VIEW POINT: WAIT FOR THE INFLATION

The markets did two things yesterday, which they have not done for a while. They over came a bad news of a Repo Rate hike and rose on good Industrial production numbers. The rise was accompanied by good volumes, which lends credence to the move. The cues from the international markets are mixed. While the Dow is up 57 points the Nikkei was in the red giving up it's triple digit morning gains at the time of writing at 7 am.

While a lot could change in Asia before the BSE rings the opening bell, let's not carried away by what happened yesterday and take your profits in the morning. If you were a braveheart to buy, wait for the inflation numbers and see how the markets react to it, before deciding on a directional call of the markets. Technically a higher bottom has been formed and immediate range for the Nifty is 4369-4750. You sell towards the upward range and buy towards the low with tight stop losses.

THE INDICATORACROSS THE ATLANTIC

U.S. stocks Thursday finished higher but well off previous levels as crude-oil prices reversed earlier steep losses, offsetting optimism over upbeat May retail sales

The Dow Jones Industrial Average was up more than 185 points at its intraday high but finished with a gain of just 57.81 points, or 0.5%, at 12141.58. S&P 500 tacked on 4.38 points, or 0.3%, at 1339.87. The Nasdaq climbed 10.34 points, or 0.4%, at 2404.35.

For much of the day, the market was considerably better off before a turnaround in crude and a drop in Yahoo! derailed the rally.

Crude-oil futures had been off $4.83 at their intraday low, hurt by a rally in the dollar. But the commodity turned around and finished up 36 cents at $136.74 a barrel in New York trading amid widening concerns about Nigerian supply

Add in a reversal in the oil selloff and equities came under pressure. Light, sweet crude for July delivery settled up 36 cents at $136.74 a barrel.

Earlier, Wall Street had been much stronger following a bid for Anheuser-Busch and positive retail sales. Anheuser-Busch, which surged after the prior close on word that Belgium's InBev has offered to acquire the Budweiser seller for $46 billion, gained 5.2% to $61.40.

Yahoo! confirmed no agreement with Microsoft could be reached as the software giant was "unequivocally" not interested in pursuing an acquisition of all of Yahoo!, "even at the price range [$33 a share] it had previously suggested," Yahoo! said.

Instead, Yahoo!, which ended down 10% at $23.52, was expected to announce plans for a search pact with Google.

Meanwhile, retail sales for May rose 1%, or twice the expected rate, aided by consumers spending their stimulus checks. Excluding auto sales, retail sales were up 1.2%, topping the 0.7% forecast

Back on the corporate side, Lehman Brothers announced it was removing Chief Financial Officer Erin Callan and Chief Operating Officer Joseph Gregory from their roles. The stock sank 4.4% to $22.70 on volume that was four times the daily average.

Elsewhere in the financial space, Citigroup is shutting down Old Lane Partners, the hedge fund it bought last year for more than $800 million and that was previously run by CEO Vikram Pandit. The Wall Street Journal said the firm has seen returns dwindle and top managers bolt. Citi was up 3.5%.

Thornburg Mortgage was also in the headlines, saying it had a loss of $3.3 billion in the first quarter, in no small part because of declines in the fair market value of the lender's mortgage-backed securities and securitized loan portfolios. Shares rose 4.2%.
