Royal Avenue, into the mills, aircraft factory, concert and dance halls to the heart of the Stormont government. Apathy and lack of resources have left the city unprepared and vulnerable, its people unaware of the horror about to befall them, and Martha's family will need all their strength and courage to survive.

The Biology of Streams and Rivers, Paul S. Giller, Bjrn Malmqvist , 1998, 0198549784, 9780198549789. An easy-to-read, beautifully illustrated undergraduate-level introduction to fresh- and running-water biology. Each chapter includes practical information on simple studies and experiments for students to try. The text begins with the physical features that define running water (lotic) habitats then continues with organisms that inhabit these habitats, and concludes with a discussion of applied issues surrounding water use, including pollution, species diversity, and conservation. The authors outline the range of living organisms in lotic habitats, and the environmental adaptations they exhibit. They discuss population, community, and ecosystem patterns and processes, such as energy flow, nutrient cycling, migration, food webs, and community structure. Particular consideration is given to links between stream and river channels and their surrounding landscapes, to short-term and seasonal changes, and to historical and biogeographical factors. The text concludes with a section of additional practical field work activities and a list for further reading.

Application Architecture for WebSphere: A Practical Approach to Building WebSphere Applications, Joey Bernal , 2008, 0137129262, 9780137129263. Architect IBM WebSphere Applications for Maximum Performance, Security, Flexibility, Usability, and Value Successful, high-value WebSphere applications begin with effective architecture. Now, one of IBMs

leading WebSphere and WebSphere Portal architects offers a hands-on, best-practice guide to every facet of defining, planning, and implementing WebSphere application architectures. Joey Bernal shows working architects and teams how to define layered architectural standards that can be used across the entire organization, improving application quality without compromising flexibility. Bernal begins by illuminating the role of architecture and the responsibilities of the architect in WebSphere applications and SOA environments. Next, he introduces specific architectural techniques for addressing persistence, application performance, security, functionality, user interaction, and much more. Bernal presents a series of sample architectures drawn from his work with several leading organizations, demonstrating how architectures can evolve to support new layers and changing business requirements. Throughout, his techniques are specific enough to address realistic enterprise challenges, while still sufficiently high-level to be useful in diverse and heterogeneous environments. Coverage includes Choosing persistence frameworks that serve business requirements without excessive complexity Avoiding persistence-related problems with performance, security, or application functionality Designing and deploying effective middle layers and dependent libraries within WebSphere Application Server Using WebSphere mechanisms and architectural techniques to avoid common security attacks such as SQL injection Improving performance with WebSphere Application Server caching, including Distributed Maps and Servlet/JSP fragment caching Using presentation frameworks to provide fast, robust, and attractive user interaction Incorporating portals that provide a standardized framework for merging multiple applications Joey Bernal is an Executive IT Specialist with IBM Software Services for Lotus. Senior Certified with IBM as an IT Specialist, he has an extensive background in designing and developing Web and Portal Applications. He often leads IBM teams that have assisted dozens of clients in leveraging WebSphere Portal to address architecture, design, and implementation challenges. A frequent speaker on WebSphere and portal topics, Bernal is coauthor of Programming Portlets, and hosts the developerWorks blog: WebSphere Portal in Action. Prior to joining IBM, he was Director of IT for an incentive and performance improvement company, and served as lead technical advisor and architect for high-profile Internet and intranet applications at several Fortune 500 companies. You can also visit the authors Web site at www.bernal.net. Caregiving: Lives Derailed, Eli Cannon , 2013, 0985939923, 9780985939922. An intimate and personal story, Caregiving: Lives Derailed, recounts the experience of an American couple on the verge of retirement who choose to open their lives as host-parents to a Third World student. When the student is diagnosed with cancer, they bring her into their home for extended caregiving. While the story reaches a happy conclusion, the normal and understandable emotions expressed and the confident and supportive words exchanged, unexpectedly and repeatedly threaten to destroy their well-intentioned caregiving enterprise. Wide ranging and beautifully written, this thoughtful book raises fundamental questions about intercultural communications, the dynamics of international exchange student programs, and the nature of the caregiving experience. "A heartfelt story, rich in complex relationships, told with care and courage. This book should be read especially by those who find themselves on an unexpected care-giving journey." -Martin Kohn, Ph.D., co-founder, Center for Literature, Medicine, and Biomedical Humanities, Hiram College and founding co-editor, Literature and Medicine series, Kent State University Press "There are more than 65 million unpaid caregivers in the U.S. They are the backbone of our health care system, providing care and support to the millions of people with illness and disability, often at great cost to themselves and great benefit to patients and society... Many personal accounts of caregiving have been written in the last decade, but few are as wise and compassionate as this one. It is blending of science, wit, and the seasoned insights of keen observer of human relationships." -Richard Schulz, Ph.D., Professor of Psychiatry, Director of the University Center for Social and Urban Research, Director of Gerontology, and Associate Director of the Institute on Aging at the University of Pittsburgh "I could not put this book down. An engrossing, honest and multi-dimensional look into an enormously interesting caregiving relationship from which all caregivers can learn. Dr. Cannon has done a tremendous job of bringing the book's lessons to life and allowing the reader to identify with the participants." -Gary Edward Barg, founder and editor-in-chief of Today's Caregiver magazine and caregiver.com "This book is an honest exploration of interpersonal dynamics, especially those that become inflamed and illuminated by illness. By transcending the idealistic and often burdensome expectations imposed on the ill and those who care for them, the book allows for a raw examination of the delicate line between help and harm—a line often blurred when we most desperately desire health. As a gifted story teller with an intellectual eye for detail, Dr. Cannon provides an unsettling, but insightful narrative that not only allows us to feel less alone in our humanity, but also encourages healing through the establishment of a new equilibrium, somewhere between comfort and catastrophe." -Jennifer Adaeze Anyaegbunam, MS, medical journalist, MD candidate at the University of Virginia School of Medicine, and founding editor of The Intima, A Journal of Narrative Medicine "To read this book you must open your heart to a story which could easily break it. Caregiving can produce hurt as well as healing, harm as well as an opportunity for redemption. Reading a good narrative such as this imposes an obligation. In this case, one is obliged to reflect upon one's own caregiving past, present and future." -Michael A. Dover, MSSW, Ph.D., editor of the journal Reflections: Narratives of Professional Helping

