The value of play, Perry Else , 2009, 0826448097, 9780826448095. Most recognize that play is good for children yet we are confused by the dangers we see in the wider environment and so often restrict children's natural opportunities to play. As a result children's play has gained increased awareness amongst a variety of professions working with children, many of whom have different approaches to play and children. The Value of Play is explained using the Integral Play Framework, a model that draws together differing views on the purpose of play and its various types. These ideas are then used as the basis for chapters of the book: showing why playing is valuable to our bodies, our minds, and culturally and socially. There are examples of how play can be supported both informally and formally, at home and in children's settings. As well as theory, there are relevant, practical approaches for play activities, and observations of playing children to help explain the processes. Key questions are asked at times to help those who may be engaged in a more reflective form of practice. The Value of Play has been written to be accessible by a broad spectrum of readers, including all those training to work with children; those specifically engaged in playwork as a field in itself; and those on Childhood Studies programmes.

Big Women, Fay Weldon , 2012, 0007400276, 9780007400270. This is the story of women when they were wimmin: of that blossoming in seventies England of hope, freedom, equality and sisterhood; and of what happened next... Big Women is the tale of Medusa, a feminist publishing house founded one balmy evening at sedate Chalcot Crescent in a flurry of argument, peace-making and naked dancing. The novel is everything and more we expect from Fay Weldon, not just a work of literature but an energising drop into the pool of social complacency a feisty, no-holds-barred portrait of four womens attempts and failures to create a new life. Theres Layla, noisy, darlingish, high-profile. Alice, the academic, the philosopher, the eventually Glastonbury witch. Nancy: boring, sensible Nancy, the only one with any business nous. And Stephanie, the one who leaves her husband and children to embrace politics, men, other women... Their stories are intertwined with twenty years of all our lives blissful, rage-filled, treacherous, redemptive.

Based on three of the best known and heralded theorists (Dewey, Vygotsky, and Piaget), this comprehensive resource tool illustrates and demonstrates how teachers can plan meaningful learning experiences that lead to reading and writing. The content and concepts included in the book are based on those found in the joint position statement of the International Reading Association and the National Association for the Education of the Young Child. Readers will feel confident that they know how to plan activities that hold meaning for childrenactivities that will actually keep children's minds and bodies engaged and will lead to productive learning of language and development of literacy. A separate chapter on Second Language, along with chapter-by-chapter features, brings learners up-to-date on this increasingly prevalent demographic issue in education, and prepares them to address it in every aspect of their instructional planning and delivery. Other key chapter topics include building connections to home and community: extending active literacy experiences, and the form and structure of language learning. This Birth Place of Souls: The Civil War Nursing Diary of Harriet Eaton, Jane E. Schultz , 2010, 0199780730, 9780199780730. After the battle of Antietam in 1862, Harriet Eaton traveled to Virginia from her home in Portland, Maine, to care for soldiers in the Army of the Potomac. Portland's Free Street Baptist Church, with liberal ties to abolition, established the Maine Camp Hospital Association and made the widowed Eaton its relief agent in the field. One of many Christians who believed that patriotic activism could redeem the nation, Eaton quickly learned that war was no respecter of religious principles. Doing the work of nurse and provisioner, Eaton tended wounded men and those with smallpox and diphtheria during two tours of duty. Eaton struggled with the disruptions of transience, scarcely sleeping in the same place twice, but found the politics of daily toil even more challenging. Conflict between Eaton and coworker Isabella Fogg erupted almost immediately over issues of propriety. Though Eaton praised some of the surgeons with whom she worked, she labeled others charlatans whose neglect had deadly implications for the rank and file. If she saw villainy, she also saw opportunities to convert soldiers and developed an intense spiritual connection with a private, which appears to have led to a postwar liaison. Published here for the first time, the uncensored nursing diary is a rarity among medical accounts of the war, showing Eaton to be an astute observer of human nature and not as straight-laced as we might have thought. This edition includes an extensive introduction by the editor, transcriptions of relevant letters and newspaper articles, and a comprehensive biographical dictionary of the people mentioned in the diary.

