

Join Us for a Night with Michael O'Neill!

Sunday, April 24th
8:00pm EST

This is a free virtual event!

Michael O'Neill served as a Peace Corps health volunteer beginning in the late 70s, but he ended up staying for years. Michael was working for the Red Cross when the war broke out in the 90s. And he became the first expat to be kidnapped by the RUF and was held for several weeks.

There is an even stranger part of this story that you may find hard to believe, but it is indeed true.

White Man's Grave is an excellent book by Richard Dooling. There is a direct connection between the book and Michael. Join us learn about the connection and to hear Michael tell his story.

You can win a copy of the book by attending!

Michael previously served on the Board of Directors for FoSL. In addition to his great service as a volunteer, he was the first security head at the Peace Corps headquarters in Washington DC.

Register in advance for this meeting!

<https://tinyurl.com/peacecorpstoneill>

After registering, you will receive a confirmation email containing information about joining the meeting.