

Ordering the City: Land Use, Policing, and the Restoration of Urban America, Nicole Stelle Garnett , 2010, 0300124945, 9780300124941. This timely and important book highlights the multiple, often overlooked, and frequently misunderstood connections between land use and development policies and policing practices. In order to do so, the book draws upon multiple literatures?especially law, history, economics, sociology, and psychology?as well as concrete case studies to better explore how these policy arenas, generally treated as completely unrelated, intersect and conflict. Nicole Stelle Garnett identifies different types of urban ?disorder, some that may be precursors to serious crime and social deviancy, others that may be benign or even contribute positively to urban vitality. The book's unique approach?to analyze city policies through the lens of order and disorder?provides a clearer understanding, generally, of how cities work (and why they sometimes do not), and specifically, of what disorder is and how it affects city life.

Gringos Across the Amazon, Jo Morgan , 2011, 0986457450, 9780986457456. Winding through the steamy jungle, taking many unexpected twists and turns, narrowing in places and speeding up, spreading out in others and slowing to a walking pace - [this] is Gareth and Joanne Morgan's latest ... motorcycling adventure. Climb aboard and hold on tight as they close the loop on the South American continent riding Brazil, across (and up) the vast Amazon River, into the steamy equatorial jungles of Guyana, and out into the seamy dictatorial climes of Colombia and Venezuela. Then it's hit the road for El Norte, heading up the isthmus of Central America through Panama, Honduras, Guatemala, Nicaragua and Mexico. Enjoy with our intrepid duo the sights and sounds, the places and the people, and endure the rigours and the risks, the mishaps and misadventure of expedition motorcycling.

The Air Force has long recognized the importance of selecting the most qualified officers possible. For more than 60 years, it has relied on the Air Force Officer Qualifying Test (AFOQT) as one measure of those qualifications. A variety of concerns have been raised about whether the AFOQT is biased, too expensive, or even valid for predicting officer success. The authors conducted a literature search to answer these concerns. They conclude that the AFOQT is a good selection test that predicts important Air Force outcomes and is not biased against minorities or women. The Air Force would not benefit by replacing the AFOQT with the SAT primarily because it would still have to administer subtests that measure specific aptitudes and knowledge needed for predicting pilot and combat systems officer success. However, other valid selection tools, such as personality tests, could be used to complement the AFOQT.

Thanks to television, the internet, and the incredible popularity of the World Series of Poker in Las Vegas, when Kill Phil was first published in 2006, tournament poker had become the richest sport in the world. The problem was that no-limit hold 'em was dominated by a handful of experienced and skilled professional players. Kill Phil turned the tables on the pros by introducing a strategy that allowed even an absolute novice to compete against the best players in the world. The Kill Phil strategy remains highly effective when used in confrontations with even the world's best players, but tournament play is evolving. This revised edition reflects the new trends in tournament poker by refining the use of the all-in move and providing adaptations that take into account the new style of hyper-aggressive play. At its core, though, Kill Phil remains what it's been from the start -- the best method possible for entering the exciting and potentially lucrative poker-tournament arena. As a special bonus, this new edition contains the complete set of strategies formatted as they appear on the Kill Phil strategy cards.

Japanese American Internment During World War II: A History and Reference Guide, Wendy L. Ng , 2002, 031331375X, 9780313313752. The internment of thousands of Japanese Americans during World War II is one of the most shameful episodes in American history. This history and reference guide will help students and other interested readers to understand the history of this action and its reinterpretation in recent years, but it will also help readers to understand the Japanese American wartime experience through the words of those who were interned. Why did the U.S. government take this extraordinary action? How was the evacuation and resettlement handled? How did Japanese Americans feel on being asked to leave their homes and live in what amounted to concentration camps? How did they respond, and did they resist? What developments have taken place in the last twenty years that have reevaluated this wartime action? A variety of materials is provided to assist readers in understanding the internment experience. Six interpretive essays examine key aspects of the event and provide new interpretations based on the most recent scholarship. Essays include:

- A short narrative history of the Japanese in America before World War II
- The evacuation
- Life within barbed wire-the assembly and relocation centers
- The question of loyalty-Japanese Americans in the military and draft resisters
- Legal challenges to the evacuation and internment
- After the war-resettlement and redress

A chronology of events, 26 biographical profiles of important figures, the text of 10 key primary documents--from Executive Order 9066, which authorized the internment camps, to first-person accounts of the internment experience--a glossary of terms, and an annotative bibliography of recommended print sources and web sites provide ready reference value. Every library should update its resources on World War II with this history and reference guide.

