Strengthen Your Character Or Else...: You Remain Just an Average Employee, Jennifer Kabaaga , 2005, 0954891708, 9780954891701. This work examines some of the burning issues in the modern work place both from an employee's and employer's point of view. Why do some people drift through their working life just being average while others seem to excel all the time? Is it their level of education or is it their background? This book touches the core of work place satisfaction: STRENGTH OF CHARACTER. People who excel and find meaning in their jobs don't necessarily have the highest level of education but they know how to get the best out of themselves and others. The contents of this book consider noble work values like honesty and the benefits of a positive mental attitude towards our jobs. The work also touches some rather sensitive issues including; an approach to racism in the work place that may save the day as well as the lovely work place 'sickie'. For an employee from every walk of life, this book will add meaning to the daily struggle. Every employer will be glad their workforce read this book.

A Beginner's Guide to Spirituality: The Orthodox Path to a Deeper Relationship with God, Michael Keiser , 2007, 1888212888, 9781888212884. Spirituality is in! Monks go platinum with recordings of chant, and books on self-help spirituality overflow on supermarket bookracks. But what is the meaning of true spirituality? Aren't we all a little confused? Genuine spirituality keeps us in balance with God, our neighbor, and the material world. Fr. Michael Keiser walks us through the Orthodox Church's timeless teachings and practices on the ancient understanding of Christian spirituality with humor and keen insight. He outlines how ascetic practices, personal and corporate worship, confession and repentance, overcoming the passions, and opening ourselves up to God's grace can lead us to transformation, and to our ultimate destiny-Jerusalem, the heavenly city. Fr. Michael Keiser is also the author of "A Beginner's Guide to Prayer" and "Spread the Word: Reclaiming the Apostolic Tradition of Evangelism."

DECEPTION.PRETTY PICTURES HIDE UGLY SECRETS.Denise and Derrek Shaw are the perfect American couple. Happily married for fifteen years, they have a wonderful daughter, Mackenzie, successful careers, and a beautiful home in a posh Chicago suburb. They are attractive, respected . . . and hiding a shocking secret: a dangerous addiction to drugs. It started innocently enough. Denise occasionally used prescription drugs to help her deal with the long hours and demanding nature of her job. Derrek, also under pressure at work, began using cocaine socially with some of his colleagues. They can quit whenever they want to. At least, that's what Denise would like to believe . . . As her job becomes more stressful, Denise can no longer get through the day without a fix. Derrek realizes his harmless habit has become anything but, and desperately wants to get clean. However, his attempts are derailed when there is a sudden family tragedy. Once soul mates, now this husband and wife are quickly losing the immense love that had been the cornerstone of their marriage. With her parents spiraling out of control, Mackenzie makes an unexpected move to take matters into her own hands. Is her sacrifice too late-or is there still hope? Is there a final chance to save the Shaw family?

A Templar's Journey: The Squire from Champagne, Wr Chagnon , 2010, 1608444341, 9781608444342. Follow the young, aristocratic Lord Roland of Champagne as the youth is outcast and disowned from his noble family because of his less-than-virtuous and often unholy conduct. Young Squire Roland's many tribulations are eased by an unlikely cast of characters: his fellow squire, the bold Aaron, an imaginative, street-smart young thief from Paris who becomes his most trusted friend and fellow hooligan; Roland's first love, Lady Marie of Baux; and his mentors Richard the Lionheart, Roland's young warrior uncle, whom he idolizes; Jacob, the Jewish doctor and Templar spy who's ahead of his time medically; Mesnil, the brave and stoic Templar knight who holds many secrets from the highest religious powers; and Martin, the Templar sergeant who is sometimes wayward, is always ready for action, and holds more secrets than all the others. Be there when Roland and his companions meet head-on with danger and adventure along his path. The Chagnon brother-and-sister team are self-admitted Francophiles, with a family history going back to Clovis' court. It seemed natural with this pedigree that Chip, the soldier, historian, and world traveler would team up with Judith, the professionally trained journalist and experienced writer, to pen a novel based in French and Templar history. Chip's love of all things medieval made this historical novel-writing team inevitable. Adding to the passion was Chip's 35-year US Army career with training and experience that provided him with a soldier's insight into assessing Templar character at all levels. Judith returned to college in her late twenties, when the "late-blooming" journalism graduate of Suffolk University began her career writing for the Eagle-Tribune newspaper in Massachusetts. This combined powerful Chagnon family insight has framed day to- day Templar life from the inside out and tells the story in a very believable way.

After storming the beaches on D-Day, June 6, 1944, the Allied invasion of France bogged down in seven weeks of grueling attrition in Normandy. On July 25, U.S. divisions under Gen. Omar Bradley launched Operation Cobra, an attempt to break out of the hedgerows and begin a war of movement across France. Despite a disastrous start, with misdropped bombs killing hundreds of GIs, Cobra proved to be one of the most pivotal battles of World War II, successfully breaking the stalemate in Normandy and clearing a path into occupied France.

Stroke Prevention, John W. Norris, Vladimir Hachinski , 2001, 019513382X, 9780195133820. The treatment of stroke remains ineffective, and prevention is the key issue for this common disease. Norris and Hachinski have recruited an international group of experts to provide a comprehensive, critical review of the evidence on the primary and secondary prevention of cerebrovascular disease and to translate this information into clinical practice. The authors present fresh information on established risk factors such as atrial fibrillation, smoking and hypertension and on new risk factors such as homocysteinemia and the paradoxical role of alcohol. They cover the protective effects of lifestyle changes, diet, exercise, and estrogen. Under secondary prevention, they deal with aspirin, antiplatelet therapy, surgical measures to prevent stroke, angioplasty and stenting, and the importance of cardiac anomalies increasingly revealed by high-definition imaging. While endarterectomy remains controversial for asymptomatic carotid stenosis, it has been clearly defined as the single most effective strategy in secondary prevention. In a concluding section that will be particularly valuable to clinical readers, the authors provide a lucid, balanced discussion of how the findings from clinical trials, where patients are highly selected, closely monitored, and given the highest standard of care, can be effectively applied in the everyday practice of medicine.