Close Listening: Poetry and the Performed Word, Charles Bernstein , 1998, 0195109929, 9780195109924. Close Listening brings together seventeen strikingly original essays, especially written for this volume, on the poetry reading, the sound of poetry, and the visual performance of poetry. While the performance of poetry is as old as poetry itself, critical attention to modern and postmodern poetry performance has been surprisingly slight. This volume, featuring work by critics and poets such as Marjorie Perloff, Susan Stewart, Johanna Drucker, Dennis Tedlock, and Susan Howe, is the first comprehensive introduction to the ways in which twentieth-century poetry has been practiced as a performance art. From the performance styles of individual poets and types of poetry to the relation of sound to meaning, from historical and social approaches to poetry readings to new imaginations of prosody, the entries gathered here investigate a compelling range of topics for anyone interested in poetry. Taken together, these essays encourage new forms of "close listenings"--not only to the printed text of poems but also to tapes, performances, and other expressions of the sounded and visualized word. The time is right for such a volume: with readings, spoken word events, and the Web gaining an increasing audience for poetry, Close Listening opens a number of new avenues for the critical discussion of the sound and performance of poetry.

Triple Crossing: A Novel, Sebastian Rotella , 2011, 0316175463, 9780316175463. Valentine Pescatore, a volatile rookie Border Patrol agent, is trying to survive the trenches of The Line in San Diego. He gets in trouble and finds himself recruited as an informant by Isabel Puente, a beautiful U.S. agent investigating a powerful Mexican crime family. As he infiltrates the mafia, Pescatore falls in love with Puente. But he clashes with her ally Leo Mendez, chief of a Tijuana anti-corruption unit. Politically charged violence escalates, plunging Pescatore into the lawless "triple border" region of South America and a showdown full of bloodshed and betrayal. Writing with rapid-fire intensity, Sebastian Rotella captures the despair and intrigue of the borderlands, where enforcing the law has become an act of subversion. TRIPLE CROSSING is an explosive and riveting debut.

Institutional Terrorism: Systemic Irs Abuse Designed To Cheat Innocent Taxpayers, Alexander Howard , 2004, 0963786326, 9780963786326. Institutional Terrorism: Systemic IRS Abuse Designed to Cheat Innocent Taxpayers, by Alexander Howard, is an expose which highlights the stories of seven families who are being terrorized by IRS agents. This is Howard's fourth, non-fiction book which contains startling evidence from IRS official administrative records. Howard, a well-known income tax consultant; has been featured several times on national television shows to empower the public with the powers of integrity as tools to defeat corruption, conspiracies and cover-ups. When the IRS has not been able to honestly defeat Howard's clients, the agency has dishonestly sanctioned abuses designed to cheat these honest American citizens. In doing so, these IRS agents blatantly violated Federal Trade Commission antitrust and Internal Revenue Service tax rules. Howard presses the fight by revealing the stonewalling, psychological greed and abuses of power to the offending IRS agent's children, spouses, parents, friends, constituents of the related public servants, politicians and the public. The real heroes in Institutional Terrorism: Systemic IRS Abuse Designed to Cheat Innocent Taxpayers are the courageous taxpayers who continue to fight the antitrust, income tax law violations and institutional terrorism by mendacious IRS agents other public servants and politicians.

Diagnosis and Management of Metastatic Malignant Disease of Unknown Primary Origin: Full Guideline, National

Collaborating Centre for Cancer \(Great Britain\), National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence \(Great Britain\) , 2010, 0955826543, 9780955826542. The term "cancer of unknown primary" refers to a condition in which a patient has metastatic malignancy without an identified primary source. This is a very heterogeneous disease in which the type of tumour, the extent of spread, and the outcome of treatment all vary widely. When categorising patients with cancer of unknown primary, one important factor initially considered is the cell type of origin of the metastatic disease. The majority of patients have malignancy which appears to derive from epithelial cells, and hence are regarded as having carcinoma of unknown primary. Patients with tumours of non-epithelial lineage (melanoma, sarcoma, lymphoma, germ-cell) form a distinct and important minority, since subsequent management can often be satisfactorily undertaken even in the absence of an identifiable primary source. Such patients are not considered in this guideline, since their care is adequately defined in existing guidelines for their specific tumour type. The term "carcinoma of unknown primary" (CUP) is used henceforth to refer to those patients with metastatic malignancy of epithelial, neuroendocrine or undifferentiated lineage whose investigation and management is considered within the scope of this guideline.

