The role of Marxists was and still is to do more than merely interpret the world: Reflections in the context of the 100th founding anniversary of the SACP back to joining the Party underground in pursuit of liberation and universal social emancipation

Dr Rob Davies

The journey of a privileged white boy from a petit bourgeois background into the ranks of the SACP was, not surprisingly, a vacillating one. I did not come from a political family and had no personal experience of the exploitation and oppression inflicted by colonialism and apartheid.

SACP denounces politicisation of scientific research on virus origin and source tracing

SACP statement, 22 July 2021

The world should commend the role of scientists from China and 10 other countries under the leadership of the WHO in undertaking the research on the scientific field of COVID-19 origin or source tracing. China has particularly been open to the scientific endeavour, contrary to the propaganda spread by the Western imperialist media. The report was published in March 2020. The role of scientific collaboration is crucial, as the COVID-19 origin or source tracing is essentially about science.