Teaching About Evolution and the Nature of Science, Working Group on Teaching Evolution, Board on Science Education, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, National Academy of Sciences , 1998, 0309185416, 9780309185417. Today many school students are shielded from one of the most important concepts in modern science: evolution. In engaging and conversational style, Teaching About Evolution and the Nature of Science provides a well-structured framework for understanding and teaching evolution. Written for teachers, parents, and community officials as well as scientists and educators, this book describes how evolution reveals both the great diversity and similarity among the Earth's organisms; it explores how scientists approach the question of evolution; and it illustrates the nature of science as a way of knowing about the natural world. In addition, the book provides answers to frequently asked questions to help readers understand many of the issues and misconceptions about evolution. The book includes sample activities for teaching about evolution and the nature of science. For example, the book includes activities that investigate fossil footprints and population growth that teachers of science can use to introduce principles of evolution. Background information, materials, and step-by-step presentations are provided for each activity. In addition, this volume: Presents the evidence for evolution, including how evolution can be observed today. Explains the nature of science through a variety of examples. Describes how science differs from other human endeavors and why evolution is one of the best avenues for helping students understand this distinction. Answers frequently asked questions about evolution. Teaching About Evolution and the Nature of Science builds on the 1996 National Science Education Standards released by the National Research Council--and offers detailed guidance on how to evaluate and choose instructional materials that support the standards. Comprehensive and practical, this book brings one of today's educational challenges into focus in a balanced and reasoned discussion. It will be of special interest to teachers of science, school administrators, and interested members of the community.

First published in 1948, Lee Allen's history of the Reds, like Franklin Lewis's history of the Cleveland Indians, was originally published by G. P. Putnam's Sons. Allen narrates the historic organization's success, beginning shortly after the Civil War with baseball's rising popularity among Cincinnati's elite. Eventually, as interest increased, America's first professional baseball team was established in 1868 - Cincinnati's Red Stockings. The Cincinnati Reds chronicles each season from the organization's early years, most notably the 1882 American Association pennant and the 1919 and 1940 National League pennants, and World Series championships, including the infamous Chicago White Sox scandal. Allen retells many of the early Reds stories likely forgotten or unknown by today's fans. This book is as thorough as it is absorbing, and will be enjoyed by those interested in the early days of America's favourite passtime.

Bayesian nonparametrics has grown tremendously in the last three decades, especially in the last few years. This book is the first systematic treatment of Bayesian nonparametric methods and the theory behind them. While the book is of special interest to Bayesians, it will also appeal to statisticians in general because Bayesian nonparametrics offers a whole continuous spectrum of robust alternatives to purely parametric and purely nonparametric methods of classical statistics. The book is primarily aimed at graduate students and can be used as the text for a graduate course in Bayesian nonparametrics. Though the emphasis of the book is on nonparametrics, there is a substantial chapter on asymptotics of classical Bayesian parametric models. Jayanta Ghosh has been Director and Jawaharlal Nehru Professor at the Indian Statistical Institute and President of the International Statistical Institute. He is currently professor of statistics at Purdue University. He has been editor of Sankhya and served on the editorial boards of several journals including the Annals of Statistics. Apart from Bayesian analysis, his interests include asymptotics, stochastic modeling, high dimensional model selection, reliability and survival analysis and bioinformatics. R.V. Ramamoorthi is professor at the Department of Statistics and Probability at Michigan State University. He has published papers in the areas of sufficiency invariance, comparison of experiments, nonparametric survival analysis and Bayesian analysis. In addition to Bayesian nonparametrics, he is currently interested in Bayesian networks and graphical models. He is on the editorial board of Sankhya.

Dorinda had featured roles in musical theatre-The Three Musketeers, The Song of Norway, The Waltz King- and in films, working with Fred Astaire, Busby Berkeley, Gene Loring, Doris Day, and Charlie Chaplin. Dorinda tells her sometimes hilarious, sometimes tragic story with insight and wit-the ups and downs of her father's career, her mother's obliviousness, the whirlwind of the 60s and 70s: a fascinating life-a Hollywood life, a countercultural life. But more than that, it's a very well-written book, with great vividness of image, sharpness of language, and subtlety of structure.

Adsorption of dissolved metals and radionuclides on earth materials has been a focus of considerable research during the past 15 years. These sorption processes are the basis for understanding the dynamics of element cycling in natural systems, including the fate of contaminant elements in groundwater systems. This book is a collection of peer-reviewed papers contributed by leading investigators from Canada, France, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom and the U.S. in conjunction with a symposium organized for the Spring 1996 ACS meeting. The book documents the current status of adsorption research for a variety of metals and earth materials. It examines virtually all factors affecting the extent of metal adsorption on geomedia ranging from single minerals to sediments and soils. Copyright Libri GmbH. All rights reserved.

Zermelo's Axiom of Choice: Its Origins, Development, and Influence, Gregory H. Moore, Mathematics , 2012, 0486488411, 9780486488417. The Axiom of Choice is the most controversial axiom in the entire history of mathematics. Yet it remains a crucial assumption not only in set theory but equally in modern algebra, analysis, mathematical logic, and topology (often under the name Zorn's Lemma). This treatment is the only full-length history of the axiom in English, and is much more complete than the two other books on the subject, one in French and the other in Russian. This book covers the Axiom's prehistory of implicit uses in the 19th century, its explicit formulation by Zermelo in 1904, the firestorm of controversy that it caused in England, France, Germany, Italy, and the U.S. its role in stimulating his axiomatization of set theory in 1908, and its proliferating uses all over mathematics throughout the 20th century. The book is written so as to be accessible to the advanced mathematics undergraduate, but equally to be informative and stimulating to the professional mathematician. Most technical terms are defined in footnotes, making it accessible by students of the philosophy of mathematics as well. This new edition has an expanded bibliography and a new preface examining developments since its original 1982 publication.

Argonaut Rose, , Diane Wakoski , 1998, 1574230468, 9781574230468. Wakoski's autobiographical Argonautica employs the myth of quest to discover meaning in personal history. Here, following the successes of Medea the Sorceress (1991), Jason the Sailor (1993) and The Emerald City of Las Vegas (1995), this crowning volume in The Archaeology of Movies and Books returns to the epic journey of search and discovery. Retracing "all the footsteps I've left behind me", the narrator remembers all the "Jasons" in her life -- absent fathers, irresistible lovers -- "those betrayers as I saw them, who left me, who left me; for how can we hate the person we want, so much, to love us?" Here, sexuality as "the true voice / of the body, not its great deceiver" remains nonetheless the constant ground of deception and self-deceiving. Desire and betrayal, the gold of youth and the silver of age, intuition and wisdom intermingle in a rich thematic weave.

First Shot, Walter Sorrells , 2009, 0142414212, 9780142414217. David Crandall's mother was murdered. With few clues, no witnesses, and no motive, the police were never able to solve the crime. Now, two years after the murder, David's starting his senior year and struggling to get on with his life. But still, the doubt remains: could someone in his small town know something about his mother's death? And when David uncovers troubling clues that lead to a deep family secret, he starts to wonder if his mother's death is tied to the scandal. Then one night, David spies his father burying an old rifle in a deserted lot near his house, and is left with one thought: is his own father the killer?

