The Open Healthcare stand at SmartHealthcare Live June 14/15th at ExCEL Docklands, London

brought to you by IHE-UK

2011 sees IHE-UK member companies and standards organisations getting together an extraordinary visual and interactive demonstration of our Cross Enterprise Document sharing (XDS) profile. The stand will feature a virtual world representation of a patient journey and document sharing scenario, supported by a range of specialist and general healthcare IT vendors who are committed to IHE. The stand will also welcome speakers on open standards and other matters important to improving interoperability in healthcare.

Our demonstration scenario involves a patient living in the Midlands suffering from a brain tumour who is referred by his GP to the local hospital where he is examined and drug treatment started. He then goes on holiday to Wales where he becomes unwell and visits a local A&E department where previous images and associated documents are immediately available for review. The drug levels are adjusted and the patient is able to resume his holiday. On returning to the Midlands at the end of holiday the patient visits his GP, where all previously created English and Welsh documents and images are available for review.

Support for multiple patient identifiers in each location and access security based on audit trail is demonstrated. IHE is also promoting and hosting in association with IHE-UK members a public competition for innovative open source solutions for health and social care.

Members can participate in a demonstration pod space with stand speaker slot, present an IHE case study/success story at a pod space together with a stand speaker slot, or provide stand sponsorship for branded educational messaging.

For order forms and availability contact Alan Budge +44 7904 949798 or email abudge@btinternet.com.

The stand is being promoted through direct mail as well as on-line through the Guardian Show websites. For details of this stand, the IHE demonstration, stand participants and the open source competition, please see the open healthcare section of the www.smarthealthcarelive.com website.