Souls & Bodies, David Lodge , 1980, 0140130187, 9780140130188. The ups, downs, and exploits of a group of British Catholics--for whom the sexual revolution came a little later than it did for everybody else... In this bracing satire, a group of university students make their way through the fifties and into the turbulent sixties and seventies. We first meet Dennis, Michael, Ruth, Polly, and the others at the altar rail of Our Lady and St. Jude, but soon enough they get caught up in the alternately hilarious and poignant preoccupations of work, marriage, sex, and babies--not always in that order. A satirical comedy in the tradition of Evelyn Waugh, Souls and Bodies take an unblinking look at the sexual revolution and the contemporaneous upheavals in the Catholic Church. The result is as unsettlingly true as it is funny.

Window Treatments Idea Book, Sue Sampson, Ellen DeLucia , 2006, 1561588199, 9781561588190. One of the first things you do when you remodel or move into a new home is change the curtains. After all, new window treatments easily, quickly, and inexpensively transform a room. They turn an outdated room into one you want to spend time in, and they make a cold space feel warm and inviting. In the style of the best-selling Idea Books, Window Treatments Idea Book offers the latest ideas for decorating all types of windows, from standard to custom. More than 350 photos provide inspiration for all rooms in the house, from the kitchen to the bathroom, bedroom to family room and study. Recognizing that consumers also want to make easy enhancements to readily available window treatments and hardware, the inspiration is peppered with practical advice on how to quickly modify off-the-shelf window treatments and design tricks for hanging them. The breadth of information makes this book the one source homeowners need when picking out window treatments. The authors' combined years of experience have allowed them to select photos of the most popular window treatment styles as well as to provide ideas for dealing with challenging windows--bays, bows, and the like. Unique features of the book include showing one window treatment style in three different looks and quick and easy ideas for instant style. Whether you're looking to update an existing space or are starting from scratch in a new home or newly designed addition, you'll find all the inspiration and know-how you need to create the windows of your dreams. Window Treatments Idea Book should be a goldmine for consumers because it shows so many styles of window treatments, particularly for large, odd-shaped, and custom windows so prevalent today, in photos. What the reader gets is a wide range of window treatments in the context of every room in the house. There is also a one-page reference in the front of the book that lists each room in the house with the page number of treatments that are shown in those room contexts.

Applied Linear Algebra and Matrix Analysis, ISSN 0172-6056, Thomas S. Shores , 2007, 0387331956, 9780387331959.

This new book offers a fresh approach to matrix and linear algebra by providing a balanced blend of applications, theory, and computation, while highlighting their interdependence. Intended for a one-semester course, Applied Linear Algebra and Matrix Analysis places special emphasis on linear algebra as an experimental science, with numerous examples, computer exercises, and projects. While the flavor is heavily computational and experimental, the text is independent of specific hardware or software platforms. Throughout the book, significant motivating examples are woven into the text, and each section ends with a set of exercises. The student will develop a solid foundation in the following topics

- *Gaussian elimination and other operations with matrices
- *basic properties of matrix and determinant algebra
- *standard Euclidean spaces, both real and complex
- *geometrical aspects of vectors, such as norm, dot product, and angle
- *eigenvalues, eigenvectors, and discrete dynamical systems
- *general norm and inner-product concepts for abstract vector spaces

For many students, the tools of matrix and linear algebra will be as fundamental in their professional work as the tools of calculus; thus it is important to ensure that students appreciate the utility and beauty of these subjects as well as the mechanics. By including applied mathematics and mathematical modeling, this new textbook will teach students how concepts of matrix and linear algebra make concrete problems workable. Thomas S. Shores is Professor of Mathematics at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, where he has received awards for his teaching. His research touches on group theory, commutative algebra, mathematical modeling, numerical analysis, and inverse theory.

