The Strage-BGU Award for Excellence in Cyber Security Research

Call for Nominations

The Strage Foundation and Ben-Gurion University of the Negev invite eligible candidates to submit nominations for the Strage-BGU Award for Excellence in Cyber Security Research.

The award, accompanied by a prize of $5,000, will be granted to a scientist for outstanding and potentially-influential scientific achievements in cyber security research during 2020. The list of achievements should include papers published during 2020 in leading journals and conferences, as well as books, patents and any other significant scientific accomplishment made during 2020. Special emphasis will be given to the potential of the nominee's scientific work to make a long-term impact on cyber security theory and practice. The award winner will be required to make a presentation summarizing his/her major findings at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev's main campus in Beer-Sheva on the day of the award ceremony.

Eligibility

Israeli scientists---faculty members from all universities and colleges, as well as researchers from governmental, non-governmental or private research institutions in Israel that hold a PhD degree are eligible to receive the award. Non-Israeli scientists who are permanently employed in Israel are also eligible. Israeli scientists on sabbatical or other international activities are eligible to receive the award, as long as they currently hold an official position in an Israeli university/college/ governmental institute or private research institute.