A deadly misunderstanding: a congressman's quest to bridge the Muslim-Christian divide, Mark D. Siljander, John David Mann , 2008, 0061438286, 9780061438288. Former Congressman and Deputy Ambassador to the United Nations Mark D. Siljander takes us on an eye-opening journey of personal, religious, and political discovery. In the 1980s, Siljander was a newly minted Reagan Republican from Michigan who joined Congress in the same generation as Newt Gingrich and Tom DeLay, ready to remake the world. A staunch member of the Religious Right, he once walked out of the National Prayer Breakfast when a speaker quoted from the Qur'an. But after losing reelection, Siljander dove into the Bible to look for the passage in which the Bible says it is our job as Christians to convert others in order to save them from eternal damnation. He couldn't find it; in fact, he couldn't even find a passage saying that Jesus set out to form a new religion. This discovery was the first step on a spiritual and political journey that started with an in-depth linguistic study of the Bible and led to the discovery that Christianity and Islam share many base words and concepts. In his role as ambassador to the United Nations Siljander began sharing his insights on the connections between Islam and Christianity, with surprising results. A Deadly Misunderstanding recounts Siljander's amazing discoveries as he travels to some of the most remote and hostile places in the world deep into Libya, Sudan, Pakistan, and India forging deep ties with both heads of state and religious leaders. What he has learned could radically shift the contemporary religious landscape and help heal the rift between Islam and the West. No Christian or Muslim will be unaffected after reading this book.

Immunopharmacology of Mast Cells and Basophils, John C. Foreman , 1993, 0122622103, 9780122622106. There has been a steady and continued research effort directed to understanding both the function and the role of mast cells and basophils ever since these cells were first described at the end of the nineteenth century. One of the most significant advances has perhaps been the appreciation of the fact that mast cells do not represent a single homogenous population of cells: they display heterogeneity at the morphological, biochemical and functional levels. The one characteristic that unites all types of mast cells and basophils appears to be the possession of the high affinity membrane receptor for immunoglobulin E, through which the cells may be stimulated. This volume begins with a review of the origin and development of mast cells and basophils. It continues by reviewing our knowledge of the stimuli to mast cells and basophils and the biochemical mechanisms which link the signal generated by stimulus to the response machinery of the cell. Further chapters deal with the drug control of mast cell and basophil responses, the heterogeneity of the cells' functions and the mediators' release by the cells, along with the morphological aspects of the cells' function. This book is completed by a selection of examples which examine the role of the mast cells or basophils in lung, skin and gastrointestinal tract. However, the role of the mast cell with regard to normal physiology, remains an open question. This book aims to provide an up-to-date account of mast cell and basophil biology, together with an insight into the functional relevance of these cells in some tissue types.

White Collar Crime: An Opportunity Perspective, Michael Benson, Sally S. Simpson , 2009, 0203880439, 9780203880432. As an instructor teaching white collar crime, are you frustrated by texts which leave your students feeling outraged but helpless about the subject? Assigning this new text by Mike Benson and Sally Simpson can successfully address that problem, because it explains to students why white-collar crime is so prevalent and so difficult to control. Using this text, instructors can show students how these crimes are carried out in ways that make them difficult to discover. Instructors can also show how opportunities for white-collar crimes could be reduced if we were to approach the problem from the perspective of situational crime prevention. The authors address the difficulty of controlling white-collar crime in detail, and speculate on the future of white-collar crime in the rapidly globalizing world of trans-national corporations.

Chanukah Night Life, , 2012, 098832430X, 9780988324305. This traditional Jewish story is brought to life through the eyes of a book---not this book but another book. Read and see how the timeless story of Chanukah, the Festival of Lights, is brought alive through its characters. These are not just ordinary characters, no, the characters are the Chanukah gifts that are received on each night of the eight day celebration. The gifts will teach old truths to all children. Whatever your age the story will shed new light, even in this modern day. This story is both, entertaining and instructional. It, also, gives the history of our ancestors. It is a story of good overcoming evil, of light overcoming darkness and love overcoming all things. The story tells us about the transformation of one of its characters from sadness to joy. It gives us hope. Chanukah is important to the Jewish people, as well, as to the Church. Although it is part of our history---our past, the Festival of Lights foreshadows the Promised Messiah---our future.

The Picture of Dorian Gray and Other Tales, Oscar Wilde , 2006, 0973709030, 9780973709032. An innocent's wish, once granted, gives rise to one of literature's most memorable villains in Oscar Wilde's tale of prodigal aestheticism, "The Picture of Dorian Gray." Under the tutelage of Lord Henry Wotton, Dorian is lead into a double life - a surface of eternal youth in prim Victorian society barely concealing an existence of decadence, vice and moral decay. The chilling narrative and Wilde's faerie tale collection, "The Happy Prince" are richly illustrated by Cyrus Rua ("The Grimmiest of Grimm.") As an added bonus, this volume also features the original Lippincott's Monthly edition of "The Picture of Dorian Gray" as it first appeared in 1890. Life is a question of nerves, and fibres, and slowly built-up cells in which thought hides itself and passion has its dreams. "The Picture of Dorian Gray" is the tale of a life ungoverned by will or intention as a single man witnesses, through a chilling portrait, the destruction of his own soul.

After Unity: Reconfiguring German Identities, , Konrad Hugo Jarasch , 1997, 1571810412, 9781571810410. After the fall of the Wall revealed the precariousness of GDR loyalties and precipitated the rush to unity, the enlarged Federal Republic can no longer be considered a provisional construct; it is forced to rethink its own role and purpose as a nation-state. In order to probe this new uncertainty and to explore the consequences of unification for German politics, history and culture, political scientists, historians and literary scholars have come together in this volume to focus on the main issues of the current debate such as the shadow of the Nazi past, the threat of xenophobia, new regional tensions, persistent problems of gender relations, and the future shape of Europe. From these interdisciplinary essays a complex picture of competing and complementary identities emerges that challenges traditional and simplistic Anglo-American stereotypes and offers compelling evidence of a self-critical spirit and the democratic nature of the political culture of the new Germany.

How to Live an Exotic Life in an Ordinary World, Michele A. Pike , 2006, 0977207862, 9780977207862. We all possess the tools we need to direct our lives toward our maximum potential of fulfillment. Sometimes we just need a little reminder. How to Live An Exotic Life in an Ordinary World is just that reminder. In a delightful, friendly style, Michele A Pike invites you to explore and experience the joy of being your unique, exotic self. Whether its learning to belly dance, whipping up an aromatic Indian dish, treating yourself in a pampering exercise or creating a mystical tent, you are entreated to try new, fun things. Interspersed with these freeing experiments are short inspirations to encourage you when you need it most: what to do if you feel depressed, how to treat a common cold, and how to transform your greatest disappointments into your most profound victories. Whimsical drawings throughout the text help you smile as you grow. Hidden in these lighthearted explorations are real, significant lessons in letting go of our self-imposed limits and freeing ourselves.