Corruption is a complex crime which can extend across international borders and has the potential to cause serious damage to government, business and other aspects of economic and social life. This publication contains the text of the draft Corruption Bill together with the accompanying explanatory notes. Existing laws on corruption date back as far as 1889, and this Bill seeks to modernise and simplify the law, based upon the recommendations of a Law Commission report. It brings together all offences into a single statute, as well as amending the civil law to enable ratification of the Council of Europe Civil Law Convention on Corruption. The Bill is in three parts which deal with: definitions relating to corruption offences and the provision to set aside parliamentary privilege; and limitation periods for civil actions relating to corrupt conduct. Parts 1 and 2 of the Bill relate to England, Wales and Northern Ireland only; clauses 29 and 30 extend to Scotland only.

Organized by learning goals for teachers and students, responsive to ISTE newest standards, and designed to foster interactivity, Transforming Learning with New Technologies models how to plan lessons that integrate computers, Internet-based technologies, and emerging Web 2.0 tools to transform teaching and learning across the K-12 curriculum. This brief, practical full-color text introduces teachers to the multiple ways that technology integration can lead to highly interactive, inquiry-based teaching and learning experiences. While guiding teachers to incorporate technology into every aspect of their professional work and classroom instruction, including lesson planning, student assessment, curriculum development, academic research, and professional networking, the text highlights more than 70 free (or low-cost), easy-to-use computer and Internet technologies to achieve their goals. The highly-lauded Technology Transformation Lesson Plans provide examples across grade levels and subject areas that demonstrate how technology transforms lessons by showing minimal technology use juxtaposed with fully-infused technology options that align to learning goals of each lesson.. The text's interactive learning experiences for readers offer thought-provoking questions, lesson plan templates, vignettes, and links to assignments on MyEducationKit, Pearson's premiere online resource with video, tutorials, podcasts, rubrics and checklists, web activities, practice tests, and activities to build teaching skills and dispositions. Explore Sample Chapters and more at www.pearsonhighered.com/maloy1einfo. MyEducationKit website, referenced in the margins of the text, includes assignments with video, tutorials, podcasts, rubrics and checklists, web activities, practice tests, and activities to build teaching skills and dispositions--all relating to key concepts and providing students with in-depth experience while reinforcing content. MyEducationKit is a dynamic website that connects the concepts addressed in the text with effective teaching practice. Plus, it's easy to use and integrate into assignments and courses. Whenever the MyEducationKit logo appears in the text, follow the simple instructions to access a variety of multimedia resources geared to meet the diverse teaching and learning needs of instructors and students. Here are just a few of the features that are available with this text

- o Study Plan A MyEducationKit Study Plan is a multiple-choice assessment with feedback tied to chapter objectives. A well-designed Study Plan offers multiple opportunities to fully master required course content as identified by the objectives in each chapter:
- o Chapter Objectives identify the learning outcomes for the chapter and give students targets to shoot for as they read and study.
- o Multiple-Choice Assessments assess mastery of the content. These assessments are mapped to chapter objectives, and students can take the multiple choice quiz as many times as they want. Not only do these quizzes provide overall scores for each objective, but they also explain why responses to particular items are correct or incorrect.
- o Study Material: Review and Enrichment gives students a deeper understanding of what they do and do not know related to chapter content with text excerpts connected to chapter objectives.

Assignments and Activities Designed to save instructors preparation time and enhance student understanding, these assignable exercises show concepts in action (through video, cases, and/or student and teacher artifacts). They help students synthesize and apply concepts and strategies they read about in the book.

