Index gained 1% at 4,814.24. The BSE Auto Index closed at 4,591.92 down 0.4%.

FIIs were net sellers of Rs.170 cr in the cash markets and net buyers of Rs.1428 cr in the F&O markets on Tuesday. Mutual Funds were net sellers of Rs.105 cr. As per the provisional numbers, FIIs were net sellers of Rs.45 cr in the cash markets and net buyers of Rs.716 cr in the F&O markets on Wednesday. Markets in India could open flat to down following the profit taking mood elsewhere. After a two day rally we could see some profit taking in India as well ahead of the three day weekend. Last week we closed at 13072/3821. It is likely that we could close below those levels today and end up with a week-on-week loss. This could mean some more weakness in the coming week before things stabilise. Sugar stocks could come under profit taking after a good run over the past few sessions. M&M and Reliance Comm too look weak while Cement stocks seem to have some sort of a temporary bottom yesterday. Divis, BEL, FFlex, Reliance Inds, SAIL, Wockhardt and Zee Tele could do well. Auto, Banks and FMCG stocks could fall due to some profit taking sales.