The Perfect Theory: A Century of Geniuses and the Battle Over General Relativity, Pedro G. Ferreira , 2014, 0547554893, 9780547554891. At the core of Einstein's general theory of relativity are a set of equations that explain the relationship among gravity, space, and time--possibly the most perfect intellectual achievement of modern physics. For over a century, physicists have been exploring, debating, and at times neglecting Einstein's theory in their quest to uncover the history of the universe, the origin of time, and the evolution of solar systems, stars, and galaxies. In this sweeping narrative of science and culture, Pedro Ferreira explains the theory through the human drama surrounding it: the personal feuds and intellectual battles of the biggest names in twentieth-century physics, from Einstein and Eddington to Hawking and Penrose. We are in the midst of a momentous transformation in modern physics. As scientists look farther and more clearly into space than ever before, "The Perfect Theory" engagingly reveals the greater relevance of general relativity, showing us where it started, where it has led, and where it can still take us.

Opioid Therapy in the 21st Century, Howard S Smith , 2008, 0195339495, 9780195339499. Opioids remain one of the most controversial agents in the armamentarium of analgesics, yet they are among the most effective therapeutics for many painful complaints. Despite the remarkable effectiveness of opioid analgesics in providing significant pain relief, fears of professional opprobrium, regulatory repercussions and/or adverse effects such as respiratory depression or addiction act as significant disincentives to the prescribing of these drugs. Many misconceptions exist about the use of opioids, and it is important that doctors are well informed about them, including the potential benefits of therapy and the potential problems that can occur. This book provides clinicians with up-to-date information about options for managing long-term pain symptoms and is designed to aid rational decision-making about patient care. Opioid Therapy for the 21st Century presents a basic introduction to opioid therapeutics and their appropriate clinical applications, along with various documentation tools to support responsible and safe prescribing practices. The book provides an overview of common pain problems and syndromes and covers the use of opioids in both cancer pain and non-cancer pain. It is designed to increase the understanding and comfort level of clinicians prescribing opioid analgesics to patients suffering with significant pain, while stressing the importance of managing risk of abuse. Special sections are dedicated to opioid pharmacology and the needs of special populations such as pediatric, geriatric, and palliative care patients.

