Assistant Professor, Term
Department of Psychology, University of San Francisco

Job Summary: The Department of Psychology at the University of San Francisco invites applications for a full-time term Assistant Professor, to begin either January 2022 or August 2022, continuing through May 2023, contingent upon funding approval. This position seeks candidates who have a strong commitment to undergraduate teaching and interest in working with diverse student populations. Specialty area in Psychology: Open. Limiting moving expenses may be considered.

Job Responsibilities: We seek a motivated candidate to teach the following courses: Research Design, and a diversity-related course (for example, African American Psychology, Multicultural Psychology, Asian American Psychology, Psychology of Gender, or Psychology of Sexuality). An additional course may include: Biological Psychology, Psychological Statistics, or a course drawn from the applicant's area of expertise. The teaching load for this position is three 4-unit courses per semester with service supporting the department, College, and/or University.

Minimum Qualifications: include a Ph.D. in Psychology or a related field, or advancement to candidacy (ABD), by January 2022; University teaching experience; evidence of a strong commitment to teaching; a strong commitment to undergraduate mentorship; an understanding of and commitment to support the mission of the University of San Francisco are required. The successful candidate must be able to offer their reflections on equity, and strategies for success in engaging with BIPOC students. Recent PhDs and those from underrepresented groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

Required Materials: Consideration of applications begins immediately and will continue until the position is filled. Applications must be submitted online at https://gnosis.usfca.edu/search/jobs. Applicants should submit a cover letter summarizing interests and qualifications, curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy and experience, evidence of teaching ability (including sample syllabi, teaching evaluations), a diversity statement (which may include your thoughts and/or experiences concerning equitable education for underserved and marginalized communities, your commitment to or experience with broadening participation in the field, experience working on a diverse team, and/or experience working with different communication/learning styles), and three letters of recommendation. All of these elements should be submitted electronically as separate PDF documents. Any questions can be sent to PsychologySearch@usfca.edu. For full consideration, applications should be submitted by October 31, 2021.

The University of San Francisco is an equal opportunity institution of higher education. The University does not discriminate in employment, educational services, or academic programs on the basis of an individual's race, color, religion, religious creed, ancestry, national origin, age (except minors), sex, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, marital status, medical condition (cancer-related and genetic-related) and disability, or any other basis prohibited by law. The University reasonably accommodates qualified individuals with disabilities under the law. For more information, visit www.usfca.edu.