

STANDING TALL

September 22, 2017 – San Francisco welcomed the installation of its very own “Comfort Women” Memorial, a tribute to the thousands of girls who were enslaved for sex by the Japanese Imperial Army during World War II. Below the three young girls, looking up, stands a statue of Hak Soon Kim, the survivor who was the first to give voice to the “Comfort Women” victims and who now stands for the millions of women who have been victims of sexual violence. Despite underhanded efforts of those who wish to suppress truth and see the Memorial fall, it holds its ground, as it will for the foreseeable future.

September 22, 2018 – We are resolute in the proclamation that the “Comfort Women’s” stories deserve to be heard and that the Memorial is here to stay to tell the untold history.

Come and celebrate with us.
