How to Draw Chibi Pocket Manga, Volume 1, Rod Espinosa, Robert Acosta , 2009, 0981664709, 9780981664705. Get ready for a book of (nearly) unheard-of proportions! "Chibi," super-deformed, small-bodied... whatever you call 'em, they're one of the major elements of comedy (and even semi-serious) manga, and no manga artist's education is complete without knowing how to draw'em! Antarctic's top talent give you the lowdown on the low-down, from stubby limbs to oversize heads and everything in between! It's the biggest book ever about manga's smallest characters - now appropriately in pocket size!

Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Bill \(HL\): House of Lords Bills 2003-04, 6, Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords , 2003, . Domestic violence accounts for a quarter of all recorded violent crime in England and Wales. The Government's consultation paper 'Safety and justice' (Cm 5847, ISBN 0101584725) published in June 2003, contained proposals designed to improve legal and other protections available to victims of domestic violence. This Bill is in three parts and applies generally to England and Wales (with some clauses applicable to Northern Ireland and others throughout the UK). It contains provisions to introduce civil and criminal law reforms in these areas by criminalising the breach of non-molestation orders under the Family Law Act 1996, extending the availability of restraining orders under the Protection from Harassment Act 1997, and making common assault an arrestable offence. It also seeks to introduce a new offence of causing or allowing a death of a child or vulnerable adult. Procedural measures set out circumstances in which a Crown Court judge may hear part of a trial on indictment without a jury. It also contains provisions to establish a code of practice regarding service provision to victims and witnesses of crime, the creation of a Commissioner for Victims and Witnesses, and statutory payments of grants to bodies which assist victims and witnesses.

The Legends Series, Solber Martinez , 2013, 148362403X, 9781483624037. Cousins David and Jake Dijenuk's history teacher unleashes a terrible curse on Seattle, Washington, sending the cousins to a distant planet called Elektia. On the planet, David and Jake learn their powers as mages like everyone on Elektia. Unlike other mages, however, the Dijenuk family is powerful and has the ability to use all Elements except Dark. The two soon learn that in order to restore the Elements to the universe and return home, they have to find the Elemental Crystals. But first, they have to find a way to get the first Element: Wind.

Multiracial Identity: An International Perspective, Mark Christian , 2000, 0333716647, 9780333716649. This text provides an accessible account of the social construction of racialized groups. Using both primary (in-depth interviews) and secondary data. Four nations are examined: the UK, US, South Africa and Jamaica. The author maintains how little attention has traditionally been given to theorizing multiracial identity in the context of white supremacist thought and practice. This concise, wide-ranging, contentious and well referenced study provides students of identity politics and miscegenation with an insightful read. The book also contains a glossary.

Crime victims are given a voice and offenders are held accountable in Victim Offender Conferences. Written by a long-time practitioner of this effective sentencing tool. Victim offender dialogues have been developed as a way to hold offenders accountable to the person they have harmed and to give victims a voice about how to put things right. It is a way of acknowledging the importance of the relationship, of the connection which crime creates. Granted, the relationship is a negative one, but there is a relationship. Amstutz has been a practitioner and a teacher in the field for more than 20 years.

Relic Master, Part 1, Catherine Fisher , 2013, 0142426873, 9780142426876. It is a devastated world where nothing is what it seems: Ancient relics possess technologically advanced powers, members of the old Order are hunted by the governing Watch yet revered by the people, and the great energy that connects all seems to also be destroying all. The only hope lies in Galen, a man of the old Order and a Keeper of relics, and his 16-year-old apprentice, Raffi. They know of a relic with great power that has been hidden for centuries. As they search for it, they will be hunted, spied on, and tested beyond their limits. For there are monstersome human, some notthat also want the relic's power and will stop at nothing to get it. A gritty and enjoyable tale of adventure, poised on the dividing line between science fiction and fantasy . . . How did the shark and the crow and the tiny ant survive millions and millions of years? When 99 percent of all life forms on earth have become extinct, why do some survive? And survive not just in one place, but in many places: in deserts, in ice, in lakes and puddles, inside houses and forest and farmland? Just how do they become ubiquitous?

The Basic Guide to Orthodontic Dental Nursing is a must-have introduction for those seeking to develop their knowledge and understanding of this core area of clinical practice. Written in a clear and accessible format, with colour illustration throughout, the book is a guide for all dental nurses with an interest in orthodontics. It is designed to reflect sections of the syllabus of the Certificate in Orthodontic Dental Nursing. Chapters cover such key topics as tooth eruption patterns, removable and fixed appliances, de-bonding, and retention. There are also sections on care prior to treatment, including the requirements for a first appointment, and there is helpful guidance on maintaining motivation particularly for young patients and their parents. Published in a compact format for portability and easy reference, this is a valuable addition to the Basic Guides series.

On Monsters: An Unnatural History of Our Worst Fears, Stephen T. Asma , 2009, 019533616X, 9780195336160.

Monsters. Real or imagined, literal or metaphorical, they have exerted a dread fascination on the human mind for many centuries. They attract and repel us, intrigue and terrify us, and in the process reveal something deeply important about the darker recesses of our collective psyche. Stephen Asma's On Monsters is a wide-ranging cultural and conceptual history of monsters - how they have evolved over time, what functions they have served for us, and what shapes they are likely to take in the future. Asma begins with a letter from Alexander the Great in 326 B.C. detailing an encounter in India with an "enormous beast - larger than an elephant three ominous horns on its forehead." From there the monsters come fast and furious - Behemoth and Leviathan, Gog and Magog, the leopard-bear-lion beast of Revelation, Satan and his demons, Grendel and Frankenstein, circus freaks and headless children, right up to the serial killers and terrorists of today and the post-human cyborgs of tomorrow. Monsters embody our deepest anxieties and vulnerabilities, Asma argues, but they also symbolize the mysterious and incoherent territory just beyond the safe enclosures of rational thought. Exploring philosophical treatises, theological tracts, newspapers, pamphlets, films, scientific notebooks, and novels, Asma unpacks traditional monster stories for the clues they offer about the inner logic of an era's fears and fascinations. In doing so, he illuminates the many ways monsters have become repositories for those human qualities that must be repudiated, externalized, and defeated. Asma suggests that how we handle monsters reflects how we handle uncertainty, ambiguity, insecurity. And in a world that is daily becoming less secure and more ambiguous, he shows how we might learn to better live with monsters - and thereby avoid becoming one.

