Hi Alexei,

cool, let's definitely aim to wrap in March, then.

I would suggest focusing on the basic Google Cyrillic set only. My schedule is very tight at the start of the year.

Could you send me a PDF page with 'Words', 'Caps', and 'Lettering' tabs from this site next time? That would speed up my reviews.

For the к ж I suggest keeping the joining with the middle stem closer to the center like so:

кижи

How do these changes work for you? New commit up.

Cheers, Christian

Hi Alexei,

Ysabeau was scheduled for the January upload to Google Fonts, but I suppose the Cyrillic is not ready yet for a first release.

Yes, it's better to postpone the Cyrillic release in January.

Do you think we can finish the review by March in time for the next upload opportunity?

I think this is possible .

Otherwise, another option would be to release Ysabeau without Cyrillics and adding them in the next update.

Hi Alexei,

thanks, I'll look into it!

Is your suggested design for /zhe/ really asymmetric in that it's /c/-shaped on the left and /k/-shaped on the right?

You mean something like this — that's a script solution.

КЦЖКЦ

I meant an asymmetric approach

Christian,

Here is the review.

I will be available for a thorough next review in mid-February, after I sort out a project.
But can answer any smaller issues now.

Hi Alexei,

shall we continue reviewing the Cyrillic of Ysabeau? We haven't touched the Italics yet, and they're ready for review (no Italic Heavy master yet, though).

Hi Christian,

Okay, thank you for the update. I have scheduled this on Jan 15ish after the great Russian winter holidays of 1-10 January.

Season's greetings,
Alexei.

Cheers, Christian