- o Videos. The authentic classroom videos in MyEducationKit show how real teachers handle actual classroom situations. Discussing and analyzing these videos not only deepens understanding of concepts presented in the text, but also builds skill in observing children and classrooms.
- o Web Links. On MyEducationKit you don't need to search for the sites that connect to the topics covered in your chapter. Here, you can explore web sites that are important in the field and that give you perspective on the concepts covered in your text.

Video Tutorials Twenty new Camtasia tutorials have been added to this text's MyEducationKit. These tutorials include step-by-step, hands-on exercises that develop proficiency with a variety of current educational technology tools. Tutorials include hardware and software products. Luz de vitral es una novela de viajes, un viaje de Paris a Buenos Aires y viajes en colectivo en la ciudad. ("colectivo," nombre que dan los portenos al autobus, homonimo de "colectivo" -de una comunidad-). El narrador de Luz de vitral vuelve a Buenos Aires despues de treinta anos de ausencia. Se pregunta por que vine? que busco en el pasado? Es portador de una historia singular en resonancia con la historia de un pais atravesado por dictaduras y crisis. Va a la antigua casa de Flores, que ya es otra, recorre el barrio, encuentra una realidad empobrecida, deteriorada, que contrasta con los recuerdos del pais de su ninez, cuando creia vivir en un mundo seguro y estable. Su mundo tenia un borde, lo incierto estaba mas alla. Hoy lo envuelve una realidad social cambiada, tiene rostro de miseria y profundas desigualdades. Que hechos historicos, sociales, culturales, tuvieron ese efecto arrasador? Irse es el sueno de todos, dice. Luz de vitral es tambien una novela de escrituras. El narrador visita los trazos de su historia y encuentra trazos olvidados. Reconstruye el linaje paterno e interroga la transmision. Dice/escrive su novela familiar. Nos convoca a varias formas de escritura: suenos, notas, cine y los relatos de la hermana. En el final de la novela dibuja/escrive el plano de la antigua casa. Quizas la escena del dibujo anticipa la escritura literaria, su novela por venir. Volvera a hacer una escritura? Dejara sus trazos en el papel?

+++++ Oscar Yujnovsky nacio en Argentina, obtuvo el PhD en la Universidad de Berkeley (USA) y en 1989 se instalo en Nueva York donde vive y trabaja. Ambiguities of Domination: Politics, Rhetoric, and Symbols in Contemporary Syria, Lisa Wedeen , 1999, 0226877884, 9780226877884. In Syria, the image of President Hafiz al-Asad is everywhere. In newspapers, on television, and during orchestrated spectacles Asad is praised as the "father," the "gallant knight," even the country's "premier pharmacist." Yet most Syrians, including those who create the official rhetoric, do not believe its claims. Why would a regime spend scarce resources on a cult whose content is patently spurious? Wedeen concludes that Asad's cult acts as a disciplinary device, generating a politics of public dissimulation in which citizens act as if they revered their leader. By inundating daily life with tired symbolism, the regime exercises a subtle, yet effective form of power. The cult works to enforce obedience, induce complicity, isolate Syrians from one another, and set guidelines for public speech and behavior. Wedeen's ethnographic research demonstrates how Syrians recognize the disciplinary aspects of the cult and seek to undermine them. Provocative and original, Ambiguities of Domination is a significant contribution to comparative politics, political theory, and cultural studies.

Genghis Khan: The World Conqueror, Volume 1 , Sam Djang , 2011, 0984618716, 9780984618712. This epic novel, Genghis Khan, about the world conqueror, was written after eight years of intensive research. During this period of time the author, Sam Djang made numerous trips to Mongolia, Russia, China, and related countries and read hundreds of articles and rare books in the libraries of those countries and beyond. This book (volume 1) was written in the form of a historical novel, and yet 90 percent of its contents are based on actual research. The author believes that his book covers many facts that most of historians have failed to see due to their lack of understanding of the unique cultural, social, political, historical, and geographical background of the people of Genghis Khan. The Mongol empire still remains the largest empire in human history, and its impact has been enormous, including cultural exchange between the East and the West, which has spurred overall human civilization.

