VIEW POINT: BULLISH FOR A DAY

The markets are likely to open higher, building on the late flourish seen Wednesday. But where they will close, will be determined by the derivative punters, who have a lot at stake. Coming back to the reasons of morning buoyancy, the Dow pulled itself out of the mid-day morass to close 46 points higher. The Nikkei, which had a sulking close Wednesday, is making up for the late change of sentiment in Asia on Wednesday and a weaker Yen this morning.

But an action of a US firm, Dow Chemicals, will have a more profound effect on Indian companies than it had in the US yesterday. Subscribe to our daily morning call to know what stocks could be impacted. As we have the derivative settlement today, the markets could move with logic of their own, though apparently, the fear of a further slide has reduced. Do not read too much into today's higher close.

THE INDICATORAT THE STREET*Dow Chemicals: 20% Price hike planned

Dow Chemicals, one of the largest chemical company in the world, is likely to increase the prices of its products by about 20% from June 1. Du Pont, another giant, is likely to follow suit, though not to the same extent. Dow, attributes the rise to the surging crude and gas prices.

What are it's implication for India?

While the move will affect all downstream users of petro-products, in particular it could affect, users of caustic soda, polyethylene and polypropylene.

Detergent makers, without a backward integration of Caustic soda may get hit the most.

Augurs well for Tata Chemicals, Gujarat Alkalies, DCW, and Reliance.

THE INDICATORACROSS THE ATLANTIC

U.S. stock indexes on Wednesday logged their second straight day of gains, even after shifting gears multiple times during the session, with economic data helping investors overcome downbeat news in the financial sector.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average traded in a range of some 107 points, driving in and out of the green repeatedly before finishing up 46.68 points, or 0.36%, to 12,594.03. The S&P 500 ended up 5.49 points, or 0.4%, at 1390.84, and the Nasdaq Composite rose 5.46 points, or 0.22%, to 2486.70.

As for commodities, crude oil made a stalwart recovery from an early slide, settling up $2.18 at $131.58 a barrel.

Gold futures, however, lost $7.40 at $900.50 an ounce. Also, the U.S. dollar added 0.4% against both the euro and the yen. The dollar index, which measures the greenback against a basket of its major counterparts, was up 0.2%.

Earlier, traders were greeted with a relatively positive report from the Commerce Department, which said that total orders of durable goods, those designed to last three years or more, fell just 0.5%, sequentially last month. That's a bit worse than the prior month's 0.3% slip, but economists were expecting a 1.5% drop. Weighing heaviest was an 8% slide in transportation orders, without which total orders would have climbed 2.5%

On the corporate front, the financial sector sagged for most of the day, but the NYSE Financial Sector Index pared its loss to a 0.2% drop. Insurance giant AIG still ended with substantial losses, however, closing down 4.7% after Citigroup cut its price target on the firm. Other financial members of the Dow, JPMorgan Chase, Bank of America and Citigroup, pulled back from sizable intraday losses to end lower by less than 1% apiece.

Dow Chemical announced that it has been forced to ramp up product prices by up to 20% as it's being bombarded by the soaring costs of energy, feedstock and transportation. The price hike will take effect on June 1. Shares ticked up 1.5%.

Back in the financial sector, a German business paper reported that Sweden's SEB and France-based BNP Paribas and Societe Generale might be interested in trying to acquire Citigroup's Citibank unit. The banks are also reportedly eying Deutsche Postbank and Allianz's Dresdner Bank. Allianz rose 1.2%.
