Impact of capacity shutdowns in Japan

RIL could benefit from tightening refining and petchem markets

The recent earthquake has led to a shutdown of significant refining and ethylene capacities in Japan. This could support regional refining margins and petrochemical spreads in the near term. With more than two-thirds of RIL's operating profit being contributed by refining and petchem, strengthening margins should particularly benefit the company. Hence, we reiterate our Buy on RIL and expect it to benefit from the improvement in downstream margins over FY11-13.

Capacity shutdown in Japan to support refining margins in the near term

David Hurd, Deutsche Bank Asia oil & gas analyst, in his report Losing capacity from Japan published today expects the earthquake to have a limited short-term impact on global refining margins. Four key refineries in Japan (Sendai, Kashima and Negishi of JX Nippon Oil and Chiba refinery of Cosmo Oil) have been shut down due to the earthquake. These four refineries have a total capacity of 945k bpd, about 20.6% of Japan's and 3.4% of Asia's refining capacity (Figure 1).

Petrochemical capacities also hit

Almost 5.2mmtpa or two-thirds of ethylene cracker capacity in Japan could be adversely impacted by the earthquake, including the 1.8mmtpa or one-fourth capacity that has reportedly been shut down (Figure 3). The ethylene capacity shutdown represents 23% of the Japanese capacity and 4% of Asian capacity. With refinery shutdowns we also expect production of paraxylene (PX) - especially JX Nippon Oil and Energy's (unlisted) capacity - to be adversely impacted.

Gasoil spreads could strengthen; naphtha spreads could weaken

Soozhana Choi, Deutsche Bank Head of Asian Commodities Research, in the Commodities Special report published today says that disruptions to Japanese refiners will be supportive for the regional gasoil market given its net exporting status and persistently strong Asian diesel demand growth rates. On the other hand, ethylene capacity shutdowns in Japan could adversely impact the demand for naphtha.

Reiterate Buy with INR1,150 target price; worsening global economy key risk We reiterate our Buy rating on RIL with a target price of INR1,150. Our SOTP-based target price uses 7.5x FY12E EV/EBITDA for refining and petrochemicals and a DCF (WACC 10.2%) for KG-D6 and exploration upside. Risks are 1) a worsening global economy; 2) production outages; and 3) policy vagaries.

As a result of Deutsche Bank's recent acquisition of BHF-Bank AG, a security may be covered by more than one analyst within the Deutsche Bank group. Each of these analysts may use differing methodologies to value the security; as a result, the recommendations may differ and the price targets and estimates of each may vary widely Deutsche Bank has instituted a new policy whereby analysts may choose not to set or maintain a target price of certain issuers under coverage with a Hold rating. In particular, this will typically occur for "Hold" rated stocks having a market cap smaller than most other companies in its sector or region. We believe that such policy will allow us to make best use of our resources. Please visit our website at http://gm.db.com to determine the target price of any stock.

The financial instruments discussed in this report may not be suitable for all investors and investors must make their own informed investment decisions. Stock transactions can lead to losses as a result of price fluctuations and other factors.