Persepolis, Marjane Satrapi , 2006, 0224080393, 9780224080392. Wise, often funny, sometimes heartbreaking, Persepolis: The Story of a Childhood tells the story of Marjane Satrapi's life in Tehran from the ages of six to fourteen, years that saw the overthrow of the Shah's regime, the triumph of the Islamic Revolution and the devastating effects of war with Iraq. The intelligent and outspoken child of radical Marxists, and the great-granddaughter of Iran's last emperor, Satrapi bears witness to a childhood uniquely entwined with the history of her country. Persepolis paints an unforgettable portrait of daily life in Iran and of the bewildering contradictions between home life and public life. Amidst the tragedy, Marjane's child's eye view adds immediacy and humour, and her story of a childhood at once outrageous and ordinary, beset by the unthinkable and yet buffered by an extraordinary and loving family, is immensely moving. It is also very beautiful; Satrapi's drawings have the power of the very best woodcuts. Persepolis ends on a cliffhanger in 1984, just as fourteen-year-old Marjane is leaving behind her home in Tehran, escaping fundamentalism and the war with Iraq to begin a new life in the West. In Persepolis 2: The Story of a Return we follow our young, intrepid heroine through the next eight years of her life: an eye-opening and sometimes lonely four years of high school in Vienna, followed by a supremely educational and heartwrenching four years back home in Iran. Just as funny and heartbreaking as its predecessor - with perhaps an even greater sense of the ridiculous inspired by life in a fundamentalist state - Persepolis 2 is also as clear-eyed and searing in its condemnation of fundamentalism and its cost to the human spirit. In its depiction of the universal trials of adolescent life and growing into adulthood - here compounded by being an outsider both abroad and at home, and by living in a state where you have no right to show your hair, wear make-up, run in public, date, or question authority - it's raw, honest, and incredibly illuminating.

This book presents applicable knowledge of technology, equipment and applications, and the core economic issues of micromanufacturing for anyone with a basic understanding of manufacturing, material, or product engineering. It explains micro-engineering issues (design, systems, materials, market and industrial development), technologies, facilities, organization, competitiveness, and innovation with an analysis of future potential. The machining, forming, and joining of miniature / micro-products are all covered in depth, covering: grinding/milling, laser applications, and photo chemical etching; embossing (hot & UV), injection molding and forming (bulk, sheet, hydro, laser); mechanical assembly, laser joining, soldering, and packaging. Presents case studies, material and design considerations, working principles, process configurations, and information on tools, equipment, parameters and control. Explains the many facets of recently emerging additive / hybrid technologies and systems, incl: photo-electric-forming, liga, surface treatment, and thin film fabrication. Outlines system engineering issues pertaining to handling, metrology, testing, integration & software. Explains widely used micro parts in bio / medical industry, information technology and automotive engineering. Covers technologies in high demand, such as: micro-mechanical-cutting, laser machining, micro-forming, micro-EDM, micro-joining, photo-chemical-etching, photo-electro-forming, and micro-packaging.

AppleScript in a Nutshell: A Desktop Quick Reference, Bruce W. Perry , 2001, 1565928415, 9781565928411. AppleScript in a Nutshell is the first complete reference to AppleScript, the popular programming language that gives both power users and sophisticated enterprise customers the important ability to automate repetitive tasks and customize applications. As the Macintosh continues to expand and solidify its base in the multimedia and publishing industries, AppleScript is the tool of choice on this platform for creating sophisticated time- and money-saving workflow applications (applets). These applets automate the processing and management of digital video, imaging, print, and web-based material. AppleScript is also gaining a foothold in scientific programming, as technical organizations adopt G4 CPU-based systems for advanced computing and scientific analysis. Finally, "power users" and script novices will find that AppleScript is a great everyday Mac programming tool, similar to Perl on Windows NT or Unix. In this well-organized and concise reference, AppleScript programmers will find: Detailed coverage of AppleScript Version 1.4 and beyond on Mac OS 9 and Mac OS X. Complete descriptions of AppleScript language features, such as data types, flow-control statements, functions, object-oriented features (script objects and libraries), and other syntactical elements. Descriptions and hundreds of code samples on programming the various "scriptable" system components, such as the Finder, File Sharing,

File Exchange, Network scripting, Web scripting, Apple System Profiler, the ColorSync program, and the numerous powerful language extensions called "osax" or scripting additions. Most other AppleScript books are hopelessly out of date. AppleScript in a Nutshell covers the latest updates and improvements with practical, easy to understand tips, including: Using AppleScript as a tool for distributed computing, an exciting development that Apple Computer calls "program linking over IP." Programmers can now do distributed computing with Macs over TCP/IP networks, including controlling remote applications with AppleScript and calling AppleScript methods on code libraries that are located on other machines. Using the Sherlock find application to automate web and network searching. Insights on scripting new Apple technologies such as Apple Data Detectors, Folder Actions, Keychain Access, and Apple Verifier. AppleScript in a Nutshell is a high-end handbook at a low-end price--an essential desktop reference that puts the full power of this user-friendly programming language into every AppleScript user's hands.

The Almond: The Sexual Awakening of a Muslim Woman, Nedjma , 2006, 0802142613, 9780802142610. An autobiographical erotic novel written by a contemporary woman who is an observant Muslim, "The Almond is an extraordinary and pioneering literary work, a truly unforgettable journey into the sexual undercurrents of a world that is, outwardly and to Western eyes, puritanical. Badra is a young Muslim widow who flees the small town of Imchouk for Tangiers, to take refuge with her Uncle Slimane's iconoclastic ex-wife, who has always advised Badra to seek her own pleasure. In Imchouk, it was expected that Badra's life should end with her husband's but at Aunt Selma's Badra begins to speak about her sexual history, which started with a brutal arranged marriage, and to think about how she wants to live from now on. And what she chooses bears little resemblance to the role of timid, sexless wife that has been selected for her. She recalls her youthful curiosity about sex--what other girls' and women's bodies were like, her first attempts to spy on men, her fascination with the two beautiful prostitute sisters who lived outside Imchouk--and flowers into a passionate, consuming relationship with a wealthy doctor and society man who makes her feel pleasure she has never known before. As Badra remembers and rediscovers her own sexual being, in scenes that are erotic, revelatory, and sometimes bittersweet, C. Jane Hunter's translation gives us a book of great power that resembles a Muslim "Vagina Monologues. The Almond is an inspiring, illuminating novel that reminds us of the transformative power of desire and pleasure.

