Technical View: Cash Market

Nifty made bearish engulfing candlestick pattern on daily charts, which shows bears are trying to take control from higher levels. Nifty February future expiry taking place this week, therefore, volatility may be seen. Traders should be cautious and we advise not to make any delivery based long position in market till budget. On the other hand, short term traders may trade on both side of market.

For trading during the coming sessions, trend deciding level is 5460. If Nifty shows strength above 5460 levels then we may see rally to 5550/5625/5750 levels. If Nifty doesn't sustain above 5450 levels then selling pressure till 5400/5340/5250 may also be seen.

News Roundup

- India's benchmark indices ended the week on a positive note. Both Sensex and Nifty closed with gains of over 2.7% at 18211 and 5458.95 respectively. Among sectoral indices, Banking, Metal and Capital goods stocks were the top gainers.
- The Organization for Economic Development and Co-operation released its composite leading indicators (CLI) for the month of December. The indicator points to a continued recovery in the developed world, but show a slowdown in emerging nations including India and China. The CLI for India has continued to go down for sixth consecutive month and remained below the watershed mark of 100 for second consecutive month.
- The annual rate of inflation, based on monthly WPI, stood at 8.23% (Provisional) for the month of January, 2011 (over January, 2010) as compared to 8.43% for the previous month and 8.53% during the corresponding month of the previous year.
- Food inflation eased to 11.05% on annual basis during week-ended Feb 5, significantly slower compared with 13.07% recorded in the previous week .On a sequential or week-on-week basis, the index for food goods decreased by 2.14% to 182.9 from 186.9 mainly due to lower prices of fruits & vegetables and pulses.
- Country's exports continued to maintain an over 30% growth trajectory in January. In the April-January period, total exports have reached $184.6 billion, just $15.4 billion short of the target of $200 billion set for the current fiscal.
- The Government may take a decision soon on lifting the ban on exports of food grains, including rice and wheat and some other items in wake of the surge in production in Kharif (summer sown) crop and potential increase in the Rabi (winter sown) crop. Export of food grains and many other farm items was banned following the failed monsoon of 2009.

- India's foreign exchange reserves decreased by $0.75 billion during the week ended February 11 to $298.66 billion against $299.41 billion in the previous week
- G20 policy makers are confronting a new threat as higher inflation ripples from emerging markets to advanced economies. Rising consumer prices, a byproduct of the recovery from the recent recession, have put higher interest rates back on the agenda as the developed economies grapple with a debt overhang and developing countries try to escape the boom-bust syndrome.
- China's January new home prices rose from a year earlier in all but two of the 70 cities monitored by the government. The price increase indicates to failed property curbs, which were imposed to keep housing affordable. China's central bank raised reserve requirements half a percentage point for lenders, the second increase this year to counter inflation and curb property-price gains.
- Geopolitical turmoil in Middle East continued thru out the week. With the possibility of the unrest spreading to other eastern countries becoming evident, the demand for US government debt or treasuries bills increased over the week.
- Asian stocks rebounded in the week after U.S. and Japanese central banks raised their growth outlooks and companies posted better-thanestimated earnings, boosting confidence in the global recovery.
- Asian currencies gained this week, on speculation investors will pour more funds into the region as interest rates are raised to stem gains in consumer prices. Inflationary pressure is forcing most of the Asian central banks to tighten monetary policy. Higher interest rates are driving inflows thereby leading Asian currencies higher.
 - The budget session is starting from 21st February. The news flow could make the market volatile. The expiry of derivative contracts is due on 24th. February 2011 which can also contribute to volatility. Result of Ranbaxy is also due on 22nd February.

Bhushan Steel Ltd (BSL), a leading secondary steel producer, manufactures various steel products catering to the needs of several industries mainly to automobile and white goods industry. Primarily the company was producing cold rolled products, now it is going for vertical integration by setting up steel plants and acquiring coal and iron ore mills.

Investment rationale

- Bhushan Steel reported its impressive Q3FY11 numbers on the back of higher sales volumes contributed mainly bγ expansion projects. Topline of the company grew by 36% YOY and net profit witnessed a growth of 23.3% YoY.
- The increase in volumes due to completion of Phase II expansion will begin shortly. Company is expected to generate significant revenue in FY11-12 due to better capacity utilization as the benefits of expansion kicks
- Phase III involves an outlay of Rs 6600 crores. BSL is implementing a brown field expansion of steel production increasing the capacity from 2.2 to 5.0 MTPA. BSL has reported that necessary funds have been tied up and is scheduled for completion by October 2012.
- The company is aiming to increase its captive power capacity upto 840MW from the current capacity of 458MW (including power from Bhushan Energy LTD) by the end of FY13.
- BSL would be adding capacity in for value added products such as HR Coils, CR products, ERW Pipes etc.
- It would also start the mining operations. The coal mines and iron ore mines have been allotted to JV's in which it is a partner. It has also been acquiring mining assets overseas.

Investment concerns

- Changes in prices steel and of key raw materials will have a significant impact on the profitability of the company.
- Debt-Equity ratio stood high at 2.8x. Moreover with its proposed capex of nearly Rs 2500-3000cr it is expected to rise further. This will limit further expansions of the company.
- Adherence to the schedule for completion commencement of commercial production would be critical.

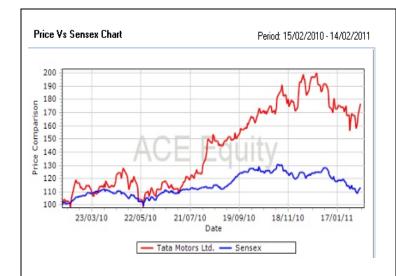

Recommendation: Increasing steel production, better capacity utilization and expansion plans including backward integration are the key growth drivers for the company in the coming years. Currently, stock is trading at 8.2x FY11E EPS. Stock offers good value in the long term. Long term investors can accumulate the stock over a period of time in view of steady growth ahead for the target price of Rs 460. However looking at the current state of the market some downside in the stock cannot be ruled out.