Ladies of Longbourn: The Acclaimed Pride and Prejudice Sequel Series, , 2008, 1402234392, 9781402234392. "A masterpiece that reaches the heart." - Beverley Wong, author of Pride & Prejudice Prudence The bestselling Pemberley Chronicles series continues the saga of the Darcys and Bingleys from Jane Austen's Pride and Prejudice and introduces imaginative new characters. Anne-Marie Bradshaw is the granddaughter of Charles and Jane Bingley. Her father now owns Longbourn, the Bennet's estate in Hertfordshire. A young widow after a loveless marriage, Anne-Marie and her stepmother Anna, together with Charlotte Collins, widow of the unctuous Mr. Collins, are the Ladies of Longbourn. These smart, independent women challenge the conventional roles of women in the Victorian era, while they search for ways to build their own lasting legacies in an ever-changing world. The ladies find strength, companionship, and friendship together as they work to build a children's hospital, deal with a deadly outbreak of influenza, and help a gentle lady flee a violent and destructive marriage. Jane Austen's original characters - Darcy, Elizabeth, Bingley, and Jane - provide a framework of solid values and commentary to anchor a dramatic story full of wit and compassion. "Interesting stories, enduring themes, gentle humour, and lively dialogue." - Book News Cat Daddy: What the World's Most Incurable Cat Taught Me About Life, Love, and Coming Clean, Jackson Galaxy , 2013, 0399163808, 9780399163807. Cat behaviorist and star of Animal Planet's hit television show My Cat from Hell, Jackson Galaxy, a.k.a. "Cat Daddy," isn't what you might expect for a cat expert (as The New York Times noted, with his goatee and tattoos, he "looks like a Hells Angel"). Yet Galaxy's ability to connect with even the most troubled felines -- not to mention the stressed-out humans living in their wake -- is awe-inspiring. In this book, Galaxy tells the poignant story of his thirteen-year relationship with a petite gray-and-white short-haired cat named Benny, and gives singular advice for living with, caring for, and loving the feline in your home. When Benny arrived in his life, Galaxy was a down-and-out rock musician with not too much more going on than a part-time job at an animal shelter and a drug problem. Benny's previous owner brought the cat to the shelter in a cardboard box to give him up. Benny had seen better days --- his pelvis had just been shattered by the wheels of a car -- and his owner insisted he'd been "unbondable" from day one.

Nothing could have been further from the truth. An inspiring account of two broken beings who fixed each other, Cat Daddy is laced throughout with Galaxy's amazing "Cat Mojo" advice for understanding what cats need most from us humans in order to live happier, healthier lives.

Fundamentals of weather and climate, J. F. Robin McIlveen , 2010, 0199215421, 9780199215423. Most of us generally fail to comprehend the enormous scale, power, and complexity of the atmosphere. With the effects of global climate change becoming increasingly apparent, an understanding of the processes that underpin our weather and climate is vital. Offering an engaging and insightful treatment of the behavior of the lower atmosphere, Fundamentals of Weather and Climate takes a quantitative approach to describing the mechanisms involved. Beginning with an overview of the atmosphere and its components, it introduces the physics that drive weather systems before setting those principles in the context of specific systems of differing scales and latitudes. Finally, the text draws this information together in relation to the problem of anthropogenic climate change. Fundamentals of Weather and Climate is enhanced by extensive pedagogical features including end-of-chapter questions, key points, and custom-drawn illustrations that enable students to more easily visualize the processes and interactions described. A Companion Website offers resources for students and instructors. New to this edition: * Increased coverage of mid- and low-latitude weather systems, global circulation and regional systems, climate modelling and prediction, and thermodynamics * More detailed explanations of key mathematical concepts * Fully worked solutions to problems * New end-of-chapter summaries

Out of the Blue Writers Unite, Deborah Priestly, Timothy Gager , 2003, 0970482221, 9780970482228. This anthology "Out of the Blue Writers Unite" was conceived based on our hope to directly introduce to you some of the well received written works that we have heard in the literary venue of The Out of the Blue Art Gallery, be it poetry or prose. Along with being entertaining, we hope that this selection demonstrates the number of ways in which human beings bond, struggle and prevail in life. The voice of each writer is unique because each reflects a wide range of emotions and beliefs. The writers come from a hodge-podge of backgrounds, reflecting different social, educational, and geographical influences. Challenging topics were ventured into due to diversity in age, gender, sexuality, and mental or physical capacities. Some writers chose very brave subjects to write about such as surviving traumas like homelessness, incest, and living with physical challenges such as being blind or wheel chair dependent. Many of the pieces were selected because of their style of presentation as well as the enthusiasm in which they were received in readings or from the various publications in which they were previously published. Other writers chose selections of a lighter nature for consideration. Please enjoy the amalgamation of creative voices presented here. It's with our sincere gratitude to the Cambridge Arts Council and the Massachusetts Cultural Council, that the Out of the Blue Art Gallery is able to present the "Out of the Blue Writers Unite." Many of the authors are Cambridge residents, some well known, others new. So it is our hope that you will indulge in these selections and that they might inspire you to write and to share your work with us at our Gallery.