Now, mourning the death of his addict brother, walking with a cane, and barely able to speak following a massive drug-related stroke, Cal is a wreck. Enter Manchester ganglord Morris Tiernan to make his life even worse. Tiernan's ne'er-do-well son Mo has gone missing, and Cal Innes is the only person the distraught gangster trusts enough to conduct the search. There's nobody Cal would like to find less, but you don't say no to Uncle Morris. And it turns out that Innes is not the only one working the case - the corrupt and parasitic Detective Sergeant Donkey Donkin has a vested interest in the fate of the Tiernans, as well as a long-standing grudge against the intrepid private eye. In this fourth and final installment of the Cal Innes series, our hero gives up acting as a pawn in Manchester's underworld disputes. He has his own burdens to bear and scores to settle - with the Tiernan family, with Sergeant Donkin, and with the darkness in his own past.

Murder in Galena, Sandra Principe , 2005, 0976795418, 9780976795414. Karen Prince, once a Chicago lawyer, now lives and paints in the rolling countryside outside Galena. Her peaceful existence is turned upside down when her best friend and country neighbor, Alice Almonte, is accused of murdering her millionaire "ex" George. Karen rushes to Alice's rescue, tracking down George's killer, risking both their lives along the way. Motives and opportunity abound as Karen uncovers family feuds, greed, blackmail and adultery. Juggling the investigation with her New York gallery, her boyfriend in Chicago and her life in the country is no small challenge. An expert in Dutch Florals, Karen unlocks the secret of the painting, Butterfly Bouquet. The plot twists and turns, taking you from Galena to Chicago and back again, in hot pursuit of George's murderer. Vivid descriptions of place make this an intriguing armchair adventure.

Kleptomania: Ten Stories, Manjula Padmanabhan , 2004, 0143031139, 9780143031130. In this brilliantly versatile collection of stories from the award-winning author of Harvest, the reader will encounter a range of themes, from murder mystery to science fiction. The author's vision of a post-apocalypse future is dark, but rendered with a rich vein of irony and humour that allows us to roller-coast with her into a world where air and water and the earth itself take on new shades of meaning. Then there are the here-and-now stories of bodies turning up in backyards, of love betrayed and sexuality discovered, of bitter awakenings and upbeat endings. Intelligent, opinionated, and playful, this is a collection that defies limitations of time, space, and imagination to conjure up new morality tales for our time.

Undercurrents, Frances Fyfield , 2002, 0142000442, 9780142000441. For twenty years, Henry Evans has been haunted by a blurred but shining memory of his lost love, Francesca Chisholm. Now this shy American has come looking for her, in her hometown on the English coast. What he discovers is not what he expects-Francesca is in prison for murdering her five-year-old son. The verdict was never in doubt. Francesca confessed, and admitted to pushing her own son off the pier to drown in the dark undercurrents of the sea. Henry, though, can't believe it; it just doesn't tally with the woman he knew. He decides to stay to discover the truth. In Undercurrents, Francis Fyfield plumbs the workings of the human soul in a masterful mix of brooding suspense, delicious characterization, precise plotting, and . . . love. "Psychologically astute yet eminently readable, Undercurrents offers the tug of true suspense while probing the eerie confluence of love and loss." (The Washington Post)

Lay a solid foundation of algebra proficiency with over 155 hands-on games and activities. To complement the natural process of learning, each activity builds on the previous one-- from concrete to pictorial to abstract. Dr. Thompson's unique three-step approach encourages students to first recognize patterns; then use diagrams, tables, and graphs to illustrate algebraic concepts; and finally, apply what they've learned through cooperative games, puzzles, problems, and activities using a graphic calculator and computer. You'll find each activity has complete teacher directions, lists of materials needed, and helpful examples for discussion, homework, and quizzes. Most activities include time-saving reproducible worksheets for use with individual students, small groups, or the entire class. This ready-to-use resource contains materials sufficient for a two-semester course in Algebra I and can be adapted for advanced students as well as students with dyslexia.

When a disaster on a colonized planet threatens to wipe out its entire population, the central government digs up a discarded research proposal they think might solve the problem. The theory behind the proposal is to find the Home Planet, the origin of humanity, whose location was lost with the destruction of technology during the period known as the Regression. The author of the proposal, Dr. Dmitri Timerlane, does not believe his research is applicable. He begrudgingly takes the assignment, only because finding the Home Planet has been his obsession for much of his life. He assembles a team of top scientists to explore five planets, one of which might be the Home Planet. On the second planet, Dr. Timerlane meets Elijah Havlorton. He is quickly added to the team because of his knowledge of ancient languages but his belief in Christ causes a stir among the research team members. As the scientists encounter new cultures and unusual events, they question their beliefs and look to God for answers. On the other planets, the team must deal with terrorist bombs, overt racism and even protesters who do not want their world to be overrun by tourists if it is proven to be the Home Planet. The research team members marvel as they witness Elijahs faith and dependence on God throughout all these events. The writing style in this book is similar to the book of Acts, in that it switches back and forth between third person and first person, when Elijah joins the action as narrator.

Persel, Chris H. Persel , 1998, 0127845860, 9780127845869. People with traumatic brain injury represent a special challenge for rehabilitation professionals and family members. Behavior disorders are often a significant barrier to rehabilitation following traumatic brain injury. Such disorders are disturbing to families, disruptive to therapy, and can jeopardize client safety. Behavior analysis can be an effective tool for teaching your clients more appropriate ways of interacting with their environment. In Working with Behavior Disorders: Strategies for Traumatic Brain Injury Rehabilitation, the staff at the Centre for Neuro Skills have presented clear illustrations that teach the concepts, techniques, and uses of applied behavior analysis with people who have traumatic brain injury. The book also examines the rigorous guidelines necessary to operate an ethically sound behavior program. This practical reference manual contains reproducible data sheets and assessment forms for use in your facility or home. There are also lists of recommended readings and training courses for those who want more information.

The Delta Solution, Patrick Robinson , 2011, 1593156634, 9781593156633. The Delta Solution is an action-packed novel dealing with the Somali pirates operating off the southerly reaches of the lawless East African republic on the Indian Ocean. For the past three years, these heavily armed tribal brigands have been capturing and holding for ransom massive cargo ships, especially oil tankers, and violently demanding millions of dollars for their return. Pirating out of the tiny Somalian village of Haradheere has become a very lucrative, dangerous business, so much so that the village has its own Stock Exchange with a reputed $78 million cash, all in crisp $100 bills, in the town vault. And each time an owner pays big for the return of their ship, the pirates immediately do it again, enraging the Pentagon more and more by the day. That is, until the "Somali Marines" make a big mistake, seizing at gun point two United States ships and demanding a $15 million ransom for their return. Hero Mack Bedford, previously encountered in Diamondhead and Intercept, is deployed to SEAL Team 10 to form The Delta Platoon. His objective: obliterate the Somali Marines in the middle of the Indian Ocean, at all costs, once and for all.

