

Public Lab

APPALACHIA BARNRAISING

June 24 - 25, 2017 | Reed College of Media Innovation Center @ West Virginia University, Morgantown, WV

Photo: Brushy Fork Coal Slurry Impoundment, Raleigh County, WV.
© 2015 The Appalachian Mountaintop Patrol

About the Barnraising: A Barnraising is an event hosted by the Public Lab community. In the spirit of bringing a community together to collectively raise a structure such as a barn, Barnraising participants come together to work on local environmental monitoring projects, share out about environmental concerns, advance technical knowledge, and improve social ties. The event is hosted in an “unconference style.” This means that people join to participate and collaborate rather than just present, talk, and listen.

Who can join the Barnraising? The event is open to everyone. Participants will include people from many interests and backgrounds including local residents, technologists, designers, social scientists, students, and community organizers.

How do I register and keep up-to-date on the event? Further information and event registration will be on: <http://publiclab.org/barnraising>

Questions? Email stevie@publiclab.org