Land Law, Elizabeth Cooke , 2006, 0199268991, 9780199268993. Providing an introduction to land law, this book looks at the way in which the law regulates our relationship with the land on which we walk, work, and live. Land law is about the connections between people and land, and also the relationships between people, jostling for space and allocating resources. As people change, so do the ways they use and think about land, and land law today looks very different from how it did fifty years ago, and in another generation's time it will have changed again. Elizabeth Cooke introduces the building blocks of land law, namely property rights in land, and explains how they have evolved by a mixture of design and accident. The book examines ownership rights, non-ownership rights, both legal and equitable, and provides analysis of how these different rights can apply to a single piece of land, and how they are managed and enforced. Throughout the book, the role of registration is central, following the Land Registration Act 2002, and the implications of this Act for English land law are fully explored.

Getting Away with Murder: Weapons for the War Against Domestic Violence, Raoul Lionel Felder , 1996, 0684813629, 9780684813622. There is a war being waged on women in America. Every eighteen seconds, somewhere in the United States, a woman is beaten by her husband or boyfriend. In 1994, nearly half the women murdered in America were killed by their spouse or lover. And these men will probably get a lighter sentence than they would have for assaulting or killing a stranger because their victims were once their lovers. Raoul Felder, one of the best-known and most successful divorce lawyers in the country, has heard chilling stories of physical beatings and emotional tortures, stories that he might never have believed if he hadn't seen the evidence of this torment with his own eyes. Drawing from his years of experience, Felder and journalist Barbara Victor have delivered a riveting report from the front lines of this war, complete with a plan of attack that includes all the best weapons to fight back against this horror. What these authors have done is talk to everyone involved with domestic violence from the cop who hates to take domestic dispute calls to the district attorney, judge, or social worker who feels that he can't offer the protection that a victim needs. Additionally, they have interviewed both the victim and the batterer to help us understand the forces that shape this relationship. From each of these, the authors let us hear what is needed to stop the violence now and make suggestions on how we can help change the law or the way things are done to keep it stopped in the future. In Getting Away with Murder you'll discover the first crucial steps that must be taken. Here, you will find the tools necessary to make a difference.

The Picture of Dorian Gray, Oscar Wilde , 2006, 0192807293, 9780192807298. Dorian Gray gives his soul for eternal youth. While his portrait changes hideously, reflecting his crimes and corruption, he remains outwardly flawless. This new edition uses the 1891 expanded text and shows how Wilde transformed his many sources. - ;'The only way to get rid of a temptation is to yield to it.' When Dorian Gray has his portrait painted, he is captivated by his own beauty. Tempted by his world-weary, decadent friend Lord Henry Wotton, he wishes to stay forever young, and pledges his very soul to keep his good looks. Set in fin-de-si--eacute--;cle London, the novel traces a path from the studio of painter Basil Hallward to the opium dens of the East End. As Dorian's slide into crime and cruelty progresses he stays magically youthful, while his beautiful portrait changes, revealing the hideous corruption of moral decay. Ever since its first publication in 1890 Wilde's only novel has remained the subject of critical controversy. Acclaimed by some as an instructive moral tale, it has been denounced by others for its implicit immorality. Combining elements of the supernatural, aestheticism, and the Gothic, The Picture of Dorian Gray is an unclassifiable and uniquely unsettling work of fiction. - ;It seemed to be an impossible task to outdo the former edition of 'Dorian Gray' in the World's Classics series, but Bristow has achieved his goal. The quality of the explanatory notes is, simply, superb, and the introduction is succinct but informative, -

The Red City: Limoges and the French Nineteenth Century, John M. Merriman , 1989, 0195056825, 9780195056822.

This imaginative study recaptures 100 years in the life of Limoges, France's first socialist city, at a time when Limoges rode high on the crest of every wave of social, political, and industrial change. The story of this single city is the story of urban transformation and political radicalism in 19th-century France, of the struggle between tradition and modernity in French society and politics that took place not only within cities but also between cities and the countryside. Here, Merriman offers vivid portraits of particular social groups, neighborhoods, and events in 19th-century Limoges to describe and analyze the impact of large-scale industrialization, the social bases of political conflict, and the eventual emergence of a powerful working class. The central characters of Merriman's study are the very ordinary denizens of this extraordinary city--its butchers, porcelain workers, laundresses, priests--through whom one sees the effects of urbanization and industrialization on their quarters, work, religion, culture, and political life. The close of the 19th century marked the end of one of France's last truly revolutionary situations, concludes Merriman, as growing centralization dampened revolutionary zeal and the 20th century ushered in a combination of industrial capitalism and a powerful state that was seemingly invulnerable to revolutionary challenges from the working class.

