VIEW POINT: K G BASIN ORDER A DAMPNER

The court order restraining Reliance to sell gas to anybody else than RNRL and NTPC for the first eight years could mean a serious setback to Reliance as the realization could suffer as the two users could gang up to arm-twist Reliance into pricing its gas lower. Companies associated with transport of this gas from KG basin to West Coast, might also be adversely impacted.

The US markets closed better but the Japanese markets are weak. With Reliance expected to open lower, it could take the market sentiment with it. The rise in NTPC and Reliance Energy may not be enough to compensate for the loss. Resistance for the Sensex is at 14590 and the support at 14347.

THE INDICATORAt the street*COURT SPANNER IN K G WORKS

The Centre is considering challenging the Bombay High Court's decision to restrain Reliance Industries from selling gas from its Krishna-Godavari (KG) basin block to any company other than NTPC and Anil Ambani's Reliance Natural Resources Ltd (RNRL) for the first eight years of production.

The Bombay High Court has asked RIL not to create third-party rights for the natural gas to be produced from its KG basin block in Andhra Pradesh for the first eight years starting 2008. RIL plans to begin production from the block in July 2008, with initial output of close to 40 million standard cubic metre (mscmd) of gas per day. Peak output would touch 80 mscmd later.

Unless Supreme Court stays or changes the order, the chief beneficiary of the aforesaid development would be RNRL, Reliance Energy and NTPC. Apart from being assured of a regular supply they could also play a role in bringing the cost of the gas down from the $ 4.5 per unit that has been proposed by Reliance to the Government.

And Petronet LNG's period of good luck could get extended if the gas from KG does not reach the west coast.