Few historical events have inspired so much controversy and debate as the French Revolution. The origins, nature and effects of the Revolution have been the themes of a voluminous literature, especially since the 1950s, and there has been sharp disagreement among historians about them. This book discusses the present state of the controversy and provides detailed suggestions for further reading. Blanning explains the different interpretations advanced by Marxist, revisionist and post-revisionist historians in order to provide students with access to the literature and to help them to form their own views.

Global Public Goods: International Cooperation in the 21st Century, Inge Kaul, Isabelle Grunberg, Marc A. Stern , 1999, 0195130510, 9780195130515. Globalization does not have to entail a loss of sovereignty. Indeed, if the proper policies are adopted, it can strengthen that sovereignty. But to manage globalization requires that we recognize the importance of global public goods. The essays here suggest innovative and practical strategies to ensure a more reliable supply of these public goods - such as environmental sustainability, market efficiency, equity, health, knowledge or peace. The book's intent is to take the concept of global public goods out of the rarified circle of micro-economists and pass it as a practical tool into the hands of those who on a daily basis struggle with global policy challenges and crises. Global Public Goods: International Cooperation in the 21st Century is for political leaders, offering concrete ideas on adjusting policymaking to the new realities. It is for students of economics and political science, proposing a definition of global public goods and exploring its applicability to a wide range of issues. It is for the development community, identifying innovative approaches to North-South cooperation. And it is for business and civil society, underscoring the need for a new tripartism in international policymaking.

Demons and the Devil: Moral Imagination in Modern Greek Culture, Charles Stewart , 1991, 0691028486, 9780691028484. In present-day Greece many people still speak of exotikNB--mermaids, dog-form creatures, and other monstrous beings similar to those pictured on medieval maps. Challenging the conventional notion that these often malevolent demons belong exclusively to a realm of folklore or superstition separate from Christianity, Charles Stewart looks at beliefs about the exotikNB and the Orthodox Devil to demonstrate the interdependency of doctrinal and local religion. He argues persuasively that students who cling to the timeworn folk/official distinction will find it impossible to appreciate the breadth and coherence of contemporary Greek cosmology. Like the medieval cartographers' fantasies, which were placed on the "edges" of the physical world, Greek demons cluster in marginal locations--outlying streams, wells, and caves. The demons are near enough to the community, however, to attack humans--causing illness or death, according to Stewart's informants. Drawing on an unusual range of sources, from the author's fieldwork on the Cycladic island of Naxos to Orthodox liturgical texts, this book pictures the exotikNB as elements of a Greek cognitive map: figures that enable individuals to navigate the traumas and ambiguities of life. Stewart also examines the social forces that have by turns disposed the Greek people to embrace these demons as indicative of links with the classical past or to eschew them as signs of backwardness and ignorance.

How Much Should A Person Consume? : Thinking Through The Environment, Ramachandra Guha , 2010, 935009259X, 9789350092590. About the Book : - Based on research conducted over two decades, this accessible and deeply felt book provides a provocative comparative history of environmentalism in two large ecologically and culturally diverse democracies India and the United States. Ramachandra Guha takes as his point of departure the dominant environmental philosophies in these two countries identified as agrarianism in India and wilderness thinking in the United States. Proposing an inclusive social ecology framework that goes beyond these partisan ideologies, Guha arrives at a richer understanding of controversies over large dams, state forests, wildlife reserves, and more. He offers trenchant critiques of privileged and isolationist proponents of conservation, persuasively arguing for biospheres that care as much for humans as for other species. He also provides profiles of three remarkable environmental thinkers and activists Lewis Mumford, Chandi Prasad Bhatt, and Madhav Gadgil. Finally, the author asks the fundamental environmental question how much should a person or country consume? and explores a range of answers. About the Author : - Ramachandra Guha has taught at Stanford and Yale universities. He has been a Sundaraja Visiting Professor at the Indian Institute of Science, and Indo-American Community Chair Visiting Professor at the University of California at Berkeley. A pioneer in the field of environmental history, he is the author of The Unquiet Woods (University of California Press), among other books. His work on modern Indian history, India after Gandhi (Ecco) has been critically acclaimed. His essays have been widely anthologized and translated. He was awarded the Padma Bhushan in 2009.

For the May Queen, Kate Evans , 2008, 0982115075, 9780982115077. It's 1981 and 17-year-old Norma Rogers' parents drop her off at the college dorms. Soon, Norma finds herself drunk and nearly naked with three strangers. The strip poker event is the first of many experiences that prompt Norma to question who she is-and who she wants to be. Norma's relationships with an array of characters induce her to grapple with society's messages about women, sex, and freedom. These characters include Jack, her aloof on-again, off-again boyfriend; Goat, her antsy dorm neighbor; Liz Chan, a pot-smoking sorority girl; Benny Moss, a nerdy guy who has a thing for Liz; and Paul Fellows, Benny's roommate, whom Norma calls "Chuck" because he reminds her of Charlie Brown. Chuck, a witty aficionado of old films, plays a pivotal role in Norma's discoveries about life's possibilities, as does Norma's roommate Stacy-a beautiful, kind, and somewhat mysterious blonde. Many tumultuous events take Norma through an array of troubles, pleasures, and thrills: from drug use and ominous encounters with strangers, to rowdy parties and road trips, to queer coming-out surprises. In the midst of these incidents-which are peppered with 1970's and 1980's pop cultural references-Norma reflects on her desire for freedom (sexual and otherwise). Reinforcing these themes are the intermittent appearances of her middle-class parents and her sister, as well as her best friend from high school whose life in a small town-as she prepares for her upcoming wedding-is poles apart from Norma's. Ultimately Norma comes to see that there are many ways to live and

What's Fair?: American Beliefs about Distributive Justice, Jennifer L. Hochschild , 1986, 0674950879, 9780674950870.

The search for equality has been an enduring one in the United States. Yet there has been little significant change in the distribution of wealth over the generations, while the political ideology of socialism has been rejected outright by most people. In a sensitive rendering of data, Jennifer Hochschild discovers that it is the nonrich themselves who do not support the downward redistribution of wealth. Using a long questionnaire and in-depth interviews, she examines the ideals and contemporary practices of Americans on the subject of distributive justice. She finds that both rich and poor Americans perceive three realms in their lives: the private, the political, and the economic. People tend to support equality in two of the realms: the private, where fundamental socialization takes place in the family, school, and neighborhood, and the political, where issues arise about taxes, private property, rights, political representation, social welfare policies, and visions of utopia. But in the economic realm of the workplace, class structure, and opportunity, Americans favor maintaining material differences among people. Hochschild shows how divergence between ideals and practices, and especially between Americans' views of political and economic justice, produces ambivalence. Issues involving redistribution of wealth force people to think about whether they prefer political equalization or economic differentiation. Uncertain, Americans sometimes support equality, sometimes inequality, sometimes are torn between these two beliefs. As a result, they are often tense, helpless, or angry. It is not often that Americans are allowed to talk so candidly and within rigorous social science sampling about their lives. Hochschild gives us a new combination of oral history and political theory that political scientists, philosophers, sociologists, and policymakers can read with profit and pleasure.