Report of a Census of Organs and Tissues Retained by Pathology Services in England: Conducted in 2000 by the Chief Medical Officer, Great Britain. Dept. of Health. Chief Medical Officer , 2001, 0113225318, 9780113225316. A census of organs, body parts and tissues held by NHS pathology services was carried out to determine the size and nature of such stores. The census was conducted in the light of public concern expressed about events at Bristol Royal Infirmary and Alder Hey Hospital where there were reports of the widespread retention of children's organs for teaching or research purposes without the knowledge or consent of parents. The census also asked for information on consent policies and on the procedures for the disposal of organs or tissues no longer required. This report analyses the information from the census. It aims to: provide details of the approximate numbers of organs, body parts and tissues held by pathology collections in England; describe the types of organs and tissues that have been retained; indicate when the retention took place; assess the number of services with written policies on consent, retention and disposal of human organs and tissues; outline policies on asking for consent from families of the bereaved for the retention of human organs and tissues for diagnosis, research and teaching; identify policies and protocols for the disposal of human organs and tissues retained after post-mortem. The census methodology and definitions used are included. The report concludes that the scale of retention and body parts, although not large in proportion to the number of post-mortems which have taken place 1970-1999, still represents holdings from a substantial numbers of individuals with close relatives who may still be alive. The majority of these will have taken place after relatives signed forms presented to them shortly after the death occurred. Whilst some relatives will have fully understood what they were agreeing to, the unsatisfactory nature of the agreement forms, the lack of information and the lack of counselling support or advice at a distressing time, suggests that agreement to retention fell well short of fully informed consent in many cases. For many people, the fact that their loved one's organs are still held will be a surprise and a shock. The retention of body parts may be more unexpected and shocking. Retention of organs, body parts or tissues after post-mortem examination is governed by one or other of two pieces of legislation: the Coroners Act 1988 (and Coroners Rules 1984) or the Human Tissue Act 1961. The report concludes that the adequacy of these two pieces of legislation and the way in which they have been interpreted and operated is at the heart of this controversy over organ and tissue retention. The Human Tissue Act, the letter of which has been followed in the way in which permission for many post-mortems and subsequent retentions were obtained, uses a concept of "do not object" which now seems outmoded and paternalistic. Retention of organs or tissues following a coroner's post-mortem is not uncommon. The circumstances in which these take place does not seem to be covered by the legislation governing coroners' post-mortem examinations. The report expresses regret that the sensitivity shown in the arrangements for fetuses and stillborn babies has not extended to the disposal of tissues and organs, particularly from infants and children who have died. The Report recognises the value of archived tissues and organs for medical research and education but stresses the importance of ensuring that the obtaining and subsequent disposal of tissues and organs is in line with society's current expectations, that tissues and organs are treated with the respect they are due, and that the wishes of the relatives are paramount.

Public Research Institutions: Mapping Sector Trends, Sarah Box, Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development Staff, Ester Basri , 2011, 0119208091, 9780119208092. This publication provides new information on public research institutions (PRIs) and government strategies. Public research institutions are crucial for innovation due to their role in knowledge creation and diffusion. While absolute real expenditure on R&D in this sector has risen, it now accounts for a smaller share of total R&D spending by OECD countries and of OECD GDP. The targets and focus of many PRIs have evolved in recent years. Changing activities, new policy challenges and wider economic and political developments have driven change in missions and mandates and linkages have become focal points for many. Internationalisation has also increased and relationships are frequently collaborative. PRIs' sources of income are diverse but funding has become increasingly competitive. Funding instruments need to balance short-and long-term goals to uphold research quality and ensure the sustainability of PRI activities

I want the readers of my book to understand my spiritual needs, my human longings and my attempts at understanding the human condition. These are the forces that give me the inspiration to write. When others read and enjoy my work I am very gratified because on a genuine level they are accepting me. When someone says they felt what I have written it gives me a great deal of satisfaction. The approval of others keeps me in touch with my inner self, while connecting me with the rest of God's creation. My life is the river in River Recovery; I hope that the river is flowing toward a better place. Maybe, we can go on that journey together.

Apocalypse Transformed, Nicholas C Demetry M D, Edwin L Clonts M D , 2007, 0979296102, 9780979296109. We CAN change the future! Apocalypse Transformed explores the spiritual and psychological processes, both individual and collective, needed to effect global transformation. Building on the authors' previous book, Awakening Love: The Universal Mission, this book shows how we can co-create our new world by working with the power of Archangels. The authors confront the feeling of hopelessness pervading much of our world, as familiar global crises mount and solutions elude us. Many people, turning to spiritual sources for understanding, have concluded correctly that the "end times" of prophecy are upon us. Unfortunately, millions misinterpret "end times" to mean the literal end of the world, with salvation only for the select few who hold certain religious beliefs. But could we truthfully interpret prophecy in a different light? Could we replace gloom with hope? .fear with peace? .hatred with love? .fatalism with free-will choice? .passivity with bold action to renew our planet? Beginning with a psychological presentation of the archetype of the Apocalypse now rising in the collective psyche, the authors make the case that such a hopeful interpretation of the world prophecies is indeed spiritually sound.

This comprehensive tutorial introduces the development of, and current trends in, superstring theory, a significant and still controversial attempt to unify general relativity and quantum field theory. Intended for graduate students with a year of quantum mechanics and familiarity with relativistic methods, the book makes these exciting developments available to physicists, mathematicians, and others for the first time in one volume. Stressing current areas of research activity, Introduction to Superstrings addresses all relevant topics including string field theory, multi-loops and Teichmüller spaces, conformal field theory, and four-dimensional superstrings. Professor Kaku is currently leading seminars in superstring theory at the Graduate Center of the City University of New York.

