Overview

The Posner Center for International Development's ("Posner Center") mission is to catalyze the global development community, at home and abroad, to collaborate for greater impact in building a more equitable and prosperous world.

We have transformed Colorado's global development community through intentional collaboration in our Denver-based building and globally through our virtual programming that brings together our growing national and global community.

We convene organizations, building an engaged, thriving community where people meet and learn about one another, exchange ideas, access shared resources and support, and ultimately combine their expertise to generate more lasting solutions to global development challenges.

Today, the Posner Center community is home to nearly 200 organizations working in over 100 countries. We lead high-quality programs that strengthen our community to amplify its global impact.

Programming and running a physical building in Denver demonstrate that both a physical and virtual community, strategic connections, learning, and sharing across the community are of primary focus, as are the adoption of evidence-based best practices.

Our community seeks new ways to engage with one another and global development organizations worldwide, support their efforts to communicate, advocate, and promote their work, and stand shoulder to shoulder in a never-ending demand to do global development better.

Exciting Next Chapter

In 2023, the Posner Center will develop its next long-term strategy, a process that the new Executive Director will lead, in partnership with the Board and staff. This new strategy will bring alive our commitment to advancing justice, equity, diversity, and inclusion via a decolonizing framework, while continuing to expand our community locally and globally.

We will also make critical decisions about the future of our 25,000-square-foot collaborative workspace, located in Denver's historic Curtis Park neighborhood, and the virtual-versus-physical aspects of our community.