The American family is changing. Divorce, single parents, and stepfamilies are redefining the way we live together and raise our children. Is this a change for the worse? David Popenoe sets out the case for fatherhood and the two-parent family as the best arrangement for ensuring the well-being and future development of children. His argument has two critical assumptions, which he supports with evidence from a variety of disciplines, including anthropology, biology, and history. The first is that children flourish best when raised by a father and a mother with their differing psychological and behavioral traits. The second is that marriage, which serves to hold fathers to the mother-child bond, is an institution we must strengthen if the decline of fatherhood is to be reversed.

Matrices for Engineers, Allan D. Kraus , 2002, 0195150139, 9780195150131. Matrices for Engineers is designed to supply engineers and engineering students with a foundation in matrix theory and versatility in the manipulation of matrices. The book's approach provides the necessary material in a direct manner, with examples that illustrate each concept as it appears. The book emphasizes methodology and includes topics such as how to obtain the characteristic polynomial of a matrix; the factorizations of a coefficient matrix for ease of computation; and linear transformations from an intuitive and engineering point of view, in which conditions at one point in a system induce conditions at another. Indeed, it covers computational techniques and goes beyond matrix algebra to include matrix calculus. Perfect for self-study, Matrices for Engineers also functions as a supplement to Oxford University Press's popular Linear Circuit Analysis, Second Edition (0-19-513666-7), by Raymond A. DeCarlo and Pen-Min Lin or any introductory electrical engineering text, such as Introduction to Electrical Engineering (0-19-513604-7) by Mulukutla S. Sarma. The name of John Maynard Keynes is still the focus of political and economic controversy, and in the course of it, "what Keynes really meant" has suffered much distortion. This book represents a quest for the historical Keynes. It follows the story of an argument which arose out of the performance of the British economy in the period of depression between the wars and provides an account of Keynes's thinking in the years that led up to the General Theory, making it comprehensible to specialists and non-specialists alike.

0974868663, 9780974868660. The book is illustrated by an Englishman, designed by a German, and written by an Indian---a work of moderately global proportions. WHY ME? is a hilarious collection of 25 episodes in the life and household of the book's central character, Garth T. Pendleton, an early middle-age American male, who the author has patterned after Ralph Kramden of the Honeymooners and Homer of the Simpsons. Garth perpetually befuddled about a lot of things---waiting in a slow line, waiting for an airplane that is hours behind schedule, dealing with the telephone and cable company, trying to follow instructions for assembling a bicycle that has 1,000+ components (or so it seems), negotiating with his headstrong daughter and fighting with the almighty City Hall. His wife, Nora on the other hand, is never confused about anything---makes for lively living, at the very least! The 25 episodes are divided into 4 sections titled: LIFE!, Money Matters, Yeah, It Sure Do!, Home Front (and Back) and Work! Work! Work!

Nanofabrication aims at building nanoscale structures, which can act as components, devices, or systems, in large quantities at potentially low cost. Nanofabrication is vital to all nanotechnology fields, especially for the realization of nanotechnology that involves the traditional areas across engineering and science. Includes chapters covering the most important Nanofabrication techniques, which aids comprehensive understanding of the latest manufacturing technologies encountered in the field of nano-level manufacturing which is essential for preparing for advanced study and application in nanofabrication techniques by enabling thorough understanding of the entire nanofabrication process as it applies to advanced electronic and related manufacturing technologies. Each chapter covers a nanofabrication technique comprehensively, which allows the reader to learn to produce nanometer-level products as well as collect, process, and analyze data, improve process parameters, and how to assist engineers in research, development and manufacture of the same. Includes contributions from recognized experts from around the globe, making the reader aware of variations in similar techniques applied in different geographical locations and is better positioned to establish all possible global applications.

Unity3 is an amazing game development tool being used around the world by professional, indie and bedroom game developers. This hands-on blueprints book is designed to get to the heart of Unity 3 development by showing you how to create 4 classic games with a Unity twist. All the code and the high quality game art assets are available from the Deep Pixel website so you can build the games yourself or customize your own projects! This book is aimed at indie game developers and artists who want to develop winning video games. This book will assume no prior knowledge of Unity or game creation in general, but you should be comfortable in development environments and have some knowledge of scripting (a refresher will be provided). This book uses JavaScript as the example language. Games: Match the Pairs, Top-Down Shooter, Tower Defense, Marble Madness. Play all the games and download all the code now from the Deep Pixel website.

If I Could, Nancy Sweetland , 2008, 0977090698, 9780977090693. If I Could is an adventurous flight of fancy. A young boy wishes what he might do or be, if only he could. Wishing he could fly like a bird or hop like a toad leads our young hero to far- flung fantasies of wishing to be a river, a star, and even a whole hive of bees. Oh, if only he could! But in the end he finds, sometimes it's best to be just who you are. This tale is a new take on the old story of how the grass always seems greener on the other side of the fence. Exploring a world full of beautiful, fanciful, and sometimes downright comical, possibilities, If I Could easily puts an audience in other worlds with the skillful use of rhythm and rhyme. But in the end, our young friend finds, and you will too, that sometimes it's best to be just who you are. The book is bilingual with full text in English and again in Spanish. The final page is keyword vocabulary page to jumpstart reading in either language. If I Could is available in hardcover and paperback versions.

Nietzsche's Sister and The Will to Power: A Biography of Elisabeth Frster-Nietzsche, , Carol Diethe, 2003, 0252028260, 9780252028267. Elisabeth Frster-Nietzsche was two years younger than her brother, Friedrich Nietzsche, and outlived him by thirty-five years. In 1901, a year after Nietzsche's death, she published The Will to Power, a hasty compilation of writings he never intended for print. In Nietzsche's Sister and the Will to Power, Carol Diethe contends that Frster-Nietzsche's own will to power and her desire to place herself, not her brother, at the center of cultural life in Germany are responsible for Nietzsche's reputation as a belligerent and proto-fascist thinker. During the latter part of her life, Frster-Nietzsche propagated and presided over a Nietzsche cult in Weimar Germany. Many intellectuals believed she had abetted her brother's legacy by bringing his publications to print. But, as Diethe claims, Frster-Nietzsche's well-known fascist and anti-Semitic ties, as well as her declaration that her brother would have supported the Germans in World War I, have marred Nietzsche's legacy and linked him to political campaigns and ideals he did not actually endorse. spirited and erudite biography examines why Elisabeth Frster-Nietzsche recklessly consorted with anti-Semites, from her own husband, Bernard Frster, to Hitler himself, out of convenience and a desire for revenge against a brother whose love for her waned after she had caused the collapse of his friendship with Lou Salom in 1882. In distilling the reasons Frster-Nietzsche betrayed and endangered the reputation of the man she loved best, the book examines the dynamics of their family, Nietzsche's dismissal of his sister's early writing career, and the effects of limited education on intelligent women. Diethe also plumbs the details of Frster-Nietzsche's brief marriage and her subsequent colonial venture in Paraguay, maintaining that her sporadic anti-Semitism was, like most things in her life, an expedient tool for cultivating personal success and status.