National Statistics, Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Treasury Committee, Treasury Committee , 2001, 0102033013, 9780102033014. This Report describes the results of an inquiry of the Treasury Committee into the implementation by the Office for National Statistics of new arrangements for National Statistics. The Committee had identified a number of weaknesses in the management and structure of Government statistics. The Government responded by introducing changes and innovations which, as far as they go, are supported by the Committee. From the evidence received by the Committee the new arrangements for National Statistics have received a guarded welcome from a range of interested parties. The Committee is dissatisfied that the Government has not placed the new arrangements on a statutory footing and makes the recommendation that it is absolutely essential for the new arrangements to be enshrined in a Statistics Act. Legislation would establish more clearly the specific responsibilities of Ministers, the National Statistician, the Statistics Commission and others in relation to National Statistics and guard against political interference and backsliding in the future. The Committee makes a number of further recommendations. These include: the National Statistician, who has responsibility for ensuring the integrity and quality of National Statistics, should have direct access to the Prime Minister, meaning direct and not through the Head of the Home Civil Service; the scope of national statistics should expand over time; the scope should be an independent decision for the National Statistician in consultation with the Statistics Commission, as should the scope and definition of the Retail Price Index.

Path of Destruction, Drew Karpyslyn , 2007, 0099491966, 9780099491965. Thousands of years before the rise of Darth Sidious and Darth Vader, the Old Republic was rife with the evil Sith, who were a constant thorn in the side of the Jedi. But greed and hunger for power were eating away at the Sith Order, destroying it from within. In the midst of this rose a new Sith, Darth Bane, who recognized that the Sith Order would fall if nothing was done. Thus it was he who, learning to cultivate patience and cunning, hid from the strife until it was over, and then rose to become the most powerful Sith Lord ever. This is the story of the transformation of Des, a young miner, into the legendary Sith Lord Darth Bane. Des - like many of the disenfranchised who live on the Outer Rim - is disillusioned with the stagnancy of the Old Republic. When the Sith unite to bring the Republic down, Des is one of many to join their cause. His heroism and skill in battle - along with his remarkable connection to the Force - draw the notice of the Sith Masters, and Des eventually finds himself studying at the Sith Academy on Korriban. He takes the name of Bane and, amidst the deception and back-stabbing of the other students, he learns to unlock his latent dark-side talents. As his power grows, Bane realizes the Sith have lost their way. Under the leadership of Lord Kaan and his Brotherhood of Darkness, the Sith have turned their back on the true nature of the dark side. Through manipulation, cunning and strength, Bane destroys Kaan's Brotherhood and wipes

Caesar's De Analogia: Edition, Translation, and Commentary, Alessandro Garcea , 2012, 0199603979, 9780199603978.

At the end of the Republic, religious, legal, and literary knowledge began to take the form of a 'Roman heritage', as broadly defined as it was indefinite. Caesar, like Cicero, thought that language, along with political institutions and laws, constituted the fundamental feature which defined the identity of a people. So, as with statutes, libraries, and the calendar, he intended to fix general laws in the sphere of language with his treatise De analogia in order to establish a solid foundation for Latina language whose evolution was driven by the need to preserve heritage and by confrontations with the linguistic habits of the allies of Rome. In this volume Garcea brings together for the first time the fragments of Caesar's De analogia with a complete translation and commentary. Contextualising the text and its quotation by Pliny in his Dubius sermo, Charisius, Priscian, and other Latin grammarians Garcea, presents the issues raised by means of comparison with the texts of Caesar's interlocutors-principally Cicero, Varro, Nigidius Figulus, and Philodemus of Gadara. The study of all these sources, most of which have never been translated into a modern language, fills a gap in the representation of the history of linguistic development in the classical period-ultimately portraying how in republican Rome, there was still no clear distinction between the different subdivisions of learning.

Communicating Ideas: The Politics of Scholarly Publishing, Irving Louis Horowitz , , 1412819946, 9781412819947.

Communicating Ideas is the first attempt to place publishing in America in its political and commercial setting. The book addresses the political implications of scholarly communication in the era of the new computerized technology. Horowitz does so by examining classic problems of political theory in the context of property rights versus the presumed right to know, and the special strains involved in publishing as a business versus information as a public trust. Offering a knowledgeable and insightful view of publishing in America and abroad, this book makes an important contribution to the study of mass culture in advanced societies. The discussion ranges considerably beyond scholarly publications into communication as a whole, encompassing a wide range of issues from cable and satellite television control to specialized issues in copyright legislation, the prize system in publishing, and the definition of standards of the industry. This new edition, expanded by fully one third, expands on such themes, and in addition deals with Horowitz's new research on the history of social science publishing. The first edition, published in 1986, was described by WE. Coleman as "a marvelous book which indeed offers a realistic analysis of publishing." John P. Dessauer declared that "no one thinking seriously about the future of scholarly communication can afford to ignore his work, in particular his treatment of basic issues." Joseph Gusfield "(Los Angeles Times), "in his review, noted that "Horowitz is alive to the possibilities and barriers for academics to reach a wider audience and for lay persons to utilize scholarship. Both groups can learn much from this intelligent book." And Philip G. Altbach "(Scholarly Publishing) "concluded his review by saying that "Communicating Ideas ""will be of interest not only to publishers and editors, but also to librarians and to sociologists of science."

The Oxford Handbook of Systematic Theology, John Bainbridge Webster, Kathryn Tanner, Iain Torrance , 2007, 0199245762, 9780199245765. The Oxford Handbook of Systematic Theology brings together a set of original and authoritative accounts of all the major areas of current research in Christian systematic theology, offering a thorough survey of the state of the discipline and of its prospects for those undertaking research and teaching in the field. The Handbook engages in a comprehensive examination of themes and approaches, guiding the reader through current debates and literatures in the context of the historical development of systematic theological reflection. Organized thematically, it treats in detail the full array of topics in systematic theology, as well as questions of its sources and norms, its relation to other theological and non-theological fields of enquiry, and some major trends in current work. Each chapter provides an analysis of research and debate on its topic, identifying and interpreting options and laying out the basis for the reader to explore the territory, asking: What are the critical issues? How have these issues developed and been expounded? What are current prospects? The focus is on doctrinal (rather than historical) questions, and on major (rather than ephemeral) debates. The aim is to stimulate readers to reach theological judgements on the basis of consideration of the range of opinion. Drawn from Europe, the UK, and North America, the authors are all leading practitioners of the discipline. Readers will find expert guidance as well as creative suggestions about the future direction of the study of Christian doctrine.

