VIEW POINT: INFOSYS ON THE PROWL

Our markets are likely to begin the new settlement on a buoyant note. And shepherding the indices higher today will be Infosys, which is likely to do well on the hopes that it will bid for Capgemini, the French stalwart in consulting. Infosys has been sitting on a huge mound of cash and the markets will be glad to see this being put to good use. Though a lot of water will pass in the Seine, before this materialises, it will be something that will really cheer the markets.

Cement and the Tech sectors were the ones that were acting as a drag on the Sensex. These two sectors, now have the wherewith all to move the Sensex higher. The techies are likely to post numbers that will be lower than expectations. But the acquisition flue, which might spread to other counters, may enable the markets to overlook the soon to be dished quarterly numbers and look beyond them. The sector rotation augurs well for the Sensex. Bernanke and his comments are likely to be a non-issue in today's markets.

THE INDICATORACROSS THE ATLANTIC

U.S. stocks finished mixed on Thursday, after the Federal Reserve left interest rates unchanged and said economic growth should continue at a moderate pace, while inflation remained its top concern.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average initially spiked after the statement, but it wavered and ultimately closed down 5.45 points, or 0.04%, at 13,422.28. The S&P 500 was off 0.63 point, or 0.04%, at 1505.71. The Nasdaq added 3.02 points, or 0.12%, to 2608.37.

Federal Reserve policymakers, as expected, kept the fed funds target rate at 5.25% after concluding a two-day meeting Thursday.

The decision by the Federal Open Market Committee was unanimous, and the statement that accompanied it again illustrated the difficult task facing the central bank as it tries to help the economy continue to grow but not at so quick a pace that inflation becomes a concern.

For months, data have been mixed, and for every report that suggests prices could be rising too fast, another indicates a slowdown may be on the horizon.

To the Fed, economic growth "appears to have been moderate during the first half of this year, despite the ongoing adjustment in the housing sector. The economy seems likely to continue to expand at a moderate pace over coming quarters."

Readings on core inflation, the Fed said, have "improved modestly in recent months. However, a sustained moderation in inflation pressures has yet to be convincingly demonstrated."

The high level of resource utilization could sustain that pressure, the central bank said

In these circumstances, the [FOMC's] predominant policy concern remains the risk that inflation will fail to moderate as expected," it said. "Future policy adjustments will depend on the evolution of the outlook for both inflation and economic growth, as implied by incoming information."

After topping $70 a barrel earlier, crude ended the day higher by 60 cents at $69.57 a barrel. Gasoline added a penny to $2.27 a gallon. As for precious metals, gold was higher by $5.60 to $650.40 an ounce, and silver was up 17 cents to $12.37.

Investors also digested new government data that showed the domestic economy performed slightly better during the first quarter than initial reads had indicated. The Commerce Department said gross domestic product rose 0.7% last quarter, up from a preliminary 0.6%, but was still below the 2.5% annual pace in the fourth quarter.

Economists expected a revision to 0.8%. The year-over-year change in inflation was raised to 2.3%, up from 2.2%. The GDP report was the last of three that will be released on the first quarter.

In another report, the Labor Department said that initial jobless claims fell by 13,000 last week to 313,000. The less volatile four-week moving average rose 1,000 to 316,000.
