

Vietnamese Street Signs

The Vietnamese street signs remain a controversial topic in District F and as such I would like to clarify my opinion on the matter. The signs were hung up at the behest of the former council member and the International Management District (IMD) with approval of Mayor Parker. Our office received complaints that the signs cause confusion due to their size and position. Upon receiving the complaints, we immediately asked IMD to review the signs and make appropriate changes, which they did and voted on recently. We work with non-profits, City departments, the Alief Independent School District, and numerous private sectors to accomplish the tremendous task of improving the quality of life in our district. The IMD, like the plethora of organizations in our district, is their own separate entity from our Council Office and not under our management. Any and all complaints regarding the Vietnamese street signs, a project of the IMD, should be directed to the IMD board members. Our District's diversity is our strength and I look forward to a pragmatic compromise being reached on all sides.

Sincerely,

---

Steve Le, M.D.
Houston Council Member
District F