THE DEEP WORK OF TRANSFORMATIONAL INQUIRY

The emerging new world demands that we develop more expansive ways of knowing, more deeply inclusive practices of caring plus ready access to the spiritual simplicity at our core. In other words, it requires that we develop more expansive forms of consciousness. The question is How? Drawing on the practices developed in his new book, Crazy Wisdom: Tools for Transforming Consciousness, Tom will introduce you to a variety transformative tools grounded in the world's spiritual traditions. He will introduce you to the Immunity to Change process developed by Harvard developmental psychologists Robert Kegan and Lisa Lahey. He will then lead you through some of the powerful tools he has developed for the faith setting.

BUILDING A JUST WORLD...SOUL BY SOUL

Sunday, April 12

1:30 - 5:00 P.M.

at

SABBATH HOUSE - A Center for Sacred Activism

8 Front Street, New Egypt, NJ 08533

Using the Immunity to Change process developed by Harvard psychologists Robert Kegan and Lisa Lahey, Tom will lead participants into inquiry about our unconscious resistance to the social commitments which we hold. As people of faith, we seek to reflect the biblical vision for a more just, caring and sustainable world. Yet to more fully realize our passion for this more beautiful world, the deeper work of inquiry is required. Tom will help us examine our personal stories, our communities, and our core beliefs, as well as the archetypes and myths which shape how we think and act—all toward the goal of helping us build a just world. . .soul by soul.
