Subros reported poor performance for 2QFY2012 on account of lower volumes and higher interest cost. The company's volumes declined during the quarter, led by slowdown in the domestic passenger vehicle industry. We have revised our volume estimates downwards to factor in the sluggish demand scenario for passenger vehicles in 2HFY2012 due to high interest rates and rising fuel prices.
We recommend a Neutral rating on the stock.
Performance impacted by lower volumes and higher interest expense: For 2QFY2012, net sales registered a $13.6 \%$ yoy ( $4.6 \%$ qoq) decline to $₹ 240.5 \mathrm{cr}$, largely due to the $24 \%$ yoy $(9.8 \%$ qoq) decline in volumes. Volumes declined due to general slowdown in the passenger car industry and slowdown in volumes of its major clients, Maruti Suzuki and Tata Motors. Average net realization, however, grew by $13.8 \%$ yoy ( $5.7 \% \mathrm{qoq}$ ), arresting the further top-line decline. Operating margin witnessed an expansion of 116 bp yoy to $7.9 \%$, led by a 716 bp yoy fall in raw-material expenses. On the other hand, a 279 bp and 322 bp yoy increase in other expenditure and staff cost restricted further yoy margin expansion. Sequentially, operating margin contracted by 202bp yoy because of the sharp increase in staff cost. Net profit registered a substantial decline of $35.9 \%$ yoy $(61 \% \mathrm{qOq})$ to ₹ 3.1 cr mainly due to the $44.2 \%$ yoy increase in interest expense.

Outlook and valuation: We estimate Subros to register a decline in its volume in FY2012E, led by slowdown in the passenger vehicle industry. Further, higher interest expense on account of increasing debt levels will negatively affect the company's bottom line. At ₹27, the stock is trading at 8.2 x FY2012E and $6.6 x$ FY2013E earnings. We recommend a Neutral rating on the stock.

Net sales decline by $13.6 \%$ yoy, led by a $24 \%$ yoy decline in volumes: For 2QFY2012, the company's top line registered a $13.6 \%$ yoy ( $4.6 \%$ qoq) decline to ₹ 240.5 cr , largely due to a $24 \%$ yoy ( $9.8 \%$ qoq) decline in volumes. Lower volumes can be attributed to the general slowdown in the passenger car industry and slowdown in volumes of its major clients, Maruti Suzuki and Tata Motors. Average net realization during the quarter, however, grew by $13.8 \%$ yoy ( $5.7 \%$ qoq), arresting the further decline in the company's top line.

Operating margin at $7.9 \%$ : Operating margin expanded by 116 bp yoy to $7.9 \%$, led by a 716 bp yoy fall in raw-material expenses. On the other hand, a 279 bp and 322 bp yoy increase in other expenditure and staff cost restricted further yoy margin expansion. Sequentially, operating margin contracted by 202bp yoy due to the sharp increase in staff cost. Subros has been successful in managing its raw-material expenses as it has commenced local production of evaporators (which were earlier imported). As a result, the company's operating profit posted marginal $1.3 \%$ yoy growth (down substantial by $24.1 \% \mathrm{qoq}$ ) to ₹ 18.9 cr .

Net profit declines by $35.9 \%$ yoy on higher interest cost: The company's net profit registered a steep $35.9 \%$ yoy ( $61 \%$ qoq) decline to ₹ 3.1 cr , largely due to lower top line and higher interest cost. During the quarter, interest cost increased by 44.2\% yoy to ₹6.2cr.

Investment arguments

- Volume growth to remain subdued due to slowdown in the passenger vehicle industry: The passenger vehicles (PV) segment is witnessing a slowdown in volume growth, as consumer sentiment remains weak due to macroeconomic concerns such as rising interest rates, high inflation and fuel price hikes. As a result, we estimate the PV segment to post a moderate volume CAGR of $8-10 \%$ over FY2011-13E. Given the company's dependence on the PV segment, we expect volume growth to remain under pressure.
- Maintain leadership position on expanding product base: A market leader and the largest player in the domestic car AC market, Subros enjoys more than $40 \%$ market share. The company has managed to garner a high market share on the back of its strong technological expertise backed by Denso and Suzuki. Further, in view of growing PV volumes, Subros has increased its capacity to 1.2 mn units per year (FY2011) and proposes to expand its capacity to 1.5 mn units per year in the first phase (FY2012E) and further to about 2 mn units per year in the next two-three years. Capacity expansion will enable Subros to assure volume to its OE customers and, thus, maintain its market share.

Subros is also setting up a new facility in Chennai to cater to auto manufacturers in Chennai. The company will also be investing about ₹100cr in the next two years to expand the production capacities of its existing three facilities in Noida, Manesar and Pune.

Management also proposes to foray into the CV segment, targeting leaders such as Ashok Leyland and Eicher, to expand its product base and explore new avenues.

Outlook and valuation

We have revised our volume estimates downwards to factor in the sluggish demand scenario for passenger vehicles in 2HFY2012 due to high interest rates and rising fuel prices. As a result, our EPS estimates for FY2O12E/13E stand revised at ₹ $3.3 / ₹ 4.1$.

We estimate Subros to register a decline in its volume in FY2012E, led by slowdown in the passenger vehicle industry. Further, higher interest expense on account of increasing debt levels will negatively impact the company's bottom line. At ₹27, the stock is trading at $8.2 x$ FY2012E and $6.6 x$ FY2013E earnings. We recommend a Neutral rating on the stock.