A Fan's Folklore: Six Seasons of Triumph, Tragedy and Tough Luck, Dean T. Hartwell , 2012, 1479352888, 9781479352883. My purpose in writing this book is to explain how watching professional sports has taught me lessons in ways I could not have understood otherwise. My sports enthusiasm took off on Sunday mornings in the autumn of the early 1970s. That was football day. There would be a game on at 10:00 AM (Pacific Time) and another one on at 1:00 PM. Then, to soften the blow of having to go to school the next day, there would be a game on Monday night. After the Super Bowl in January, I would go into a sports withdrawal until baseball season in April. This era of professional football and baseball represented the peak of what the sports have to offer. What made these games great is exactly what is missing from today's National Football League and Major League Baseball: A classic rivalry that fans could follow. Players rarely changed teams because there was no free agency then in either sport and trades did not happen too often. As a result, one could identify the best teams easily because they kept the same players and because they consistently made the playoffs. Anyone wanting to challenge the best teams had to earn their way to the playoffs. A focus on the game instead of hype. There was no ESPN or sports radio then. Now many fans get tired of all of the pre-game shows and just want to see the game. It was all about the teams rather than the players. Back then, I participated in a pool in which we chose the team winners of the games. Now fans follow fantasy sports players and care more about individual performance than what should matter most, team performances. Fans who watched the Pittsburgh Steelers play the Oakland Raiders or the New York Yankees play the Los Angeles Dodgers in the 1970s knew they were watching two heavyweights go at it and that they would get their money (or time)'s worth. We are still waiting for another epic rivalry and may never get it thanks to team expansion, free agency and the focus on individual performances which have detracted from the competitive team sports that football and baseball really are. I knew the history of these teams throughout the 1970s. My Raiders kept on finishing as the runners-up in the American Football Conference. My Dodgers kept on losing the World Series to the Oakland A's and the New York Yankees. From reading, watching games and catching clips of old games on commercials like Alcoa's Fantastic Finishes, I knew about big games involving the Raiders and Dodgers. These games and certain memorable plays in particular will be the focus of this book as it is through them that I learned lessons about life...The Raiders failed to make the playoffs in 1978 and 1979 and then traded quarterback and leader Ken Stabler to the Houston Oilers. Other stars, like Jack Tatum, Dave Casper, Phil Villapiano and Fred Biletnikoff, the heart of the team I loved, left the team around this time as well. Though the Raiders won the Super Bowl again for the 1980 and 1983 seasons, it was not the same. The feeling of excitement in watching the NFL had gone and would never return. As for the Dodgers, they went through a mediocre season in 1979, barely missed the playoffs in 1980 and finally won the World Series over the hated Yankees in 1981. I learned ultimately that winning was sweet, but that I learned more from losses. All of these games and my thoughts about them became a part of my own folklore. A folklore where my team's triumphs, tragedies and tough luck became interwoven with my own.

Music and Monumentality: Commemoration and Wonderment in Nineteenth Century Germany, Alexander Rehding , 2009, 0195385381, 9780195385380. A few weeks after the reunification of Germany, Leonard Bernstein raised his baton above the ruins of the Berlin Wall and conducted a special arrangement of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. The central statement of the work, that "all men will be brothers," captured the sentiment of those who saw a brighter future for the newly reunited nation. This now-iconic performance is a palpable example of "musical monumentality" - a significant concept which underlies our cultural and ideological understanding of Western art music since the nineteenth-century. Although the concept was first raised in the earliest years of musicological study in the 1930s, a satisfying exploration of the "monumental" in music has not yet been made. Alexander Rehding, one of the brightest young stars in the field, takes on the task in Resounding Monumentality, an elegant, thorough treatment that will serve as a foundation for all future discussion in this area. Rehding sets his focus on the main players of the period within the Austro-German repertoire - Beethoven, Liszt, Wagner, Brahms, Bruckner and Mahler - as he unpacks a two-fold definition of "musical monumentality." In the conventional sense, monumentality is a stylistic property often described as 'grand,' 'uplifting,' and 'sublime' and rife with overpowering brass chorales, sparkling string tremolos, triumphant fanfares, and glorious thematic returns. Yet Rehding sees the monumental in music performing a cultural task as well: it is employed in the service of establishing national identity. Through a clear theoretical lens, Rehding examines how grand sound effects are strategically employed with the view to overwhelming audiences, how supposedly immutable musical halls of fame change over time, how challenging musical works are domesticated, how the highest cultural achievements are presented in immediately consumable form-in a word, how German music emerges as a unified cultural and musical brand.

