VIEW POINT: THE COMING PLUNGE

The markets are going to walk off the cliff in a free fall that should see around 400 points being struck off the Sensex in the first few minutes of trade. More Hedge Funds continue to implode across the globe, forcing central bankers to play Shah Rukh in, 'Main Hoon Na'. Several companies have failed to file their 10-Q reports by the deadline of 9th August, which indicates there could be more problems than what the markets think.

The Sensex has already plunged 442 points from its Thursday's high of 15542 and another 400 odd points is in the works, which makes the earlier support of 14705 vulnerable. There would be opportunities to cover lower even if you were to sell around 200 pints down in the Sensex or 70 points down in the Nifty. The margin calls, which have been kept at bay so far, are likely to drive down stocks further in the afternoon. Just go out and cut your unaffordable longs.

THE INDICATORAcross the Atlantic

U.S. stocks fell sharply Thursday, socking the Dow with its second worst close so far this year, as reports of liquidating hedge funds triggered more credit-related anxiety, which earlier led three central banks to intervene in an attempt to calm markets

The Dow Jones Industrial Average plunged 387.18 points, or 2.83%, to 13,270.68, ending at session lows as a triple-digit slide steepened near the close. It was the biggest one-day point loss for the Dow since Feb. 27, when a selloff in China contributed to a 416-point decline.

The S&P 500 slid 44.40 points, or 2.96%, to 1453.09, and the Nasdaq Composite sank 56.49 points, or 2.16%, to 2556.49.

The steep declines came after French bank BNP Paribas said it has suspended three of its funds that have exposure to U.S. credit markets because of the inability to accurately value the mortgage-backed securities. The bank is just the latest financial firm to warn about exposure to liquidity problems in the U.S. credit market amid widespread defaults of subprime mortgage borrowers.

Despite the slide, the major averages are still higher for the week. For the year, the Dow is still up 6.5%, the Nasdaq has gained 5.8%, and the S&P 500 has added 2.5%.

Trading curbs were put into effect on the New York Stock Exchange for the fourth time in 2007. A record 5.48 billion shares changed hands on the NYSE, as decliners toppled advancers by a 13-to-4 margin.

Among individual names, JPMorgan Chase, Lehman Brothers, Citigroup and Bear Stearns all slid by 5% or more.

In an unprecedented move, the European Central Bank provided a loan overnight of 95 billion euros, or about $130 billion, to banks to help inject funds into the market. Back in the U.S., the Federal Reserve put $12 billion in reserves into the banking system.

Adding to the concerns was news that Home Depot is in talks with the private-equity buyers of its supply unit to amend the terms of the deal, including a potential price cut. The retailer also cut the price of its Dutch tender offer, citing the financial market conditions. The Dow component fell $2.01, or 5.3%, to close at $35.79.

The Labor Department released the lone economic report for the day before the opening bell, which showed that initial jobless claims rose by 9,000 to 316,000. The data came in above expectations.

Retail reports flooded in to start the new session. The world's biggest retailer, Wal-Mart, surprised analysts after it said comparable-store sales climbed 1.9% in July. Analysts had expected a 1.5% rise. The company also said it expects same-store sales to climb 1% to 2% in August. Wal-Mart slid $1.97, or 4.1%, to end at $46.45.

Among earnings, Dow component AIG after the prior close posted a 34% jump in second-quarter profit, easily topping estimates. Still, AIG gave back $2.18, or 3.3%, to $64.30.

Away from stocks, oil prices continued their recent tailspin. The front-month September crude contract, which has fallen 4.4% so far this week, shed another 56 cents to $71.59 a barrel.
