VIEW POINT: COLLIDER EXPERIMENT ON WALL STREET

While the scientists at the Large Hydron Collider in Europe are busy experimenting 100 metres under the Swiss Alps, the US Treasury is also doing a small experiment of its own to see what happens if it allows Lehman Brothers to fail. While the outcome of the LHC experiments is uncertain, you don't have to be a Doctorate in Finance to predict what will happen to the world stock markets today. The marriage of Merrill with Bank of America will only help sooth some nerves, but not stop the rot.

If you need to protect your portfolio, buy puts in the Stocks or the Nifty. If you are a trader clinically cut your longs. If you want to be Nero, buy puts. The open interest of Rs.83,000 cr will become the mill stone around the markets neck. While Real Estate and IT stocks were weak on Friday, they are going to be joined today by the banking stocks. The Sensex has made a 'Head and Shoulders' pattern on the daily charts and is highly bearish. Sounds too early to say, but a close below the 13727 could send it hurtling towards the July low of 12514. In order to limit your losses in the eventuality of the markets making a bounce back, use only calls.

THE INDICATORAT THE STREET*What does it mean for the world markets, India

- The Treasury's decision not to bail out Lehman, has already had a positive fall out. Merrill Lynch has sold itself to Bank of America at a bargain price.
- More banks would now be willing to sit on the negotiating table, something they were not willing to do earlier, as long as the Government's support was evident.
- If adequate M&A deals like Merrill do not happen, the value of underlying assets will plummet, sending more banks on the brink.
- It will mean setback in the short run, but eventually healthy.
- As banks go about liquidating assets, their Indian exposure sales could drive domestic stock values lower.
- The risk will get concentrated in a few banks.
- There will not be enough healthy competitors in the fray for the Indian Banks 'Svayamvar' in 2009.

Merrill Lunch goes for $ 44 billion

After seeing no rescue coming up for Lehman, Merrill Lynch threw itself into the lap of Bank of America for a consideration of $44 billion. The consideration is 2/3 lower than its price a year ago.

This will reduce the markets angst in the wake of Lehman failure.

Merrill would give Bank of America strength around the world, including emerging markets such as India. And Merrill is also strong in underwriting, an area, in which Bank of America would like to be more aggressive.

Lehman thrown to the street dogs

There is no rescue for Lehman. The Treasury did not want to do another Bear Stearns like revival. The Dalal Street deal makers were not willing to bite with out the Treasury's stop back arrangement. As the two didn't agree, Lehman will consider filing for bankruptcy.

The fate of Lehman Brothers darkened early Sunday afternoon after Barclays, the sole remaining bidder for the 158-year-old Wall Street firm, told federal regulators that it was walking away from a transaction.

With Barclays ending talks and the government balking at putting any taxpayer money at risk for Lehman, the likelihood of a transaction was dimming. That would leave an orderly liquidation as the most likely scenario, a dramatic outcome for a once-powerful firm.

THE INDICATORFrom our Archives:*What we wrote in our 28th March, 2008 Daily Call.*Lehman for the Layman

Lehman Brothers tumbled 8.9% yesterday amidst rumors that the investment bank could suffer from the same kind of liquidity crisis that slammed Bear Stearns. Lehman has denied any such thing.

We have had our eyes on this for a while.

The pundits on Wall were busy in the revelry after the results last fortnight, and some of our Indian poster boys on the Indian small screen had picked up those developments and called these very pleasing. The results were only better than expected and had shown a decline of more than 50% YoY. And even those came on after some changes were made in the way they define equity.

But we are not talking about the results at all. We are talking about the increasing size of the balance sheet, which further ballooned by 17% in the quarter and the gearing which has reached 31 times, the vicinity, in which we have seen lesser mortals imploding.

In situations like these, any company would aim at reducing the size of the balance sheet. This is usually done by selling assets and reducing liabilities.

Not that the bright boys at Lehman do not know. They are many times smarter than most of us on this side of the Atlantic.

But the fact is that they have not been able to reduce the size or the leverage, which makes them susceptible, if the perception of credit changes in the eyes of the investors.

Excerpts from article in Times of India.MARKETS STILL IN TROUBLED WATERS

Readers will do well to remember that as I write this article on a Sunday, what happens in the US on Sunday night (IST) will have a profound impact on the international markets and may completely alter the scenario that I may be painting in the following lines based on my study of events till about 11 am Sunday. So your key take-ways from my article will need to be re-visited amidst latest news on Lehman from US on Monday morning.

Coming back to India, things do not look cheerful. The Sensex has broken through the trendline that joined the lows of 13727 (29th July) and 14261 (27th August). The Trendline got violated at 14140 level on Friday and the Sensex closed at 14,000, 140 points below the trendline. The pattern that is visible on the charts is a 'Head and Shoulders' pattern, which is bearish in nature.

The distance between the neckline and the head is of 1711 points. That gives you a target of 12157 on the Sensex, which is even lower than the low of 15th July at 12514.