Folklore from the Schoharie Hills, Emelyn Gardner , 2012, . Emelyn Gardner visited Gilboa in 1912, and ended up spending six summers here, collecting traditional ballads, popular beliefs, superstitions, practices, and tales of the hills. "Since information on such matters usually comes not from direct inquiry, I chatted casually and quietly with all sorts of people and tried to become thoroughly acquainted with them and with their ways. After six summers of field work . . . I felt that, while my collection was not exhaustive, I had sufficient material to justify an attempt at a classification and a study of it." Her study was a 368-page volume on local folklore that Stonecrest Industries has reprinted as a centennial edition. While generally drawn from the Gilboa-Conesville area, the content provides a fascinating glimpse into the folklore common at that time. What is Folklore? Folklore is the collection of stories, legends, music, superstitions, proverbs, and customs that identify the culture of a group. Folklore is "the hidden, submerged culture lying behind the shadow of official civilization," according to Richard Dorson (Folklore Forum 1, 1968). As people migrated and settled in our hills, the culture they brought with them and modified to accommodate their new homeland became part of their local folklore. These traditions were then passed forward to the next generations. In 1912 and the summers that followed, Gardner explored the folklore of Gilboa and Conesville and their neighbors and researched their traditions back to their roots in other countries. About the Author Emelyn Gardner taught at Eastern Michigan University, freeing her for summer explorations. She boarded in Gilboa from 1912 to 1917, and roamed our hills collecting the content for this book.

To a Distant Island, James McConkey , 1984, 0966491351, 9780966491357. In 1890 Anton Chekhov thirty years old and already a famous writer left his home and family in Moscow to travel 6,500 miles across Russia, over frozen land and sea, by train, ferry, and troika, to visit the island of Sakhalin, a penal colony off the coast of Siberia. What was Chekhov seeking by undertaking such a harrowing journey to that God-forsaken island? Ostensibly, he went in his role of physician, to observe the medical conditions and to collect statistical information (Indeed, Chekhov wrote that during his stay he filled out more than 10,000 census cards based on interviews with prisoners and exiles.) But his motivation, as James McConkey reflects, was more likely escape: escape from the sense of confinement that fame, fortune, and family had brought a search, in other words, for freedom in a place where no one was free. In To a Distant Island, McConkey recreates Chekhov's remarkable journey in all of its complexity, while interweaving a journey of his own. As McConkey guides us through the Russian wilderness and into the soul of this great writer, he uncovers the peculiar and hidden forces that shaped two lives. "We have had many straight biographies of writers in recent years . . . that leave their subjects curiously diminished. Mr. McConkey's achievement . . . is to send the reader back to the Russian master with renewed wonder." Harvey Shapiro, The New York Times "A deeply moving, exquisitely written book." Washington Post Book World "Exceptionally serene prose . . . leveled with sharp observation and subtle wit . . . neither history nor fiction, but rather a kind of reimagining of the past." Michael Dirda, Smithsonian Magazine James McConkey is the author of Crossroads, The Tree House Confessions, The Novels of E.M. Forster, and Court of Memory (a continuing biography that appeared serially in various magazines, primarily The New Yorker), and many other books. He is Goldwin Smith Professor of English Literature Emeritus at Cornell University. Jay Parini is Axinn Professor of English at Middlebury College. He is the author of The Last Station: A Novel of Tolstoy's Last Year and Robert Frost: A Life and many other works of fiction, criticism, poetry, and biography.

