

Genealogies of Critical Ethnic Studies: Activism & Institutions

Friday, April 23rd - Sunday,
April 25th

Featuring: Laura Kina – scholar-artist-activist, and Director of Critical Ethnic Studies at DePaul University’s College of Liberal Arts & Social Sciences.

VASAM & EPI are excited to present the upcoming virtual conference, Genealogies of Critical Ethnic Studies: Activism and Institutions. Critical Ethnic Studies is a transnational and transdisciplinary academic movement that examines the intersections of race, ethnicity, indigeneity, and societal power, while preserving the activist spirit that led to its legitimization as an academic pursuit.

Join us this April to discuss what it means to engage CES and explore its future possibilities at Vassar—through panels, roundtables, creative sessions, and action-oriented workshops.