Making and Selling Cars: Innovation and Change in the U.S. Automotive Industry, James M. Rubenstein , 2001, 0801867142, 9780801867149. From the creation of fast food, to the design of cities, to the character of our landscape, the automobile has shaped nearly every aspect of modern American life. In fact, the U.S. motor vehicle industry is the largest manufacturing industry in the world. James Rubenstein documents the story of the automotive industry... which despite its power, is an industry constantly struggling to redefine itself and assure its success. Making and Selling Cars: Innovation and Change in the U.S. Automotive Industry shows how this industry made adjustments and fostered innovations in both production and marketing in order to remain a viable force throughout the twentieth-century. Rubenstein builds his study of the American auto industry with care, taking the reader through this quintessentially modern history of production and consumption. Avoiding jargon while never over simplifying, Rubenstein gives a detailed and straightforward account of both the production and merchandising of cars. We learn how the industry began and about its methods for building cars and the modern American marketplace. Along the way there were many missteps and challenges -- the Edsel, the fuel crisis, and the ascendancy of Japanese cars in the 1980s. The industry met these types of problems with new techniques and approaches. To demonstrate this, Rubenstein gives the reader examples of how the auto industry used to work, which he alternates with chapters showing how the industry has reinvented itself. Making and Selling Cars explains why the U.S. automotive industry has been and remains a vigorous shaper of the American economy.

The Fateful Hoaxing of Margaret Mead: A Historical Analysis of Her Samoan Research, Derek Freeman , 1999, 0813336937, 9780813336930. For most of the twentieth century, Margaret Mead's renowned book Coming of Age in Samoa has validated an antievolutionary anthropological paradigm that assumes that culture is the overwhelming determinant of human behavior. Her account of female adolescent sexuality in Samoa initiated a career that led to Margaret Mead becoming indisputably the most publicly celebrated scientist in America. But what if her study wasn't all it appeared to be? What if, having neglected the problem she had been sent to investigate, she relied at the last moment on the tales of two traveling companions who jokingly misled her about the sexual behavior of Samoan girls? What if her famous study was based on a hoax? In The Fateful Hoaxing of Margaret Mead, Derek Freeman addresses these issues in a detailed historical analysis of Margaret Mead's Samoan researches and of her training in New York by Franz Boas and Ruth Benedict. By examining hitherto unpublished correspondence between Mead, her mentor Franz Boas and others as well as the sworn testimony of Faapuaa Faam, one of Mead's traveling companions of 1926, Freeman provides compelling evidence that one of the most influential anthropological studies of the twentieth century was unwittingly based on the mischievous joking of the investigators' informants. But The Fateful Hoaxing of Margaret Mead goes beyond a historical account of how the hoax took place; it is an examination of how Mead's Boasian training set her up to be hoaxed and set others up to accept her conclusions. The book is more than a correction of scientific error: It is a crucial step toward rethinking the foundations of social science and the overly relativistic worldview of much of the modern world.

This is the first complete account of the U.S. Seventh Army, which fought its way through Sicily and Southern France to the last Nazi stronghold in Bavaria. The desperate struggle to free Europe from the Nazi scourge was fought on many fronts, but never before has the story of America's Seventh Army been fully explored. Now bestselling author Charles Whiting tells the stories of the commanders Patton, Truscott, Patch and the average Joes (including Audie Murphy, the most decorated soldier of the war), from their first battles in Sicily to their capture of Hitler's Eagle's Nest. This important new book finally balances the record of U.S. fighting men in World War II.

Literature and Gender introduces students to gender by having them read, discuss, and write about gender-related topics, which are often connected to issues of race, ethnicity, and class. The book features contemporary as well as classic literature with a global perspective. This literature is arranged under five primary themes: Femininities, Masculinities, Sexualities; Ethnicities and Identities, and Roles of Women and Men in Society. Each section is introduced by broad overviews of the subject, authors biographies, short introductions to each work, the works themselves, and selections of study questions. Finally, the anthology also helps students increase their abilities to read critically and thoughtfully and to experience the readings in relation to their own lives and personal issues.

