Join others learning to use community-based data for measurable, breakthrough results!

URBAN Boston and the Millennium Ten Initiative in Dorchester invite you to be a part of an emerging learning community.

In this era of 'big data,' 'impact investing,' and 'collective impact,' there is increasing interest in how neighborhood residents and stakeholders can collect and use community-based data to identify priorities, spur innovation, and improve outcomes. This event is open to practitioners, researchers, residents, technologists, and others interested in learning more about community-based data. Measurement and analysis challenges that we'll consider include youth employment, gentrification, economic development, and neighborhood quality of life.

Please Join Us!
Thursday, December 4th, 2014
6:00-8:30PM
Black Box Theater at Codman Academy
14 Epping St., Dorchester MA
A light dinner will be served

Please RSVP to urban.boston@umb.edu by Friday, November 28th, 2014.

URBAN.Boston is an emerging network of scholars and community activists facilitating meaningful and successful collaborative research projects in the Boston community. To join our email list and learn about future events, please contact us at urban.boston@umb.edu or visit www.urbanresearchnetwork.org.

Millennium Ten is a coalition of longstanding community partners and new leaders that have come together to encourage residents and stakeholders to define what's next for neighborhood, specifically the Codman Square and Four Corners neighborhoods. For more information please visit www.mill-10.org