Identity, consciousness, and value, Peter K. Unger , 1990, . The topic of personal identity has prompted some of the liveliest and most interesting debates in recent philosophy. In a fascinating new contribution to the discussion, Peter Unger presents a psychologically aimed, but physically based, account of our identity over time. While supporting the account, he explains why many influential contemporary philosophers have underrated the importance of physical continuity to our survival, casting a new light on the work of Lewis, Nagel, Nozick, Parfit, Perry, Shoemaker, and others. Deriving from his discussion of our identity itself, Unger produces a novel but commonsensical theory of the relations between identity and some of our deepest concerns. In a conservative but flexible spirit, he explores the implications of his theory for questions of value and of the good life.

Statistics for Terrified Biologists, Helmut van Emden , 2009, 1444300393, 9781444300390. We highly recommend it not just for statistically terrified biology students and faculty, but also for those who are occasionally anxious or uncertain. In addition to being a good starting point to learn statistics, it is a useful place to return to refresh your memory. The Quarterly Review of Biology, March 2009"During the entire course of my Ph.D. I've been (embarrassingly) looking for a way to teach myself the fundamentals of statistical analysis. At this point in my education, I've come to realize that often times, simply knowing the basics is enough for you to properly apply even the most complex analytical methods. Statistics for Terrified Biologists has been just such a book - it was more than worth the $40 I spent on it, and while my 'book clubs' aren't meant to be reviews, I highly recommend the book to anyone who's in a similar predicament to my own." Carlo Artieri's Blog Book ClubThe typical biology student is hardwired to be wary of any tasks involving the application of mathematics and statistical analyses, but the plain fact is much of biology requires interpretation of experimental data through the use of statistical methods. This unique textbook aims to demystify statistical formulae for the average biology student. Written in a lively and engaging style, Statistics for Terrified Biologists draws on the authors 30 years of lecturing experience. One of the foremost entomologists of his generation, van Emden has an extensive track record for successfully teaching statistical methods to even the most guarded of biology students. For the first time basic methods are presented using straightforward, jargon-free language. Students are taught to use simple formulae accurately to interpret what is being measured with each test and statistic, while at the same time learning to recognize overall patterns and guiding principles. Complemented by simple illustrations and useful case studies, this is an ideal statistics resource tool for undergraduate biology and environmental science students who lack confidence in their mathematical abilities.

Practice Makes Perfect, Edward Vernon , 1978, 1466824085, 9781466824089. "I'd taken a job as assistant to an elderly general practitioner working in a small Midland town. It was my first job in general practice; my first brave excursion into the dangerous world where patients walk around in their clothes...."This is a heartwarmingly funny, eye-opening and sometimes sad account of a young doctor's initiation. Dr. Vernon swiftly found himself bemused, fascinated and exhausted as he coped with the procession of (usually) ailing humanity that streamed through his office and awaited visits. Confused old lady, timid vet, puzzled diabetic, lonely housewife, hypochondriac athlete, all made their appearance--not to mention a tipster with an ulcer, a nun with dandruff, and a persistent young lady with abundant charms and no complaints! Luckily, his wise, worldly and well-loved employer, Dr. Oaks, and their receptionist, the doughty Miss Williams, were on hand to provide protection, counsel and occasional rescue. And, after his baptism of fire, young Dr. Vernon found he had accumulated not only a certain amount of insight (and a wife-to-be!) but also a host of good stories. Practice Makes Perfect is a look behind the doctor's door that will amuse, amaze--and, above all, entertain.

Spotted Yellow Frogs: Fold-out Fun with Patterns, Colors, 3-D Shapes, and Animals , 1998, 0803723504, 9780803723504. Once again this best-selling author-illustrator delights toddlers with an irresistible lift-and-peek format that turns learning into pure fun. Each spread features a colorful geometric shape sporting a distinctive pattern. With the flip of a gatefold, the patterned shape becomes a merry troupe of similarly patterned animals engaged in giggle-producing antics. Peek under a striped orange cube and discover a striped orange tiger daddy overwhelmed by playful cubs. A swirly purple wedge reveals a bevy of butterflies, swirly purple wings aflutter as they vie for a sip of nectar. And while toddlers explore the eye-pleasing visuals, they'll take an important first step toward reading as they begin to associate pictures with words. Spotted Yellow Frogs introduces a new animal, pattern, shape, and color on each of its eight fold-out spreads. Two bonus spreads containing eight more lift-and-peek opportunities unfold to over three feet long and provide hands-on guessing game fun and a spot-the-errors challenge. A well-off accountant and a beloved wife and mother, Marta Dickenson doesnt seem the type to be on anyones hit list. But when Eve and her partner, Peabody, find blood inside the building, the lieutenant knows Martas murder was the work of a killer whos trained, but not professional or smart enough to remove all the evidence. But when someone steals the files out of Martas office, Eve must immerse herself in her billionaire husband Roarkes world of big business to figure out whos cruel and callous enough to hire a hit on an innocent woman. And as the killers violent streak begins to escalate, Eve knows she has to draw him out, even if it means using herself as bait...

Glut: Mastering Information Through the Ages, Alex Wright , 2008, 0801475090, 9780801475092. The "information explosion" may seem like an acutely modern phenomenon, but we are not the first generation or even the first species to wrestle with the problem of information overload. Long before the advent of computers, human beings were collecting, storing, and organizing information: from Ice Age taxonomies to Sumerian archives, Greek libraries to Dark Age monasteries. Spanning disciplines from evolutionary theory and cultural anthropology to the history of books, libraries, and computer science, Alex Wright weaves an intriguing narrative that connects such seemingly far-flung topics as insect colonies, Stone Age jewelry, medieval monasteries, Renaissance encyclopedias, early computer networks, and the Internet. Finally, he pulls these threads together to reach a surprising conclusion, suggesting that the future of the information age may lie deep in our past.

An Introduction to Bach Studies, School of Music Indiana University Daniel R. Melamed Associate Professor of Music, Michael Marissen Associate Professor of Music Swarthmore College , 1998, 0198028555, 9780198028550. This volume is a guide to the resources and materials of Bach scholarship, both for the non specialist wondering where to begin in the enormous literature on J. S. Bach, and for the Bach specialist looking for a convenient and up to date survey of the field. It describes the tools of Bach research and how to use them, and suggests how to get started in Bach research by describing the principal areas of research and citing the essential literature on each piece and topic. The authors emphasize the issues that have engaged Bach scholars for generations, focusing on particularly important writings; on recent literature; on overviews, collections of essays and handbooks; and on writings in English. Subjects covered include bibliographic tools of Bach research and sources of literature; Bach's family; Bach biographies; places Bach lived and worked; Bach's teaching; the liturgy; Bach source studies and the transmission of his music; repertory and editions; genres and individual vocal and instrumental works; performance practice; the reception and analysis of Bach's music; and many others. The book also offers explanations of important and potentially confusing topics in Bach research, such as the organization of the annual cantata cycles, pitch standards, the history of the Berlin libraries, the structure of the critical commentary volumes in the Neue Bach Ausgabe, and so on. This book opens up the rich world of Bach scholarship to students, teachers, performers, and listeners.