The ultimate figure skating guidebook on the fastest growing participation sport in the United States. Televised skating competitions attract millions of viewers every year, and the Olympic figure skating events capture a larger audience than any other Olympic sport. With the 1998 Olympic games influencing thousands of new skaters to the rinks, it will appeal to all skaters and the people who coach and support them. There is a demand for how-to manuals with an integrated approach to achieving optimal skating performance. Skate Your Personal Best conveys both the intricacies of footwork and jumps with a philosophy of excellence that applies to skating as well as life. Cutting edge instruction includes: acquiring artful and accurate technique, how to condition physically off the ice, how to use the latest researched guidelines on high performance nutrition to boost stamina, prevent injury and maintain weight in a healthy manner, and the latest sport psychology strategies for staying in top mental shape before and during competitions. The manual gives detailed descriptions of skating techniques and includes advice from judges who give the lowdown on the judging process, and offers parents advice on how they can support and better understand their children through the process of professional skating. The inspirational stories of skating champions will help skaters get through "choppy ice", and the suggestions on how to select a pairs skating partner from the co-author give concrete suggestions that only a pro can give. The technique instruction uses an innovative format of photograph, illustration, and ice placement to give the skater the most information available for achieving a flawless performance. It will become a must-have classic for every skater.

Helping children: a social history, Murray Levine, Adeline Levine , 1992, 0195066995, 9780195066999. Considering the complex wave of problems with which children and young adults are now confronted, we often forget -- and have been poor at recording -- the events, conditions, and creative contributions that pioneered community awareness and advocacy on behalf of young people. In this accessible and stimulating book, Murray and Adeline Levine recount the social history of helping services to children in this country, a history which begins roughly between 1890 and the mid-1920s. Likewise they examine the emergence of community-oriented services, and the dynamic relationship between services and their changing social context. In studying the past, the Levines search the past for what it might tell us about the current crop of problems faced by community psychologists, mental health and social service administrators and policy makers, social workers, social psychiatrists, clinicians, and activists of all stripes. The authors discover not only that these problems are strikingly familiar, but that what is new in a field may not necessarily be better. The Levines recount the accomplishments of some early settlement houses, the establishment of the Juvenile Court, and the emergence of the child guidance clinic. Recent developments in the field -- welfare and aid to families with dependent children, child protection, and abortion and birth control services -- are also placed in historical context and discussed in light of today's helping services. Professionals and students in clinical and community psychology, public health, social work, psychiatry, and sociology, as well as educators and interested lay readers, will find both insights from the past and keys to the future in this thoughtful, important volume.

The Delicate Storm: A John Cardinal Mystery, Giles Blunt , 2010, 0307368513, 9780307368515. there is nothing more still than a dead body, and no mistaking it for anything else. This one was naked, covered with a glaze of ice. Even the long black hair that fell in tendrils across her face was encased in ice. It was as if she were under a spell the victim of a jealous wizard, a wicked witch. [The Delicate Storm, page 164] Algonquin Bay is wrapped in a thick blanket of fog; an eerie prophecy of weather on its way, or perhaps something more ominous. When a local man discovers a dismembered arm in his front yard, it seems that the long fingers of fog that strangle the city are also hiding a grisly secret. While at first the discovery is thought to be the work of ravenous bears, woken early from their long winter hibernation, the coroner later confirms that the victim was actually sawn into pieces rather than torn. The case becomes even murkier when a local trapper confesses to cutting up the body and scattering the remains but claims to be innocent of committing the murder. Detectives John Cardinal and Lise Delorme have their work cut out for them. After identifying the victim as Howard Matlock, New York city resident, a new player enters the ring: the RCMP. In any case involving an American, the RCMP shares jurisdiction with the Algonquin Bay Police Department and that means Corporal Malcolm Musgrave. A blustering wall of self-importance and attitude, Musgrave has Cardinal bristling, and he reminds Delorme of a betrayal she'd rather forget. To add insult to injury, Delorme is pulled off the case and Cardinal ends up in a partnership not only with Musgrave, but with the unbearably obsequious Calvin Squier, an agent of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS). When Cardinal makes the surprising discovery that Howard Matlock is alive and well, he begins to suspect that not everyone involved in the case is working towards the same goal. The body parts add up to one Miles Shakeley, a CIA operative in Montreal in 1970, and Cardinal becomes suspicious that CSIS is somehow involved. Meanwhile, the case of a missing woman in Algonquin Bay is occupying Delorme. When the body of Dr. Winter Cates is uncovered in a glaze of ice, Delorme is convinced that a jealous boyfriend is to blame. But when blood evidence bonds Cardinal and Delorme's cases, they are back together and travelling to Montreal to track down tenuous leads. And it is there that they discover that their cases reach far beyond the town limits of Algonquin Bay. Untangling the secrets of a government in crisis, cover-ups, and the meddling of American intelligence agencies, they are eventually led back to where they started and to a suspect who is untouchable. Jackie finds herself in a no-win situation, and her attempts to walk the tightrope between the two opposing factions gives the screenplay its unbearable tension. Jackie Brown emerges as one of Quentin Tarantino's most extraordinary characters as she pulls the old-bait-and-switch routine, playing the good guys off against the bad guys.