The Plundered Planet: Why We Must--and How We Can--Manage Nature for Global Prosperity, Paul Collier , 2010, 0199752893, 9780199752898. Paul Collier's The Bottom Billion was greeted as groundbreaking when it appeared in 2007, winning the Estoril Distinguished Book Prize, the Arthur Ross Book Award, and the Lionel Gelber Prize. Now, in The Plundered Planet, Collier builds upon his renowned work on developing countries and the world's poorest populations to confront the global mismanagement of natural resources. Proper stewardship of natural assets and liabilities is a matter of planetary urgency: natural resources have the potential either to transform the poorest countries or to tear them apart, while the carbon emissions and agricultural follies of the developed world could further impoverish them. The Plundered Planet charts a course between unchecked profiteering on the one hand and environmental romanticism on the other to offer realistic and sustainable solutions to dauntingly complex issues. Grounded in a belief in the power of informed citizens, Collier proposes a series of international standards that would help poor countries rich in natural assets better manage those resources, policy changes that would raise world food supply, and a clear-headed approach to climate change that acknowledges the benefits of industrialization while addressing the need for alternatives to carbon trading. Revealing how all of these forces interconnect, The Plundered Planet charts a way forward to avoid the mismanagement of the natural world that threatens our future.

Don't You Love Me Mummy?, Heather Mackay , 2011, 0986468029, 9780986468025. Child abuse is intergenerational and it won't go away of its own accord. Utilising the research methods found in Community Psychology, members of a community can take responsibility for what is going on in their environs. This form of research identifies areas within a community that need strengthening, it implements plans to fix those weaknesses, and creates change before serious problems arise. Community psychology believes that changes in the environment will create changes in the individual and is more likely to lead to sustainable change because it is organised by the community members. Don't you love me Mummy? considers the two usual forms of intervention - individual interventions that identify at risk children and intervention through law change. In both instances, children usually have been hurt before anything gets done. Along with education and support, further protective measures must be implemented if any intervention is to succeed. Community psychology is about defining ideals in communities, and through community participation and partnerships, it makes what was deemed to be an ideal a reality. In a community, people generally turn a blind eye towards things they don't want to see, mainly because they cannot change them or they fear the consequences of making a complaint, thereby creating the belief that the community is powerless. This belief will change when members begin to take responsibility for their environment. Included in the book are six research studies into childhood abuse. Modern scientific research coupled with psychological research is beginning to demonstrate to parents and caregivers that some children are genetically predisposed towards anti-social violent behaviour. For example, childhood physical abuse appears to trigger that predisposition in boys whose brains produce lower levels of AMOA. Another study suggests that 19% to 25% of antisocial behaviour displayed by a child can be attributed to genetics. Dont you love me Mummy? suggests ways we can fix communities and explains why we should.

Devil's Tango: How I Learned the Fukushima Step by Step, Cecile Pineda , 2012, 1609402340, 9781609402341. Devil's Tango is a one-woman whirlwind tour of the nuclear industry, seen through the lens of the industrial and planetary crisis unfolding at Fukushima Daiichi. As much personal journal as investigative journalism, the author's journal entries trace her own and the country's evolution of consciousness during the first year following the diaster at Fukushima Daiichi. Pineda keeps track day-by-day of worsening developments at Fukushima Daiichi, and records the daily evolution of her perceptions. Often poetic in tone, philosophic in scope, her reflections are peppered with dramatic monologues, day-to-day reportage, philosophical speculations, meditations, deep song (canto hondo) and occasional flights of fancy, a monoplay, a grand guignol. There is no other book quite like it. John Nichols calls it an "astonishing anatomy of he Fukushima Daiichi nuclear disaster," ..". a revelation, and a searing denunciation of the worldwide nuclear energy industry."