Making Capitalism Fit For Society, Colin Crouch , 2013, 0745672221, 9780745672229. Capitalism is the only complex system known to us that can provide an efficient and innovative economy, but the financial crisis has brought out the pernicious side of capitalism and shown that it remains dependent on the state to rescue it from its own deficiencies. Can capitalism be reshaped so that it is fit for society, or must we acquiesce to the neoliberal view that society will be at its best when markets are given free rein in all areas of life?The aim of this book is to show that the acceptance of capitalism and the market does not require us to accept the full neoliberal agenda of unrestrained markets, insecurity in our working lives, and neglect of the environment and of public services. In particular, it should not mean supporting the growing dominance of public life by corporate wealth. The worlds most successful mature economies are those that fully embrace both the discipline of the market and the need for protection against its negative outcomes. Indeed, a continuing, unresolved clash between these two forces is itself a major source of vitality and innovation for economy and society. But maintenance of that tension depends on the enduring strength of trade unions and other critical groups in civil society - a strength that is threatened by neoliberalisms increasingly intolerant onward march.Outlining the principles for a renewed and more assertive social democracy, this timely and important book shows that real possibilities exist to create a better world than that which is being offered by the wealthy elites who dominate our public and private lives.

Origins and Ends of the Mind: Philosophical Essays on Psychoanalysis, ISSN 1780-9371, Christian Kerlake, Ray Brassier , 2007, 905867617X, 9789058676177. Figures of the Unconscious 7In Origins and Ends of the Mind, a collection of theoretical essays by philosophers and psychoanalysts, encounters are arranged between Freudian and Lacanian psychoanalysis on the one hand and attachment theory, evolutionary psychology, and philosophy of mind on the other. Psychoanalysts claim that states of mind are inexorably structured by children's relationships with their parents. But the theory of attachment, evolutionary psychology, and contemporary philosophy of mind have all recently reintroduced the claim that mental development and pathology are to a large degree determined by innate factors. Today, Lacanian psychoanalysis most vigorously defends psychoanalytic theory and practice from the encroachment of the biomedical and cognitive sciences. However, classical psychoanalytic theories the Oedipus complex, primary and secondary repression, sexual difference, and the role of symbols are being dismantled and reintegrated into a new synthesis of biological and psychological theories.

The Frog And Prince: Secrets Of Positive Networking To Change Your Life, Darcy Rezac , 2003, 0973226501, 9780973226508. For too long networking has been viewed simply as an activity -- turning contacts into sales. It has not been treated as a serious management discipline. The Frog and Prince: Secrets of Positive Networking changes all that, and it does so in an understandable, entertaining and compelling way. In the tradition of "Who Moved My Cheese?", "Whale Done!" and "Fish!" The Frog and Prince teaches readers how to tap into their networks, and how to build and maintain powerful positive social networks -- for both business and life. In the Foreword, Thomas J. Donohue, President and CEO of U.S. Chamber of Commerce, (the largest business organization in the world with three million members) states: ""Watch out successful networkers -- your best-kept secrets are now out of the bag! You have Darcy Rezac to thank for this. In The Frog and Prince: Secrets of Positive Networking, Darcy opens up the world of networking and lays it out for all to see -- in an understandable, entertaining and compelling way. While Darcy draws on an age-old fairy tale for inspiration, his lessons could not be more timely. In a world full of change and uncertainty, the reach and durability of your personal network are more important than ever." The Frog and Prince is the first book on networking that marries the art and science of personal networking. Mark Buchanan's Nexus: "Small Worlds and the Groundbreaking Science of Networks (Norton), Albert-Laszlo Barabasi's "Linked: The New Science of Networks (Perseus), Duncan Watts's "Six Degrees (Norton) and Steve Strogatz's "SYNC: The Emerging Science of Spontaneous Order (Hyperion) are four recent successful books on the exciting new science of networks, including our social ones. These theoretical underpinnings form the basis of an eminently readable book on building and maintaining social networks -- The Frog and Prince: Secrets of Positive Networking.