Mona's Lament, David Shaffer , 2012, 0984000429, 9780984000425. Harry Caine has been hired to determine whether the missing father of his client is dead or alive. The client wants closure in his burning desire to determine the what, who, where, when, and why of his missing father who disappeared shortly after taking off in his private plane from Pahokee to West Palm Beach. The authorities have declared the case closed after an exhaustive search of the surrounding everglades, sections of the Gulf of Mexico, and the waters off the Florida east coast. As Harry and Mona uncover the facts of the case, the profile of a serial killer begins to immerge. The action in this unforgettable Harry Caine Mystery takes place on land, sea, and air, moving from Palm Beach and Marion County, Florida, to Eleuthera Island in the Bahamas.

Good Bait, John Harvey , 2013, 0099568624, 9780099568629. The compelling new novel from the Cartier Diamond Dagger winner and "Sunday Times "bestseller. When a 17-year-old Moldovan boy is found dead on Hampstead Heath, the case falls to DCI Karen Shields and her overstretched Homicide & Serious Crime Unit. Karen knows she needs a result. What she doesn't know is that her new case is tied inextricably to a much larger web of gang warfare and organised crime which infiltrates almost every aspect of London society. Several hundred miles away in Cornwall, DI Trevor Cordon is stirred from his day-to-day duties by another tragic London fatality. Travelling to the capital, determined to establish the cause of death and trace the deceased's daughter -- an old acquaintance from Newlyn -- Cordon becomes entangled in a complicated situation of his own. A situation much closer to Karen's case than either of them will ever know. Brilliantly plotted and filled with rich, subtle characters, John Harvey's latest novel reveals him once again as a masterful writer with his finger firmly on the pulse of twenty-first century crime.

Wortham, has been thoroughly updated to incorporate the latest in traditional tests, non-traditional assessments, and informal evaluation tools. Written from the developmental perspective this field demands, the user-friendly volume speaks in understandable language, clearly explaining the unique assessment challenges posed by the developmental limitations of young children. It offers the most comprehensive coverage available of the types of assessment that are effective with children from birth to age 8 and how to use them to best advantage. In addition, it includes information on the latest standardized tests, detailed directions for interpreting assessments, and tips for thoughtfully communicating assessment results. For primary school teachers involved in preparing for, administering, interpreting, and moving forward with the results of standardized testing.

Inspirations from Kant: Essays, Leslie Forster Stevenson , 2011, 0199778221, 9780199778225. These essays on Kant's theoretical philosophy, besides deriving inspiration from him, bring insights from contemporary analytical philosophy to bear in interpreting some of his most deep and difficult themes. The topics covered include representation and reality, appearances and things in themselves, the given and synthesis, transcendental idealism, the limits of scientific explanation, knowledge, belief and faith, freedom of judgment, different levels of operation within the mind, and determinism and free will. Though written separately (and in some cases already published), the essays bear close relations with each other, and these inter-relations have been emphasized and signposted in preparing revised versions for this book. This collection of essays features a variety of concrete examples (and occasional humor) to illustrate and illuminate the very abstract themes of Kant's philosophy. It is designed to be readable with enjoyment and profit by those who do not count themselves as Kant scholars.

"Swimming Naked with Jellyfish" won the international 2009 Eric Hoffer Awards-Montaigne Medal Finalist Award for Thought Provoking Books and for Excellence in Independent Publishing. IRIS ANDREA confronts her grief over multiple loss of family by writing her memoir. In her struggle to know herself and her self-worth, she flashes back to growing up in Brighton Beach, Brooklyn in the 1960s. She digs up intense childhood anger for her beloved tyrant father, passive mother, jealous sister but she also finds love. Iris powerfully narrates her encounters with her violent father and rebellion against the trapped submissive females of her family by escaping with the freedom-loving males. She discloses an insecure, sensual adolescence throbbing in the birth of Rock and Roll, her firsts, her taste in men, shame and attempted suicide, failed marriage, great passion and tragedy. Iris realizes she's always searching to fill the holes in her whole.