Reconsidering Michael Polanyis Philosophy, Stefania Ruzsits Jha , 2002, 0822977338, 9780822977339. The chemist and philosopher Michael Polanyi (1891-1976) was one of the first twentieth-century scientists to propose a program to resolve the internal conflict of the modern Enlightenment: scientific detachment and moral nihilism with humanist values. Stefania Jhas intellectual biography places Polanyi in the context of his time and culture, analyzes his key philosophical ideas, and explicates the application and at times misappropriation of his work. Polanyis method was not laid out in his published works, and his vocabulary tends to make his writings difficult to understand. By exposing the structure of his theory of tacit knowing, and by tracing the growth of his thinking, Jha shows how the various elements of his thought are integrated. Through examination of his philosophical roots in Kant and the complexity of his evolving thought, she counteracts the popular notion that Polanyis philosophy stands apart from the western philosophic tradition. Jhas deep analysis makes Polanyis shift of focus from science to philosophy more intelligible, his philosophy more approachable, and the causes he championed such as the freedom of science and cultural freedom more understandable. Applying his notion of tacit knowing in practical directions, Jha seeks to bring the study of Polanyis philosophy out of the specialists enclave and into such fields as ethics and clinical medicine.

Games and Decision Making, Second Edition, is a unique blend of decision theory and game theory. From classical optimization to modern game theory, authors Charalambos D. Aliprantis and Subir K. Chakrabarti show the importance of mathematical knowledge in understanding and analyzing issues in decision making. Through an imaginative selection of topics, Aliprantis and Chakrabarti treat decision and game theory as part of one body of knowledge. They move from problems involving the individual decision-maker to progressively more complex problems such as sequential rationality, auctions, and bargaining. By building each chapter on material presented earlier, the authors offer a self-contained and comprehensive treatment of these topics. Successfully class-tested in an advanced undergraduate course at the Krannert School of Management and in a graduate course in economics at Indiana University, Games and Decision Making, Second Edition, is an essential text for advanced undergraduates and graduate students of decision theory and game theory. The book is accessible to students who have a good basic understanding of elementary calculus and probability theory. New to this Edition* Chapter 2 includes new sections on two-person games, best-response strategies, mixed strategies, and incomplete information* Chapter 4 has been expanded to provide new material on behavior strategies and applications* The chapter on auctions (5) includes a new section on revenue equivalence* Offers two new chapters, on repeated games (7) and existence results (9)* New applications have been added to all the chapters American Musicians II: Seventy-two Portraits in Jazz, Whitney Balliett , 1996, 0195095383, 9780195095388. When Whitney Balliett's American Musicians first appeared in the fall of 1986, the acclaim it received was universal. Leonard Feather, writing in The Los Angeles Times, said "no other writer now living can write with comparable grace and equal enthusiasm about everyone from Jack Teagarden and Art Tatum to Cecil Taylor and Ornette Coleman." And Bruce Cook in The New Leader called the book "the quintessential Whitney Balliett, the cream of the cream, a collection that leaves no doubt about his strength." Now greatly expanded with sixteen new essays, American Musicians II remains a superb introduction to the giants of jazz, or as Balliett himself calls it, "a highly personal encyclopedia, a series of close accounts of how a beautiful music grew, flourished, and (possibly) began the long trek back to its native silences." Breathtaking in its scope, the book features Balliett's singular portraits of jazz greats who have shaped this uniquely American tradition from its earliest days to the present, from inimitable innovators like Joe "King" Oliver and Jelly Roll Morton, to swing-era mainstays Fats Waller and Lester Young, to avant-garde pioneers such as Cecil Taylor and Ornette Coleman. We are treated to profiles of Pee Wee Russell, Red Allen, Earl Hines, and Mary Lou Williams, written when they were at the height of their powers; reconstructions of the lives of Art Tatum, Coleman Hawkins, Jack Teagarden, Zoot Sims, and Dave Tough; quick but indelible glimpses into the daily (or nocturnal) lives of Duke Ellington and Charles Mingus; and vivid portrayals of such modern masters as Red Norvo, Buddy Rich, Elvin Jones, Art Farmer, Michael Moore, and Tommy Flanagan. This new edition adds essays on such major musicians as Benny Goodman, Charlie Parker, Dizzy Gillespie, George Shearing, and Paul Desmond. In the forty years that he has written for The New Yorker, Whitney Balliett has earned the reputation as America's foremost jazz critic. The late Philip Larkin described him as a "writer who brings jazz journalism to the verge of poetry." Alistair Cook wrote that he is, "without a rival in sight, the most literate and knowledgeable living writer on jazz." And Gene Lees called him "one of the most graceful essayists in the English language on any subject." Now, with the second edition of American Musicians in hand, music lovers can experience Balliett's peerless observations on the jazz scene, as he takes you into the hearts and minds of jazz's great practitioners.

Here, Sample outlines an iconoclastic style of leadership that flies in the face of current leadership thought, but a style that unquestionably works, nevertheless. Sample urges leaders and aspiring leaders to focus on some key counterintuitive truths. He offers his own down-to-earth, homespun, and often provocative advice on some complex and thoughtful issues. And he provides many practical, if controversial, tactics for successful leadership, suggesting, among other things, that leaders should sometimes compromise their principles, not read everything that comes across their desks, and always put off decisions.

Performance Analysis of Manufacturing Systems, Tayfur Altiok , 1997, 0387947736, 9780387947730. Manufacturing industries are devoted to producing high-quality products in the most economical and timely manner. Quality, economics, and time not only indicate the customer-satisfaction level, but also measure the manufacturing performance of a company. Today's manufacturing environments are becoming more and more complex, flexible, and information-intensive. Companies invest into the information technologies such as computers, communication networks, sensors, actuators, and other equipment that give them an abundance of information about their materials and resources. In the face of global competition, a manufacturing company's survival is becoming more dependent on how best this influx of information is utilized. Consequently, there evolves a great need for sophisticated tools of performance analysis that use this information to help decision makers in choosing the right course of action. These tools will have the capability of data analysis, modeling, computer simulation, and optimization for use in designing products and processes. International competition also has had its impact on manufacturing education and the government's support of it in the US. We see more courses offered in this area in industrial engineering and manufacturing systems engineering departments, operations research programs, and business schools. In fact, we see an increasing number of manufacturing systems engineering departments and manufacturing research centers in universities not only in the US but also in Europe, Japan, and many developing countries.