This is the first book thoroughly to explore the musical style of Henry Purcell. In this comprehensive study, Martin Adams identifies music by other composers, both within England and from abroad, which influenced Purcell's compositional decisions. Using a mix of broad stylistic observation and detailed analysis, Adams distinguishes between late-seventeenth-century English style in general and Purcell's style in particular, and chronicles the changes in the composer's approach to the main genres in which he worked, especially the newly emerging ode and English opera. As a result, Adams reveals that although Purcell went through a marked stylistic development, encompassing an unusually wide range of surface changes, special elements of his style remained constant. The book will be of interest to students and scholars of music and theatre history, as well as British cultural and social history.

Player Piano, Kurt Vonnegut , 2010, 0795311974, 9780795311970. Player Piano (1952), Vonnegut's first novel, embeds and foreshadows themes which are to be parsed and dramatized by academicians for centuries to come. His future society--a marginal extrapolation, Vonnegut wrote, of the situation he observed as an employee of General Electric in which machines were replacing people increasingly and without any regard for their fate--is mechanistic and cruel, indifferent to human consequence, almost in a state of merriment as human wreckage accumulates. Paul Proteus, the novel's protagonist, is an engineer at Ilium Works and first observes with horror and then struggles to reverse the displacement of human labor by machines. Ilium Works and Paul's struggles are a deliberately cartoon version of labor's historic and escalating struggle to give dignity and purpose to workers. The novel embodies all of Vonnegut's concerns and what he takes to be the great dilemma of the technologically overpowered century: the spiritual needs of the population in no way serve the economies of technology and post-technology. Vonnegut overlies this grotesque comedy over tragedy, disguising his novel in the trappings of goofiness. Not published--at Vonnegut's insistence--as science fiction, the novel was nonetheless recognized and praised by the science fiction community which understood it far better than a more general readership, a dilemma which Vonnegut resentfully faced throughout his career. Bernard Wolfe's dystopian Limbo and Player Piano were published in the same year to roughly similar receptions; two outsiders had apotheosized technophobia as forcefully as any writer within the field. Throughout his career, Vonnegut was forced to struggle with his ambivalence about science fiction and his own equivocal relationship with its readers.

How Brains Make Up Their Minds, Walter J. Freeman , 2000, 0231120087, 9780231120081. I think, therefore I am. The legendary pronouncement of philosopher Ren Descartes lingers as accepted wisdom in the Western world nearly four centuries after its author's death. But does thought really come first? Who actually runs the show: we, our thoughts, or the neurons firing within our brains? Walter J. Freeman explores how we control our behavior and make sense of the world around us. Avoiding determinism both in sociobiology, which proposes that persons' genes control their brains' functioning, and in neuroscience, which posits that their brains' disposition is molded by chemistry and environmental forces, Freeman charts a new course -- one that gives individuals due credit and responsibility for their actions. Drawing upon his five decades of research in neuroscience, Freeman utilizes the latest advances in his field as well as perspectives from disciplines as diverse as mathematics, psychology, and philosophy to explicate how different human brains act in their chosen diverse ways. He clarifies the implications of brain imaging, by which neural activity can be observed during the course of normal movements, and shows how nonlinear dynamics reveals order within the fecund chaos of brain function.

Revolutionary France: 1788-1880, Malcolm Crook , 2002, 0198731876, 9780198731870. The French Revolution of 1789 was followed by a century of upheaval, rebellion, and change. Napoleonic dictatorship, monarchical restoration, Second Republic, and Second Empire all rapidly succeeded one another, and it was not until the advent of the Third Republic in the 1870s that political stability was restored. The period 1788-1880 thus possesses a unity as Revolutionary France, though it is seldom treated as a whole. In this volume, a team of leading international historians explore the major issues of politics and society, together with the dynamics of culture, gender, national identity, and overseas empire, during this vital period of French history.

Physiognomy posited an understanding of the inner meaning of human character from observations of physical appearances, usually facial expressions. Taking the physiognomical teachings of Johann Caspar Lavater as a starting-point, Hartley considers the extent to which attempts to read the mind and judge the character through expression can provide descriptions of human nature.

Pregnant Darkness: Alchemy and the Rebirth of Consciousness, Monika Wikman , 2005, 0892545690, 9780892545698. Author, psychologist, and astrologer Monika Wikman has worked for decades with clients and their dream symbols and witnessed the presence of the divine hand at work in the psyche. In The Pregnant Darkness, Wikman shows readers that the best way to cope with their darkest hours is by fostering a connection to the deeper current of life, those mysteries that give life form and meaning. Wikman's analysis of dream material leads readers into a practical explanation of alchemical symbolism. Far from being a quaint, ancient practice, The Pregnant Darkness shows that alchemy is at work in contemporary, everyday life. Alchemical symbolism, properly understood, can be applied to unraveling the meaning of visions in meditation, active imagination, and dream work. Wikman shows how readers can participate in the divine energies to help miraculous changes occur in their lives. Wikman writes: "In Greek mythology, Pegasus, upon taking to the air, pushed hard with a back hoof and penetrated the earth. A spring rose up where his hoof dashed the earth, and in this hole . . . the muses reside. One of the roles of the "religious function" of which Jung speaks is to bring us toward that inner spring of the muses where something beyond ego resides, instructs, and inspires. Like a hole created from Pegasus' leaping foot, contact with this inner spring often entails a crack in our field of ordinary consciousness. In the inner world, the spring of living symbols and accompanying presences is the source of dreams and visions, as well as the fountain of inspiration at the heart of poetry, art, ritual, mythology, and even religion."