9780985173500. In August, 1964, a young U.S. Navy radio operator found himself in waters he had never heard of, participating in the expansion of a war in a nation he didn't know existed: Vietnam. What he learned from actions he witnessed and the classified messages he handled over the next 10 months left him shaken, disillusioned, and full of questions about America's responses to events in the Tonkin Gulf and South China Sea, including the rush to bomb North Vietnam and the Johnson Administration's decisions to vastly expand the presence of U.S. ground, air, and naval forces in Southeast Asia. Some within the U.S. 7th Fleet knew almost from the outset that the still-controversial "second attack" which triggered the 1964 Tonkin Gulf Resolution did not involve North Vietnamese PT boats firing on U.S. Navy destroyers in pitch-dark seas. What it did involve, others have since shown, was something simpler and much stranger. This is one sailor's memories of being present at the ragged beginnings of a long conflict that ultimately failed and cost 58,000 American lives.

God on the Hill: Temple Poems from Tirupati, Vlcru Nryaarvu , 2005, 0195182847, 9780195182842. The devotional poems of Annamaya (15th century) are perhaps the most accessible and universal achievement of classical Telugu literature, one of the major literatures of pre-modern India. Annamaya effectively created and popularized a new genre, the short padam song, which spread throughout the Telugu and Tamil regions and would become an important vehicle for the composition of Carnatic music - the classical music of South India. In this book, Rao and Shulman offer translations of 150 of Annamaya's poems. All of them are addressed to the god associated with the famous temple city of Tirupati-Annamaya's home-a deity who is sometimes referred to as "god on the hill" or "lord of the seven hills." The poems are couched in a simple and accessible language invented by Annamaya for this purpose. Rao and Shulman's elegant and lyrical modern translations of these beautiful and moving verses are wonderfully readable as poetry in their own right, and will be of great interest to scholars of South Indian history and culture.

Core French Reproducibles and Activities is a resource designed to help teachers teach beginner level French to intermediate students. The book is arranged into eight units consisting of several thematically linked sections. The first five units also contain a cumulative check-up. Each section has a set of topical vocabulary words to focus the student learning. There are then some practice exercises to help students become more familiar with the meanings of the vocabulary words. Each section concludes with some suggested individual, group, or whole class activities to round out the learning. These activities occasionally involve internet research, using various media, or working on a homework project.

Just a Little Bit More: The Heart of a Mentor, Dr Bob Abramson , 2010, 0984344306, 9780984344307. "Just a Little Bit More - The Heart of a Mentor" is a book about the principles and dynamics of biblical mentoring. It is the product of more than 20 years of ministry. It recounts Dr. Abramson's mentoring experiences from Asia, the South Pacific and across America. It will equip you with greater competence, skill and motivation to mentor others. Mentoring, in its essence, is a process of loving and nurturing the people God assigns us along the way to our destinies, and theirs. These are divine appointments and purposeful connections, marked with divinely intended results. The mentoring process is birthed out of our recognition and acceptance that we have come upon somebody God asks us to connect with for a season, so He can change and equip them for an eternity. If we understand and execute this process correctly, it becomes a two-way street. As we teach and train them, the experience becomes our teacher as well as theirs. "Just a Little Bit More" will introduce you to many people God has given Dr. Abramson and his wife Nancy to mentor. The book will present you with the mentoring dynamics and principles gleaned through their experiences. It is intended to be more than a "how to" manual on mentoring. It is a collection of brief narratives, illustrating the grace of God at work through His loving, purposeful intervention in the lives of His people. He will use our mentoring relationships to turn the blank canvasses of many lives into colorful, significant portraits of fully functioning people who find their strength and purpose in Him. You will learn from the people you meet on the pages of this book. God will speak through them, not just about mentoring, but about His graceful intervention and favor toward those who dedicate themselves to following Him. You will read about the victories of people who found His strength in their weakness, His purpose in their willingness, and His love in the lives of those they touched.

The Historic Trial that Divided the Women of America Pearl, a stunning flapper in the Roaring Twenties, has danced for Rudolph Valentino, and enjoys the company of any man she chooses--until she decides to carry on an affair with Morgan, a married rural man with two children. Morgan's wife, Ina, disguised in borrowed clothing, guns Pearl down when she finds her on a midnight train with her arms around Morgan. The next day, Pearl's body is placed on public display for a town of strangers, and her killer is applauded in the streets by hundreds of country women. A "dream team" of defense attorneys is hired, and the stage is set for a sensational jazz era clash between two distinct views of a woman's role in modern society--that of the "virtuous" rural mother dressed in gingham and the "scarlet woman" from the city who would deny a mother and her babies the necessities of life. Should death ever be the price for adultery? That is the question the jury-and readers-are faced with in THE UNWRITTEN LAW.