A similar pattern exists in the Nifty, but with some difference. The violation of trendline has happened intraday but in closing terms, it is yet to close below the neckline, which is at 4220. The Nifty closed at 4228.

THE INDICATOR

What should investors do when the signal is not an unanimous verdict. I think it makes sense to wait. Since the Nifty has an important support at 4159 waiting for breach of that on a closing basis may be desired before taking the hatchet to the Nifty.

The next logical question for the readers to ask is why are the two indices talking differently. The difference lies in their composition. Sensex's weakness was largely due to IT stocks. Since IT stocks have a higher weightage in the Sensex of 14% as compared to 9.6% in the Nifty, the Nifty did not fall as much.

The IT stocks could see some more weakness going forward. It will be difficult for the IT majors to beat their own dollar earnings forecast for the quarter. And some of the erstwhile cheerleaders may in fact warn on Dollar earnings for the year. The slowdown in the US is primarily responsible for this sorry state of affairs.

According to Forrester research, 43% of the US corporates are likely to cut on their IT spending. This should pre-empt any chest beating forecasts by some of the IT honchos.

As IT companies draw more than 60% of their turnover from the US, the slowdown in their catchment area, does not augur well. Another problem is that their geographic diversification into Europe, in a bid to escape Dollar weakness (2003-2007), is also boomeranging as UK and Eurozone is likely to see a harsher slowdown than the US.

The only thing going for them currently is the strong Dollar. But there also the Dollar strength is not flowing directly to the bottom line as many of these companies hedge their earnings. No wonder that the best of the IT companies are going at 12-15 PE.

The most distinguishing aspect of trading last week was that two key stocks, Reliance and Tata Steel made new 52 week lows. Normally these stocks have been the last to crack. They are now taking the lead in pulling markets lower.

The slide in the Sensex has come on heavy selling by the FIIs. They are probably selling what they can. Another problem is that whenever a key US fund, bank or a brokerage is under stress, it will sell whatever it can in India and wire the money home to save the skin of its parent. These problems remain and can re-occur in the future, whenever the next bank is on the chopping block.

THE INDICATORACROSS THE ATLANTIC

US stocks closed oscillated between losses and gains Friday before finishing with minor deviations from the neutral line.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average ended down 11.72 points at 11,421.99, while the S&P 500 edged up 2.64 points, or 0.2%, at 1251.69. The Nasdaq tacked on 3.05 points, or 0.1%, to 2261.27.

For the week, the Dow climbed 1.8%, the S&P added 0.8% and the Nasdaq dropped 2.1%.

Traders have leveled an intense gaze at the financial sector this week following the government takeover of mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac last weekend. Throughout the week, investor jitters were evident in volatile price action in Lehman and Washington Mutual.

Washington Mutual said late Thursday it has $50 billion in liquidity and announced that its retail deposit base remained at levels reached at the end of 2007. The company also said it expects its third-quarter loan-loss provision to be about $4.5 billion, down from $5.9 billion in the second quarter.

Ratings agency Moody's downgraded Wamu's credit rating to below investment grade, citing "reduced financial flexibility." Goldman Sachs had a more positive take, upgrading shares of WaMu to neutral from sell. According to a Bloomberg report, Goldman said the company might be able to avoid another capital raise. Shares finished Friday down 2.1% at $2.77.

Speculation about merger talks piled up as afternoon trading wore on. Reports indicated that potential Lehman buyers included BofA, JC Flowers, CIC and Barclays. Conflicting reports also emerged surrounding a potential WaMu acquisition by JPMorgan. Lehman shares lost 14% to $3.65.

Other financial stocks also fell victim to concerns over mortgage-related assets. Dow component stock AIG dropped 31% to $12.14. Fellow Dow member General Electric took a 5% hit to $26.75 on concerns that it would not be able to sell its credit card business, according to a report by the Associated Press. Merrill Lynch dropped 13% to $17.05.

As rumors swirled about the future of financial-sector members, trading in interest rate futures showed an increased expectation that the Fed would cut rates by the end of the year. The market was pricing in a 14% chance of a 25-basis-point rate cut at next Tuesday's FOMC meeting, up from 0% a week ago.

In the realm of commodities, crude oil, which briefly traded below $100 a barrel earlier in the day, settled down 28 cents at $101.18 a barrel. Oil refiners were shutting down some production in anticipation of Hurricane Ike hitting the Texas Gulf Coast this weekedn. Gold closed down $9 at $764.50.

As for economic data, August foreclosure filings were up 27% year over year to 303,000, or one out of every 416 U.S. homes.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics' August producer price index fell 0.9%, a broader decline than expected by economists and down from a 1.2% uptick in July. The core read on inflation rose 0.2%, a narrower increase than 0.7% in July. The Census Bureau's retail sales figures showed a decline of 0.3% for August, whereas analysts were looking for an increase of 0.3%. Excluding autos, retail sales fell 0.7%.