Sexual Aggression: Issues in Etiology, Assessment, and Treatment, ISSN 1048-8146, Gordon C. Nagayama Hall, , 1993, 1560322683, 9781560322689. Sexually aggressive behavior is a biopsychosocial phenomenon that is becoming an increasingly serious societal problem. This volume presents state-of-the-science theory and research on sexual aggression. Emerging theories and concepts are emphasized because of their potential to stimulate research on the assessment and treatment of sexual aggressors. The multi-determined nature of sexual aggression is reflected in the wide range of forms of such behavior that are addressed in this volume. Although much recent scholarly work has addressed victim issues, papers focus on perpetrators of sexual aggression who are ultimately responsible for the act. While the empowerment of victims and potential victims is critically important, there is no other type of aggressive act in which the victim is so routinely blamed. Thus a focus on perpetrators will serve to shift emphasis away from victim responsibility and assist in the understanding, treatment, and prevention of sexually aggressive behavior. The heterogeneity of sexually aggressive behavior is reflected in the different conceptualizations and models that have been proposed in this volume to account for the behavior, including ecological perspectives which comprise family, cultural, and evolutionary influences. Developmental contexts of sexually aggressive behavior are addressed in chapters on juvenile and adult sexual offenders. Treatment approaches described comprehensively address many important motivational variables in sexual aggression and emphasize the importance of follow-up. In that most sexual aggressors eventually will be returned to the community, treatment is warranted from a cost-benefit perspective. Intended for researchers and clinicians who are involved in understanding, treating, and preventing sexually aggressive behavior, this volume is a direct result of the fourth Kent Psychology Forum (held in April 1992), an international think tank dedicated to advancing areas of social concern in psychology. All contributors are highly respected scholars and professionals in the study of sexual aggression.

Wave Rider: A Chronicle of the Information Age, Ajit Balakrishnan , 2012, 1447241150, 9781447241157. Ajit Balakrishnan is quietly experimenting with the new and fascinating technologies of the Internet in 1995 when the dot-com fever grips the world. Venture capitalists, investment bankers and lawyers pound at the doors of his tiny office in a low-rent area of Mumbai, urging him to take his company public on New Yorks NASDAQ stock market. Balakrishnan sets out on this enterprise, a path that takes him through the worlds financial centres of London, Hamburg, New York, Boston and San Francisco. This story recounts how he battles adversaries many times his size; fends off avaricious lawyers who try to extort money through class action suits in the tough courts of lower Manhattan; rebuffs investment bankers who try to engineer the sale of his company; and tries to make sense of a world where technology and business models change every few months. He steers his company through the financial crashes of 2000 and 2008; watches in awe as terrorists bring down New Yorks World Trade Centre towers; puzzles over the decline of once famous names such as AOL and Netscape and the rise of new behemoths like Facebook and Google; wrestles with Indias legal system; and pushes to bring Rediff into the new world of the Internet. Gradually, he realizes that the battles he is part of are not just business battles they signal the dawn of the Information Age.

Balance of Power, Tom Clancy, Steve R. Pieczenik , 1998, 1417711817, 9781417711819. "Clancy knows how to build a thriller." - Boston Globe Spain is a nation poised to suffer its worst internal strife in a thousand years. Certain well-placed Spanish diplomats sense it. Op-Center intelligence corroborates it. All the United States and Spain have to do is find a way to avert it. Before they can, an Op-Center representative is assassinated in Madrid on her way to a top secret diplomatic meeting. Now all fears are confirmed. Someone very powerful wants another Spanish civil war -- no matter what the cost. A powerful profile of America's defense, intelligence, and crisis management technology, Tom Clancy's Op-Center is the creation of Tom Clancy and Steve Pieczenik - inspiring this and other gripping novels.

Warbirds, Richard Herman , 2010, 0061956120, 9780061956126. Colonel Anthony "Muddy" Waters has a mission: to mold a company of poorly trained rogues and misfits into heroes. His assignment is one that no other officer in the United States Air Force would touch. But Waters has a fabled stubbornness and dedication unparalleled in the armed services ... and the will to make the impossible possible. The Warbirds is the breakthrough novel that captures the saga of the F-4 Phantom and the men who made it a legend: like "Muddy" Waters, who must transform the men and women under his command -- Including a superbly talented pilot but loose cannon named Jack Locke--into a fighting force to be reckoned with. Because their country could ask them at any time to fly their F-4s into the eye of the firestorm, to face an overwhelming enemy and brave the flames of hell itself without question and with no support. Tomorrow that call will come. And there will be no turning back when the heavens explode.

Hundreds of thousands were led to Christ by Charles Finney. Guided by Scripture, he outlines the way to real joy and shows you how to receive answers to your prayers, experience God's power in your life, win the lost, defeat the attacks of Satan, and apply secrets of fulfilled prayer. Finney shows how to unlock the keys to God's favor and blessings in your life and be confident of God's purposes for you.

A French Novel, Frdric Beigbeder , 2013, 0007468857, 9780007468850. Arrested for snorting cocaine off a car bonnet, award-winning author and quintessential dilettante Frederic Beigbeder reflects on his troubled childhood, while spending a night in the cells. In his most autobiographical book to date, the author of the award-winning Windows on the World recounts his stay in police custody, when in January 2008 he was arrested for snorting cocaine outside a Paris nightclub. As he lies in his cell, he revisits his childhood, from the carefree days when his grandfather taught him to skim pebbles at the beach in Cnitz, to his parents divorce; the conflicting influences of his hedonistic father and his studious, seemingly conventional brother. And then Beigbeder recalls his first, unrequited loves. This patchwork of memories is as much a portrait of the era as it is the story of a fragile, self-critical man who has finally dropped the mask. Witty, sharp, with a pitiless, self-deprecating irony, and yet tender and true, A French Novel is a gem. Beigbeders search for answers in the lost country of his childhood will speak to a whole generation searching for its soul.

Dark Moon Digest - Issue #5: The Horror Fiction Quarterly, Stan Swanson , 2011, 0983433526, 9780983433521. The dark days of winter are howling outside the windows and the winds are like frosty fingers scratching at thin wooden doors. Yes, the season of the witch is upon us and the moon grows blood red. So, curl up before a nice roaring fire and feed upon the darkness with new tales from Issue #5 of Dark Moon Digest. With Marc Olivent's "Slaughterhouse" graphic serial wrapping up and Kevin McClintock's "Tenants" coming to a climatic end, our 1st anniversary issue is a real page turner. But keep that flame in the hearth glowing bright. You'll need it as evil toys, haunted amusement park rides, worms, rats and insects invade your mind. Not to mention evil in the form of humans. Or what we thought were humans. What was that? Did the lights just flicker? Probably all in your mind. Right...?