Brain development and epilepsy, Philip A. Schwartzkroin , 1995, 0195078462, 9780195078466. In recent years, developmental neurobiologists have made significant progress toward understanding the processes that determine normal organization and function of the central nervous system. Although this research provides the necessary basis for examining the factors that contribute to the age-dependent expression of seizures, there has been surprisingly little communication between developmental neurobiologists and the clinicians who deal with pediatric epilepsy patients. An understanding of normal and pathological functions in the immature central nervous system requires a special appreciation of developmentally unique mechanisms. This integrated volume applies the emerging concepts in developmental neurobiology to an understanding of the origins of the epilepsies of childhood. Early chapters give a picture of the age-specific epileptic syndromes and their associated pathologies, and describe experimental approaches toward understanding the basic mechanisms underlying these clinical phenomena. The following chapters provide an outline of developmental properties that may be critical to the generation of abnormal excitability, and pose hypotheses about pathological consequences of "mistakes" in key developmental processes. The final chapters attempt to integrate our knowledge of both maturational and epileptogenic mechanisms as a means not only for understanding epilepsies of the immature organism, but also for developing more effective treatment of these often devastating syndromes.

Resources for science literacy: professional development, Volume 1, Project 2061 \(American Association for the Advancement of Science\) , 1997, 0195108736, 9780195108736. Ten years ago, Project 2061 of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) set out to define what it means to be science literate. Project 2061 confronted this issue head on with the creation of Science for All Americans, a work that defined the knowledge, skills, and habits of mind that all citizens need to live interesting, responsible, and productive lives in a culture shaped by science and technology. Benchmarks for Science Literacy took this a step further, mapping how student understanding should progress from simple ideas intelligible to kindergartners toward the more sophisticated knowledge recommended for high school graduates. Now, Project 2061 has turned its attention toward the educators themselves, focusing on the manner in which teachers prepare for their work in the classroom. Resources for Science Literacy, a new two-part, CD-ROM tool, offers educators the opportunity to enhance their understanding of science literacy; make sound decisions about curriculum materials, classroom instruction, and assessment; and make better use of Science for All Americans and Benchmarks for Science Literacy. At same time, it works to bypass some of the obstacles that have stymied education reform efforts in the past. Few teachers can be expected to understand all of the topics included in Science for All Americans--from the natural and social sciences, mathematics, technology, and their interconnection to the history and nature of science and technology. Experts on teacher education and professional development recognize this dilemma and how it affects the ability to adequately convey what students need to know. Resources for Science Literacy: Professional Development has been created to meet the needs of today's teachers, offering help in overcoming the difficulties of making science literacy a reality. Resources for Science Literacy: Professional Development offers a carefully selected collection of references, workshop activities, research, analyses, and course plans that illustrate many aspects of science literacy and its application to K-12 science education. Links throughout the text allow users to search for resources relating to specific topics presented in Science for All Americans, Professional Development places a veritable storehouse of developmental tools and strategies right at the user's fingertips. For example, users can create a customized list of recommended trade books dealing with the scientific inquiry chapter of Science for All Americans, then review the specific learning goals related to that topic recommended in Benchmarks for Science Literacy and the National Science Education Standards, go on to explore the cognitive research on student learning of concepts related to scientific inquiry, and, finally, examine the college course syllabi for guidance on developing a systematic approach to learning more about the topic. For teachers planning their own professional growth, individuals and higher education institutions involved in planning preservice and inservice education, and school districts designing staff development programs, Resources for Science Literacy: Professional Development will be an invaluable asset. Key Features: * Full text of Science for All Americans * Science Trade Books * Cognitive Research * College Course's * Comparisons of Benchmarks to National Standards * Project 2061 Workshop Guide The Resources for Science Literacy: Professional Development CD-ROM makes available for the first time the full text of Science for All Americans in an electronic format. Its other major components are: Project 2061 Workshop Guide Project 2061 receives frequent requests from educators for help in understanding and using Science for All Americans and Benchmarks for Science Literacy as tools to plan curriculum, instruction, and assessment. In response, it has developed workshops for a variety of purposes and audiences, including teachers, administrators, curriculum developers, and policymakers. Developed by over three dozen teachers from Project 2061 School-District Center teams and other consultants, the Workshop Guide brings together a wide array of workshop options so that educators can design their own workshops to suit specific needs, audiences, and time frames. The Guide includes detailed instructions for planning a Project 2061 workshop; essential workshop components, including recommended options for making progress toward particular goals; suggestions for evaluating audience understanding of a presentation; and sample workshop plans, agendas, handouts, transparencies, and evaluation forms. And an easy-to-use table of contents provides brief summaries of each workshop and its purpose, offering a simple way to preview and select appropriate options. Science Trade Books Most teachers will be quite knowledgeable about some of the topics in Science for All Americans but less familiar with others. In turn, the Science Trade Books component consists of books that range from basic introductions--some actually written with young adults in mind--to more sophisticated treatments requiring considerable background knowledge. In addition to nonfiction science books, this database includes novels, philosophical works, and collections of essays that shed light on various aspects of science literacy. Featuring more than two hundred citations, users may browse the entire collection of entries alphabetically by author or title, or by calling up books related to a particular section of Science for All Americans, while links allow users to view brief introductions to the books, notes on special characteristics of some works, bibliographic information, and reviews where available. Each title has been critically reviewed by the AAAS's Science Book and Films or a similar source and explicitly addresses content in Science for All Americans. College Courses College Courses provides fifteen syllabi from college courses that were designed to increase students' knowledge of science, mathematics, and technology and their interconnections. The courses chosen for Professional Development were submitted by university faculty that had analyzed their existing syllabi for strong links to Science for All Americans. As with Science Trade Books, a special effort was made to include syllabi that cover topics found in Science for All Americans with which teachers are least likely to be familiar, such as technology, cross-cutting themes, and the nature and history of science. Easily accessed by title, author, or relevant Science for All Americans chapter, each syllabus contains information on the course author or contact person, a general

description of the course, the topics it covers, the sequence of those topics, and student assignments. Also included are reading lists, lab manuals, and any other published materials related to the course, as well as links, identified by the course author, between the course and chapters of Science for All Americans. Many authors were able to provide a more detailed explanation of how the course specifically relates to Science for All Americans, an extended syllabus, a short summary of how the course design supports student learning, and any research (published or not) related to student understanding of the course content. Comparisons of Benchmarks to National Standards Shortly after Project 2061 published Science for All Americans in 1989, the National Council for Teachers of Mathematics released its Curriculum and Evaluation Standards for School Mathematics. Five years later Project 2061 published Benchmarks for Science Literacy, the National Research Council published its National Science Education Standards and the National Council for the Social Studies published its Curriculum Standards for Social Studies. Project 2061 has analyzed these documents and made detailed comparisons of each with Science for All Americans and Benchmarks for Science Literacy. These three comparisons have been made available on CD-ROM so that educators can make informed use of the documents together or separately. Moreover, the comparisons illustrate the growing consensus on what students should know in science, mathematics, and technology. Cognitive Research Many teachers have little access to the latest education research or experience applying it to instruction. Most would agree, however, with Benchmarks for Science Literacy's claim that, "Overestimation of what students can learn at a given age results in student frustration, lack of confidence, and unproductive learning strategies, such as memorization without understanding." Because understanding the research on how students learn science concepts is so important to promoting science literacy goals, Benchmarks for Science Literacy included Chapter 15: The Research Base, a survey of the research that influenced the content and grade-level placement of benchmark ideas. However, it did not include any articles, reports, or books specifically written for teachers. The Cognitive Research component has been developed to supplement Chapter 15, providing references to additional reading that teachers can pursue based on their own personal interest or as part of their inservice/preservice education. It includes descriptions of over eighty articles and reports, seventeen books, and four videos related to student learning of concepts from Science for All Americans and Benchmarks for Science Literacy. All the research can be accessed through an alphabetical listing of articles, books, and videos by author or title, or by selecting research related to a specific Science for All Americans chapter or section.

"I set out to find a group of people who, like me, were possessed by a history they had never lived." The daughter of Holocaust survivors, Helen Epstein traveled from America to Europe to Israel, searching for one vital thing in common: their parent's persecution by the Nazis. She found: Gabriela Korda, who was raised by her parents as a German Protestant in South America; Albert Singerman, who fought in the jungles of Vietnam to prove that he, too, could survive a grueling ordeal; Deborah Schwartz, a Southern beauty queen who at the Miss America pageant, played the same Chopin piece that was played over Polish radio during Hitler's invasion. Epstein interviewed hundreds of men and women coping with an extraordinary legacy. In each, she found shades of herself.

Welcome to volume 5 (2011) of the Journal of Qualitative Research in Sports Studies (JQRSS) which comprises papers from many first-time authors alongside more experienced writers, all wishing to share their ideas stemming from primary research or through critical discussion articles. Over the past year, the theme of plotting the journey through postgraduate research has been experimented with, a deliberate tack of identifying a theme that prospective papers might fit into. A glance down the contents page reveals a fantastic range of contributions about the journey through research which may be instructive, informative and thought provoking for people at different points on their particular journey.

Relentless fiscal pressures faced by the public police over the last few decades have meant that police organisations have had to find new ways to obtain and harness the resources needed to achieve their goals. Through entering into relationships of coercion, commercial exchange, and gift with a wide variety of external institutions and individuals operating in both public and private capacities, police organisations have risen to this challenge. Indeed, police organisations are increasingly operating within a business paradigm. But what are the benefits of these relationships and the nature of the risks that might accompany reliance upon them? This book examines these new modes of exchange between police and 'outsiders' and explores how far these relationships can be taken before certain fundamental values - equity in the distribution of policing, cost-effectiveness in the delivery of police services, and the legitimacy of the police institution itself - are placed in jeopardy.

American Son, Oscar De La Hoya, Steve Springer , 2009, 0061983268, 9780061983269. From Oscar De La Hoya, one of the most celebrated fighters in the history of boxing, comes a frank and touching memoir about achieving the American Dream: his rise to the top, the power of a solid work ethic, his mother's painful death from cancer, the pitfalls of stardom, and a very personal take on what it means to be an American The son of Mexican-born parents, Oscar "The Golden Boy" De La Hoya has had an astonishing career. From boxing to business, from the recording industry to the charitable accomplishments of his foundation, his success is a testament to what one can achieve in the United States. But who is this man who has changed the lives of so many? Who has imprinted a positive mark upon the sport of boxing, for which many have all but given up hope? Who has become a symbol of success for an entire community, without many heroes to call their own? American Son answers these questions. Born into a boxing family, De La Hoya has defeated more than a dozen world champions and won six world titles as well as an Olympic gold medal a moment forever marked in the memory of anyone who has followed his career. Yet within the maelstrom of this success lay a man whose earnest belief in the goodness of everyone around him sometimes led him to stray far from his intended path. This book is The Golden Boy, and he bares his most heartbreaking mistakes as well as his most stunning triumphs for all of the world to see. This thrilling tale of an immigrant's son a quintessentially American story is the chronicle of an amazing journey that will provide readers with new insight into the private life of a figure who has to many reached iconic status.

Washington Internships: How to Get Them and Use Them to Launch Your Public Policy Career, Deirdre Martinez , 2011, 0812206207, 9780812206203. For students interested in a career in politics and public service, Washington Internships is an invaluable guide to landing that crucial first position in America's capital. Deirdre Martinez, a former policy analyst and legislative director, shares practical strategies for each phase of the internship process. She has helped place hundreds of young people in internships of all kinds, and shares not just what to do but when to do it. The book shows how to develop relevant interests, what skills to develop, how to enhance the resume (poli sci course work not required!), and how to ace the interview. Just as important, it shows how to become a valued intern and build the relationships that lead to post-graduation job offers. Washington Internships also provides insider tips on dealing with grunt work, the pitfalls of "crossing the aisle," and how to find summer housing, deal with background checks, and negotiate Washington fashion ("zombie chic"). Washington Internships is the only career publication focused on entry-level policy and government work. It covers all branches of government, federal agencies, lobbying firms, advocacy organizations, and think tanks. Whether you're a young activist or a future power broker, this book will help you grab the first rung of the public service career ladder.

Women, Poverty, and Demographic Change, Brgida Garca , 2000, 0198294867, 9780198294863. This book analyses the specific demographic implications and conditioning factors of women's experience of poverty. By investigating the different experiences that women in developing countries face in attempting to escape from poverty, the contributors illustrate the importance of incorporating the gender perspective into population studies. Higher fertility levels and early nuptiality patterns among the poor are frequently attributed to socioeconomic reasons. The authors of this book demonstrate the importance of looking at other dimensions, such as the subordinate roles of women in their families of origin and the centrality of motherhood in women's lives. Some chapters also show how gender inequality in educational skills and cultural norms regarding motherhood, marital status, and the limiting of physical movement explain why poverty alleviation strategies such as market work and migration may have different results for men and women. Finally, other authors look into women's autonomy in household decisions as a factor that exerts a strong influence on their ability to obtain maternal and infant health care.

English manuscript painting achieved great mastery during the period from 1280 to 1400 with the development of an intrinsically native style, exemplified by the East Anglian school, that flourished throughout London and the provinces during the 14th century. Although ecclesiastical and private devotional needs largely determined the style and type of book, courtly and aristocratic patronage provided French, Belgian, and Italian influences that are also evident in the manuscripts of this period. This catalogue and study of 158 Gothic manuscripts--some of them famous, and all outstanding masterpieces--demonstrates these links and developments in the illuminated style.
